Break Indicated In Paris Talks

U.S. Releases 14 Prisoners

PARIS (UPI)—A strict United States security lid and last-minute cancellation of a North Vietnamese press briefing today heightened speculation of a possible break in the deadlocked talks on the Vietnam war.

Both sides meet Wednesday for the 27th negotiating session since the talks began May 13.

The North Vietnamese delegation headed by Minister of State Xuan Thuy called off without explanation its regular Monday briefing just three hours before it was scheduled to begin. Hanoi officials had announced Sunday the briefing would be held as usual.

Spokesmen for the U.S. negotiating team headed by Ambassador at Large W. Averell Harriman were equally reticent.

'REGULAR DAY'

Mark Sheehan, a deputy news secretary, described delegation activities as "just a regular routine working day." He said Harriman and his righthand man, Cyrus R. Vance, were in their offices in the U.S. Embassy but "had no appointments listed."

The timing of the release of 14 North Vietnamese prisoners of war today was viewed in Paris as an effort to make good on a deal Harriman worked out with Thuy at the conference table two months ago.

Sheehan said the Paris mission would have "no comment at all" on the release of the PoW's, announced by the U.S. Embassy in Saigon.

Asked if Harriman or Vance suggested the release at this time for any particular reason, Sheehans said: "I said I really don't have anything to say."

The North Vietnamese sailors were released off the coast of North Vietnam during a specially-arranged ceasefire in the area.

The 14 men were released from a U.S. destroyer and sent ashore in a motor boat 12 miles from the North Vietnamese city of Vinh, which is 125 miles north of the demilitarized zone.

The 36-hour temporary ceasefire was arranged between representatives of the U.S. and North Vietnamese governments in the Laotian capital of Vientiane so the seamen could be safely landed ashore.

The ceasefire zone extended from the coast 12 miles out to sea and 13 miles north and south of Vinh.

SEA BATTLE

The sailors were among 19 North Vietnamese captured during a sea battle between American vessels and three Hanoi gun-boats in international waters in the Gulf of Tonkin on July 1, 1966, the spokesman said.

Five of the group were previously returned to North Vietnam—three on March 29 and two others, who were ill or injured, in 1967.

The cease-fire and release of the prisoners, coupled with the withdrawal of the U.S. battleship New Jersey from off the coast of North Vietnam and the continued lull in the ground war, increased speculation that Washington and Hanoi might be moving toward progress in the Paris peace talks.

Diplomats at the United Nations said they believe North Vietnam wants to get a peace settlement before the next U.S. administration takes office Jan. 21.

Hard Line In Budget Expected

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Benson is expected to take a hard line in his budget speech Tuesday night on the ability of Ottawa to finance much more provincial spending.

"We are not a well that anyone can dip into," he said recently when asked about fresh provincial demands for more tax-sharing.

Prime Minister Trudeau has proposed a conference of federal and provincial authorities to start trimming the shared-cost projects already burdening the federal taxpayer.

This is in advance of next year's demands on the federal treasury when perhaps five other provinces will join Saskatchewan and British Columbia, which now are participating in the national medical care insurance scheme.

Medical care insurance is costing the federal treasury $35,000,000 this fiscal year, which runs to next March 31. But this only covers Ottawa's share of the plan in the two provinces.

ONLY A GUESS

S. S. Reisman, secretary of the treasury board, told a Senate finance committee meeting last week that the $35,000,000 figure is really only an educated guess of the federal cost.

A much more indicative figure will be the one contained in next year's spending estimates, covering perhaps seven provinces.

This is the season when the provinces and the federal government are staking out their positions before haggling over tax-sharing arrangements.

Premier Robarts of Ontario said last month his province needs a bigger slice of the federal income tax dollar. Ontario now gets 28 cents out of every $1 collected by Ottawa in basic personal income taxes.

The tax-sharing arrangements now in effect stem from the Second World War situation in which Ottawa took over provincial tax fields to finance the war. They were continued as a way of avoiding the jungle of tax duplication that prevailed before the war.

Slowdown Imperils New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor John V. Lindsay says a police slowdown coupled with the city's teachers' strike "now directly imperils the safety of untold numbers of New Yorkers".

Lindsay offered Sunday to meet a major teachers' demand in an effort to end the strike affecting the city's 1,100,000-pupil school system, but the union rejected his plan.

Lindsay said the police "slowdown" ordered by the 22,000-member Patrolmen's Benevolent Association in a contract dispute posed "the threat of disorder" at various schools.

As part of the "job action" in the city-police dispute, patrolmen began calling in sick during the weekend while those on duty stopped handing out summonses for traffic violations except when ordered to do so by superiors.

160 Firms in U.S. Favor 'No-Fault' Plan

By JOHN MIKA

The compulsory self-insurance concept of traffic accident compensation on a "no-fault" basis was undergoing intense study today by segments of the insurance industry on both sides of the continent and both sides of the border.

It was featured by an immediate public debate among insurance spokesmen in the U.S. in sharp contrast to the continuing silence of their Canadian counterparts.

In Nanaimo, the Insurance Agents Association of B.C. board of directors was hammering out its position on the concept as proposed by the Wootton Royal Commission report released 11 days ago.

But IAA president Robert Spray told The Times this morning that it was "too early yet" to announce positions since the industry as a whole has not commented yet "although I'm sure the time will come when comment will be made."

In Washington, D.C., the same concept was publicly advocated by the American Insurance Association, representing 160 companies, as a means of cutting present insurance costs almost in half and guaranteeing immediate compensation to victims.

At the same time, a B.C. petition of 11,826 signatures collected over the past five weekends by parents of children killed in traffic was forwarded to the federal and provincial governments urging steps already proposed or endorsed in the royal commission report.

The petition asked the federal Parliament to amend impaired driving legislation so that it banned chronic drinking-drivers from the roads—an expected consequence of the new B.C. Motor Vehicles Branch's demerit system which was praised by the commission as a vital step towards reducing the traffic toll rate.

The petition also asks the provincial government to implement the Commission's proposal that youths between 16 and 18 be required to graduate from an approved driver training school as a condition of qualifying for a driver's licence.

The "no-fault" concept

Tanker Floating 'Bomb'

EASTBOURNE, England (Reuters) — A blazing Norwegian tanker, described by police as a floating bomb, blazed fiercely a mile offshore today and coastal roads were closed to traffic.

Police also toured residential areas, warning that doors and windows should be opened to minimize effects if the tanker blew up.

The 15,500-ton Sitakund burst into flames in the English Channel on Sunday night after three explosions which shook houses along the English coast.

French vessels picked up 31 survivors, but three crew members were missing and believed dead.

The tanker, with ballast tanks full of explosive gas, was towed early today from the main-channel shipping lanes and grounded.

HELMETED STUDENTS STAGE RIOT IN JAPAN

TOKYO (AP)—Some 1,200 helmeted students armed with staves stormed the Japanese defence headquarters today but were hurled back by 1,000 riot police using high-pressure water guns and tear gas.

The students threw rocks, chanted anti-American slogans and carried red banners and posters denouncing the "aggressive United States war in Veitnam".

Police said they arrested 210 demonstrators. Many students and police were reported injured. The students were demonstrating support for an anti-war day sponsored by two of Japan's biggest labor unions.

Nigerian Red Tape Stalls Canadian Relief Aircraft

By JACK BEST

LAGOS (CP) — While thousands of Biafrans are reported starving three Canadian Forces Hercules transport planes sit idle, waiting for the go ahead to start ferrying food and medical supplies in civil-war-torn Nigeria.

One of the $3 million pot-bellied turboprops, on loan to the International Red Cross, sat on the tarmac at Lagos's Ikeja airport Sunday, where it landed one week ago.

Two others, one at Recife, on the northeast coast of Brazil, and another at Ascension Island, 700 miles southwest of here in the Atlantic, sat waiting for the red tape to be cut.

One apparent reason for the delay in starting to transport relief supplies is the uncertainty of the Nigerian government as to how far it should co-operate in facilitating relief operations into break-away Biafra, the eastern section of Nigeria where civil war has ranged for 16 months.

Major K. S. (Ken) Johnson of Smiths Falls, Ont., commander of the Canadian detachment, last Wednesday sought permission from the Nigerian chief of staff to fly supplies to Port Harcourt, 300 miles east of here, but permission was denied for "military reasons."

He had scouted the area, held by Nigerian forces commanded by Col. Benjamin (Black Scorpion) Adekunle, who takes a dim view of non-military aircraft operating in his command area, and found that runways near Calabar, 100 miles east of Por. Harcourt, could handle the transports.

WIRE BRIEFS

No De-Escalation

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Gen. Curtis E. Lemay said today he found no evidence in his trip to Vietnam for George C. Wallace that the Communists had decided to de-escalate their part of the war.

He said North Vietnam was pouring supplies into South Vietnam at an unprecedented rate.

Rural Mail Service

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-General Eric Kierans said today that rural postal service will be continued on a six-day week basis because a five-day delivery week proposed to begin February 1 would cause "serious hardship" in rural areas.

Beaten, Neglected, Dumb Susan Fights Way Back to Normalcy

By W. RALPH THOMAS

Susan was five months old before anyone realized she was close to death.

She had been beaten, starved and neglected.

Her little body bore the marks of dozens of blows and she was suffering from acute malnutrition.

During the first five months of her existence she was physically, mentally and emotionally damaged.

Susan was the second illegitimate child of an alcaholic woman. The first child was five years old when Susan was born, and since the mother was seldom home the five-year-old had to look after Susan as well as himself.

When Susan cried he would sometimes try to feed her. Most of the food could not be eaten by such a tiny baby, so Susan would continue her hungry cries. Her half-brother would then beat her until she stopped crying or until he was tired of hitting her.

Her diapers were seldom changed and she developed severe rashes and colds.

Except for the "care" of her brother and periodic beatings from her drunk, angry mother, Susan was totally neglected.

When she was five months old the Family and Children's Service was called in and she was taken to hospital. No one expected her to live.

But she recovered and the agency put her up for adoption.

Because of her racially-mixed parentage, no one

Jackie, 'Telis Wed in Simple Ceremony

By MAXINE CHESHIRE
The Washington Post

SKORPIOS, Greece — With a dark and gloomy rain falling intermittently outside, former first lady Jacqueline Kennedy became Madam Aristotle Onassis Sunday in a simple ceremony performed in a crypt-sized private chapel on this remote and private island.

Jasmine covered the outside walls of the tiny, whitewashed country church where the 39-year-old widow of the late President John F. Kennedy was remarried. There was only room inside for some 20 members of the immediate families to stand while Greek Orthodox vows were read by the Rev. Polykarpos Athanassiou.

Candles were the only illumination. There were no flowers, although four crates of orchids had been left unused on the dining room table aboard the yacht Christina.

Orchids are the flowers which the new Mrs. Onassis dislikes above all others.

Onassis himself, a man of incredible power in his homeland, had personally planned every detail of the wedding. Mrs. Onassis, a woman of definite tastes who ordinarily demands precision and perfection in everything, allowed her bridegroom to make the arrangements.

She wore a lace-trimmed, beige chiffon dress which she had worn earlier this year to a friend's wedding. Her shoes were flat-heeled in an attempt to equalize her husband's shorter stature.

Both she and her daughter Caroline wore ribbons to hold back their hair.

Caroline and her brother John participated in the ceremony, which lasted almost 45 minutes. The two children carried single white candles which had been decorated with white flowers and ribbon. Onassis's own son, 20-year-old Alexander, had flown the ceremonial props down from an Athens florist on Friday and they were kept refrigerated in readiness.

Alexander and his 18-year-old sister, Christina, watched as their father, one of the richest men in the world, became the husband of one of the most admired women in the world.

Mrs. Onassis had intended to walk to her wedding. But the day dawned with a bleak downpour. Some Greeks maintain this is good luck, but many Greeks said over and over again: "The gods are weeping, the gods are weeping."

The wedding party has been housed here since Thursday aboard the $3 million converted Canadian naval ship. The house which he is building on the island looks like a pink parthenon that is as yet unfinished.

Onassis himself drove to the chapel, which is located on another side of the island from where the yacht docks.

Mrs. Onassis and her children, when it became apparent that the rain was not going to let up and that they could not walk, got aboard a power launch and were whisked through choppy waves to the other side of the island.

Onassis Leap-Frogs Greek Oneupmanship

By The Washington Post

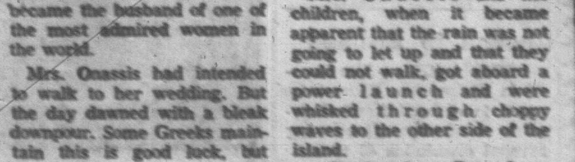
ATHENS — By winning one of the most desired women in the world, Aristotle Onassis has gained a seemingly unbeatable lead in the extraordinary game of "oneupmanship" waged by the powerful clans of the Greek shipbuilding industry.

In the Hellenic tradition, the thirst for money and power alone do not stoke these fierce rivalries. A strong desire to outdo in fame, respect or prestige motivates the jealousies and in this respect the acquisition of Mrs. Kennedy may have been Onassis' most important since he began building a billion-dollar empire.

In the pecking order of great families — Niarchos, Livanos, Empirikos, Peteras and Hatjipateras — Onassis is now acknowledged king.

The most immediate rival for world fame and power—the 59-year-old Magnate Stavros Niarchos—is with a shooting party in Spain and could not be reached for comment about the good fortune of his long-time competitor.

In Athens, the bitter competition between the two men is an open secret. Sometimes it has caused collisions in the business world itself, as in the struggle for control of petroleum shipping in the Persian Gulf, but mostly it has been expressed in a leap-frogging effort at outdoing the other.



Now they're even holdin' down on th' news thet Paris WASN'T givin' out.

Nanaimo Grits Choose Winch As Candidate

By JIM HUME

MAG. ERIC WINCH
... for reform

NANAIMO — Close to 1,200 Liberal party supporters, 888 of them voting delegates, set the stage Saturday for a dramatic 1969 confrontation with the NDP.

In solidly supporting local magistrate Eric Winch, 45, the Liberals of Nanaimo, Cowichan and the Islands did more than toss a hat into the ring.

They tossed in addition a hat which for years has borne a brand-name synonymous with socialism.

Mr. Winch's brother Harold is the veteran New Democratic Party MP for Vancouver East. Their father carried the socialist banner for years as an MLA.

"But I do not stand for socialism," Mr. Winch told the cheering crowd. "I do stand for social reform."

His road to victory Saturday was easier than the experts had forecast.

TWO BALLOTS

Of the 888 registered voters 862 cast ballots on the first count to give Mr. Winch 341, Mr. Zorkin 220, Frank Crane 157, and George Whittaker of Duncan 154.

Only 779 votes were cast on the second go-round but more than half bore the Winch name. The totals read: Winch, 429; Zorkin, 225; Crane, 125.

Even the most optimistic Liberal party workers were surprised by the overwhelming turn-out of delegates Saturday.

Less than 11 months ago a similar nominating convention in Chemainus 125 delegates gave Mr. Zorkin the nod to challenge the late Colin Cameron.

Had banners, buttons, bands and mini-skirted cheer leaders been counted as votes Zorkin would have triumphed on the first ballot.

But the voters, although obviously enjoying the Zorkin drum and trumpet effort, were in no mood for election-day frills.

The serious mood was set by Dr. Donald McKerricher, Nanaimo, who moved Mr. Winch's nomination.

"We are here today to decide one thing, who can win the byelection for us, who has the best chance of winning," Dr. McKerricher said.

There was no doubt among the delegate voters as to whom that man was.

Mr. Winch kept his nomination speech and his acceptance speech low-key as though to draw a direct comparison between the flamboyance of the Zorkin camp and his own hard-core supporters.

"If you select me, neither you nor the other voters in this riding will be bewildered by a parade of pre-election promises," he said. "I am not interested by playing games with building blocks."

Following Mr. Winch to the platform, Mr. Zorkin ran into the first heckling of the day.

Unlike the other candidates who merely walked to the platform when called by chairman Doug Greed, the Nanaimo realtor walked out of the wings preceded by placard-bearing teeny-boppers and a noisy but slightly out-of-tune drum and bugle band for a double-parade around the gymnasium before he took the rostrum.

It might have worked at the provincial or national levels. But not in Nanaimo Saturday.

MORE HOOP-LA

But Mr. Zorkin had more than hoop-la going against him.

Contesting his right to represent the party again was his former campaign manager Frank Crane, a Nanaimo businessman and popular figure in sports.

A veteran of the backroom Mr. Crane was making his first bid for the limelight.

"If you choose one of the other three let me say this," he said in his nomination speech. "I shall be back in there working for whichever one you choose.

"In the past I have always been a bridesmaid, but never a bride. "Don't leave me standing at the church today."

But the voters did with a far cooler response on the first ballot than Mr. Crane had expected.

Even at that he fared better than fourth candidate George Whittaker who was crossed from the list after the first count.

Mr. Whittaker did little to build an image of confidence, confining his remarks to appeal for solid support to defeat Mr. Douglas and reciting a list of the number of times he had run for office and been defeated.

The last time the Liberals held the riding was 1945.

Astronauts Clown Away Final Show

HOUSTON (AP) — The Apollo 7 astronauts, mellowed after a day of air-to-ground arguments, clowned their way through their final television show today and fired their large spaceship engine to steer into a more favorable course for returning to earth Tuesday.

As U.S. Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr., air Force Maj. Donn F. Eisele and civilian Walter Cunningham raced through their final hours in space, they displayed none of the irritability that sparked bitter disagreements with ground controllers Sunday, mostly over flight-plan changes.

The astronauts made it plain they are eager to come home after 11 days in space. They are scheduled to parachute into the Atlantic Ocean near Bermuda at 7:12 a.m. EDT Tuesday, climaxing a spectacular, perfect flight that set the United States firmly on the manned path to the moon.

... INSURANCE

prompted an immediate internal debate among insurance spokesmen in the U.S. capital.

"It would cost up to 45 per cent less than the cost of the present system," said AIA president T. Lawrence Jones as he unveiled what he called the Complete Personal Protection Plan of automobile insurance.

Mr. Jones said traffic victims would have their economic losses and medical expenses paid by their own insurance companies regardless of blame and there would be no litigation between companies over compensation.

The AIA plan would require government co-operation to eliminate the present liability insurance approach by making insurance a compulsory requirement for anyone driving a car and legislating complete immunity from court suits.

Mr. Jones said the AIA plan would make no change in collision, damage, fire and theft policies on automboiles because it would only be aimed at compensating accident victims.

The National Association of Independent Insurers, which claims its 480 member companies write more than half the private car insurance in the U.S., opposed the plan.

WOULD SHIFT BURDEN

The no-fault system would shift to each motorist "the entire burden of insuring himself against all his losses—both those caused by himself as well as those caused by other motorists," an NAII spokesman said.

A spokesman for State Farm Mutual said he doubted the company's 11 million policyholders would want "the cost of accidents shifted from the reckless driver to his victims" and Allstate Insurance criticized the AIA proposal because it would mean "irresponsible and reckless drivers would be held financially blameless."

(The Wootton Royal Commission conceded these points but argued present civil courts actions over insurance payments was not deterring bad drivers nor providing efficient or adequate compensation for their victims.

(It contended the only method of achieving both goals was a no-fault accident insurance coverage with the criminal courts and a systematic demerit schedule for MVB licence suspensions being used to eliminate reckless or irresponsible drivers from the road.)

John Usher, Vancouver public relations expert whose clients include the major auto insurance company associations in Canada, said he doubted there would be any comment on the AIA proposal.

"I wouldn't think they (Canadian insurance officials) would want to comment on that because it's outside their territory entirely," he said.

"The U.S. has different insurance laws and practices so there would be no point in commenting."

He said the industry here was still studying the Wootton Commission report closely so it could issue intelligent comment later.

Bandit Talks Way To Arrest

KIPAWA, Ont. (CP) — A lone armed bandit robbed a hotel here Sunday of $1,007 and then debated with seven captives for 35 minutes as to whether he could get away with the robbery.

He didn't. Police arrived while he was talking.

VULLIAMY

NDP Member For Burnaby Dies at 55

BURNABY, B.C. (CP) — Frederick Justin Vulliamy, New Democratic Party MLA for Burnaby-Willingdon since 1966, died Sunday at age 55.

Mr. Vulliamy, a chartered accountant and former provincial president of the party, had been suffering from cancer.

Born in Winnipeg, he was educated in Vancouver and became a chartered accountant in 1943. He was a member of the NDP and its predecessor, the CCF, for almost 25 years.

Mr. Vulliamy was elected to the legislature on his third attempt, having run in Vancouver constituences in 1960 and 1963.

His death leaves the NDP with 16 seats in the 55-member B.C. legislature. There are 32 Social Credit, six Liberal members.

Tributes to the Opposition finance critic came from party leader Robert Strachan and provincial NDP president John Laxton.

"In the short time he was in the legislature he demonstrated a sincerity and an ability that was recognized by all members," said Mr. Strachan.

Mr. Laxton said he was "much liked and much loved" by his colleagues.

SOUGHT BETTER DEAL

Mr. Vulliamy was an active critic of the Social Credit government's financial policies. In the last session, he claimed British Columbia should get a far better return than planned on the $650,000,000 coal deal between the province and Japan.

He was also a believer in the power of education and held that survival may depend on the calibre of present and future graduates.

He is survived by his wife, two sons and two daughters.

wanted to adopt her. Finally she was placed in a foster home in the country.

By the time she was three she still could not speak and she tended to avoid her foster parents and other people.

She spent hours in the barn or farmyard "talking" to the animals. Her rejection of humans was almost complete.

Finally she was sent to Sevenoaks, a school for emotionally disturbed children, operated by the Family and Children's Service.

She was given intensive therapy by a devoted and understanding staff. After a few months at Sevenoaks she began to respond to kindness and began learning to talk.

UPHILL FIGHT

It was a long, uphill process, but eventually Susan improved enough to be placed with carefully selected foster parents.

She is now attending a public elementary school but the shock of her early existence has left many deep scars.

Yet without the help by the Family and Children's Service and the subsequent intensive treatment at Sevenoaks, she would have either died or spent the rest of her life in a mental institution.

There are many children in this area who suffer from acute emotional disorders. Most of these, like Susan, can be helped by treatment at Sevenoaks.

This year the Community Chest will give $82,000 to the Family and Children's Service. About one-third of this will be used to help support the Sevenoaks program.

But if only one child like Susan is helped by the Community Chest allotment, the money will be well spent.

Council to Disband

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Citizenship Council has voted to disband itself. Delegates at the annual meeting favored dissolution 45 to 22.

The Greek navy had done its best to keep the curious away, but boatloads of onlookers had gathered. Some were peasants in open rowboats. Others in a chartered yacht were rich Los Angeles Republicans who had been snubbed earlier in the day when they had sent a message hoping to wangle an invitation.

Mrs. Onassis's children both wore very solemn expressions. People who had been on the yacht before the family left said that both children had looked very sad.

One Frenchman described John as "sitting in a corner refusing all efforts of his mother to interest him in play."

Mrs. Onassis herself, the visitor said, "spent all her time before the ceremony with the children. She seemed completely oblivious to everything that was going on around her."

The bride seemed to be trying to pay particular attention to Caroline. She held tightly to her daughter's hand as they left the chapel and, even though Caroline is now a big girl, her mother held her on her lap as they drove off in a mini-jeep with Onassis at the wheel.

Mr. and Mrs. Onassis toasted their wedding party with pink champagne which had been flown earlier in the day in huge crates that held many more bottles than were needed by the small group that followed them back from the chapel.

Today gale force winds, high seas and chilly weather held up plans for the honeymoon cruise by the couple.

Although bad, the weather did not prevent the departure of friends and relatives of Onassis, including the new Mrs. Onassis' two children. Nor did it halt the party aboard the yacht Christinia where guests danced until almost dawn.

The party aboard the yacht lasted through the night with 13 costumed girls from the nearby island of Levkas dancing and singing for the guests.

The newlyweds themselves slept late but arose to wish departing guests godspeed and give the children a final hug.

The pair will return to live in New York City in about two weeks.

Nancy Tuckerman, secretary to Mrs. Onassis, said the couple will occupy the former Mrs. Kennedy's Fifth Avenue apartment.

Princess Lee Radziwill told someone on the airplane en route to Greece that her sister was now in Onassis's "protection."

"Everyone asks me why, why?" she said. "It's because my sister is very shy and she has at least found a man . . . the only man . . . who can offer the kind of protection she has been looking for."

To the 200 or so foreign journalists who followed Jacqueline Kennedy to Greece this weekend, it was quite apparent that Onassis can indeed give her the protection from publicity that she has not been able to find in a democracy.

The uninvited will think twice before following her to Skorpios again.

Onassis, with his Olympic Airlines, has a monopoly of air transportation in Greece.

Olympic is the only domestic airline. Those aircraft which are not his property cannot take off or land at his airports without his permission. Reporters trying to get to Skorpios from Athens faced a 12-to-16-hour trip by car or a 16-hour journey by chartered speedboat at $1,000.

Olympic Airlines refused to allow news media people to rent anything that flies. All aircraft of a size to go to Skorpios had been "reserved" by the management. Any left over had been "reserved" by the Greek government.

Some 200 reporters made the odd odyssey to Skorpios. The adventure took some a day and a half by car, bouncing over unpaved roads that were either bogs of mud or rocky enough to send both windshield wipers flying off a brand new Ford.

There are a half dozen ferry rides involved and the ferries are not operated on a 24-hour-a-day schedule.

The Greek navy had patrol boats at the coast of Skorpios to keep reporters from landing. Two Greek journalists somehow managed to sneak ashore Saturday night and hide, but they were discovered at daybreak and escorted ashore by sailors.

The bedraggled newspapermen were soaking wet and covered with sand and claimed they had been tossed into the sea to teach them a lesson.

Principals Get Break-In Order

NEW YORK (UPI) — The board of education has authorized principals to break into school buildings today if necessary to re-open 900 public schools to the city's 1.12 million school children.

The announcement of the authorization came shortly after Albert Shanker, head of the teachers' union which is striking the school system for the third time this fall, rejected Mayor John V. Lindsay's latest offer to settle the strike.

Shanker left the second of two meetings with the mayor at Gracie Mansion late Sunday afternoon and flew to Houston where he addressed the association of School Business Officers. Shanker's talk was the first in a number he will make across the nation, designed to alert the nation to what he called the dangers of turning over school system to racial extremists.

School superintendent — Bernard Donovan said he was authorizing local school superintendents to open and operate all schools in their areas even if it was necessary to break into the school buildings to do it. Donovan said he hoped the schools could be opened without damage.

LEGAL BREAK-IN

"Only the district superintendent or the school principal or the person designated as acting school principal known to the police may arrange for a "legal break-in'," he said.

After the meeting the mayor's three-man mediation panel headed by Labor Lawyer Theodore Kheel announced that it was discontinuing its efforts to settle the dispute.

"We have not been able to find any basis for effectuating compliance by mutual agreement of the parties," Kheel said.

Shortly after meeting with Shanker, Lindsay went on radio to say the city's latest school crisis had degenerated into intolerable racial and religious tensions."

Lindsay said Shanker had rejected his offer to close down junior high school 271 in Brooklyn's Ocean Hill-Brownsville experimental school district. The school has been the focal pont of the controversy.

Shanker rejected the move as "a police action."

Warsaw Pact Troops Leaving

PRAGUE (AP) — Warsaw pact occupation troops began pulling out of Czechoslovakia today.

The Hungarian news agency MTI reported the first Hungarian units to leave crossed the southern Czechoslovak border at three points and were welcomed home with ceremonies and banners strung across houses.

In Warsaw, the Polish armed forces newspaper Zolierz Wolnosci—Soldier of Freedom—said: "Our soldiers are returning home. Today we shall greet them cordially on their home soil."

Gladys Moves Into Ship Lanes

CAPE HATTERAS, N.C. (AP) — Hurricane Gladys, with millions of dollars in damage and three deaths reported in her wake, moved into the Atlantic shipping lanes today.

The U.S. Weather Bureau pin-pointed the hurricane some 200 miles east-southeast of Cape Cod, Mass., early today.

Gladys touched briefly on the North Carolina coast Sunday, causing little damage. In Florida, three persons were killed and millions of dollars in damages were attributed to the hurricane.

The weather bureau said the storm was continuing to move in a northeasterly direction at a speed of 35 miles an hour. Speed was expected to decrease today, as were the highest winds.

On the North Carolina coast Sunday, gusts of 80 m.p.h. were reported. Tree limbs, utility poles and signs were knocked down and tides were reported two to three feet above normal.

Junior College Administration Regains Control

MONTREAL (CP) — The administration of Edouard-Montpetit de Longueuil junior college regained control of the school and suspension of classes until further notice.

In suburban St. Laurent, however, junior college professors were to join their students in a mass solidarity march as occupation of six junior colleges continued to block any chances for regaining a normal school term.

A spokesman for the union representing the professors said Sunday they have voted to walk with the students because "ultimatums will never regulate the problems about which the students are complaining."

ULTIMATUM ISSUED

Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal issued an ultimatum last week calling on students to return to classes today or risk losing a term.

Meanwhile, the board of governors of downtown Maisonneuve College voted to close the institution for an "undetermined period."

Administration spokesman Gilles Poirier said it was decided to close down after occupying students voted Friday to strip college officials of all administrative powers.

SHIP TO TAKE MORE AID TO NIGERIA

HALIFAX (CP) — A Greek freighter carrying Canadian aid to victims of the Nigerian civil war is expected to leave Halifax early today. The vessel, Silver Crest, had been expected to begin the three-week voyage Saturday afternoon, but loading was delayed by overheated equipment.

The ship will carry about $1 million worth of medical supplies and food, mainly dried fish. About 45 per cent of the cargo will be unloaded at the island of Fernando Poo, a centre for mercy supplies going to breakaway Biafra. The rest will go on to Lagos, the federal Nigerian capital.

Comedian, 74, Dies

KINGSTON, England (AP)—Bud Flanagan, 74, veteran British burlesque comedian honored by the Queen with the Order of the British Empire, died Sunday. Flanagan, whose real name was Robert Winthrop, teamed with Chesney Allen in a song and gag act with which they toured several countries, including Canada, Australia and South Africa.

Heart Transplant Canada's Seventh

MONTREAL (CP) — Yvon Therrien, 45, a Quebec City garage operator, today became Canada's seventh heart transplant patient when Montreal Heart Institute surgeons gave him the heart of a 20-year-old accident victim.

A spokesman for the institute, where Canada's first five heart transplant operations were performed, said Mr. Therrien was in "excellent condition" and that no health bulletins would be issued unless "something out of the ordinary happens."

Mr. Therrien, a father of eight, received the heart of Serge Dufresne, 20, of St. Lin, Que., who was found unconscious on a sidewalk in the east end of Montreal early Saturday morning. He died Sunday of a "massive brain hemorrhage."

A Montreal police spokesman said the donor had apparently fallen off a third floor apartment balcony onto the sidewalk.

TORONTO (CP) — A 42-year-old Toronto bricklayer who smokes a bit and works hard was showing steady improvement after undergoing Ontario's first heart transplant.

Pietro Ongaro, an Italian who came to Canada in 1953, received the new heart Saturday in a 4½-hour operation by about 20 doctors and nurses.

Doug Buchanan adjusts his radar screen in the air traffic control centre at Montreal's Dorval airport.

How a Montreal air traffic controller protects his family and doubles his money with London Life

Doug Buchanan works in the control centre of Montreal's busy Dorval airport. He has been an air traffic controller for over eight years and has the highest grade obtainable in this job.

"There are 19 of us on each shift. We control about 125,000 square miles of air space. Our job is to make sure airplanes get down safely. There's radar to help us. Generally, we start speaking to pilots when they're 200 miles away.

"At peak periods each controller handles between 8 and 12 planes. That means you would be responsible for more than 1,000 lives. It can become pretty nerve-racking but you have to remain calm.

"So you can see I don't have time to dabble in the stock market. When I get home I just want to relax. That's one reason I'm sold on those London Life policies. Of course, protection for my wife and daughter is important, too.

"The policies force me to save money. I think unless you have money regularly going into a sound, safe investment you'll never have peace of mind—and do all the things you want to do."

Here are the facts about Doug's $45,000 of insurance with London Life. He has four Jubilee life premiums to 65 policies purchased between ages 23 and 28. His total monthly premium is $64.47. By age 65 he will have paid in $30,883. However, if he leaves his dividends to accumulate, his policies will be worth $76,576* in cash! More than double the money he paid in.

"Those policies are like having a really solid basement for your house! They're always going to be there to keep your family out of financial trouble, and they earn money.

"And they're excellent collateral. When we wanted to buy furniture, I took them to the bank manager and he said, 'I'll lend you all the money you need.' He gave me a favorable interest rate, too.

"Of course, I'd like to retire early. A couple of years ago Johanne and I went to the Caribbean. When we got back, we decided that when I retire, we want to travel all over the world. My London Life policies are going to help me do that. What better return could you get for money that's protecting your family into the bargain?"

A London Life Jubilee policy can be tailored to your personal requirements. That's why it is called "the flexible one." To find out more about this policy, phone a Company representative.

This figure is made up of $30,240 in guaranteed cash value and the balance in accumulated dividends based on the current scale. While dividends are not guaranteed, London Life for years has had one of the most outstanding records of dividend payments in North America.*

Down to the Sea in Pipes

SATURDAY'S ALL-DAY FORUM on sewage effectively get rid of the case for land disposal; but arguments for this method had been advanced chiefly by a small minority of persons concerned about pollution of the sea. The latter fear was countered by the unanimous judgment of the visiting experts, who cited many examples of sea disposal to support their conclusions. This much had been readily accepted by most residents of the local sewerage district who have been considering a plan to pour sewage into the ocean through nine main outfall pipes.

The local controversy has revolved chiefly around the question of treatment of the sewage versus non-treatment. It was on this latter point that the experts generally accompanied their approval of outfalls with qualifying conditions, to the effect that the outfalls must be of a length to take full advantage of the diffusive and neutralizing effects of the strong local tides and currents and to prevent effluent being carried back to shore.

The issue therefore again boils down to the contention of various local engineers that the effectiveness of any given outfall system must depend on the conditions existing at the particular point of discharge. Conditions of depth, current and pipe length which might be adequate at one location could be quite inadequate a little farther along the shore. These peculiar conditions, and hence the length of outfall and the degree of sewage treatment required, should therefore be determined in detail by careful study.

The most simple procedure, consisting of comminution or shredding of solids, was seen as sufficient under certain conditions. Engineer Douglas Whelen saw such a discharge as safe "providing outfalls are long enough and the tidal conditions are such as to carry the sewage out." Dr. Richard Pomeroy of Pasadena agreed, "assuming proper length and depth of outfalls."

We are therefore left pretty much where we were before the forum, with the answer to treatment versus non-treatment depending on the detailed engineering studies which are usually delayed until the general principle of a project has been accepted. The forum, of course, was not a debate among experts but a concerted defence by them of the existing outfall plan.

Actually, the region enjoys a degree of flexibility in the proposed plans, for if experience in the near or distant future indicates that more intense treatment should be employed, various stages of treatment units may be attached to the system. That possible need should be kept in mind in any outfall construction. But whatever facilities are provided, the determining factors should be the degree of pollution detectable along our shores, both from a biological and aesthetic standpoint. And in this regard it should be noted that the relatively low figures on the cost of treatment announced by Central Saanich have not been publicly refuted.

How Long Will We Put It Off?

EXPERIENCE IN PRINCE George has duplicated that of many other communities where a close check has been kept on the results of fluoridation of the city's water supply. Twelve years ago the central British Columbia city initiated the province's first civic fluoridation program. Today the children of Prince George are reported to have almost perfect teeth.

Studies of 1,000 children, carried on continuously since the fluoridation program began, show a 61.1 per cent reduction in decayed, missing or filled teeth. In the 12-to-14-year group the reduction was 86 per cent. But this ratio of improvement was not shown in the six-to-eight year group for the very significant reason that these youngsters, born when the fluoridation plan was in full force, already had almost perfect teeth when they underwent their first examination six years ago.

No doubt these statistical results, announced by the district dental society of Prince George, will be hotly contested by anti-fluoridationists. But the smiles of Prince George school children will be undeniable proof of the effectiveness of fluoridation, which eleven municipalities in British Columbia now enjoy. It is a sorry situation that apathy on the part of parents in Greater Victoria permits a minority of anti-fluoridationists to deny our children this great benefit.

Full Public Use

REPORTS OF HEAVY EVENING use of local schools—particularly secondary schools—by organized groups, provide gratifying confirmation of the benefit of the new school board policy of opening the institutions to greater public participation. This is a trend also favored by the government.

For many years a protect-the-building policy by school principals kept all but a few organizations out of the schools after hours, and a sizable fee was exacted. Now a much lower fee rate and a welcome encouragement of full utilization of the buildings have resulted in a healthy demand for permits to use gymnasiums and activity rooms.

One proposal for future school construction is to place the gymnasiums and libraries to enable the public to use them at night without having to heat the whole building. Such a plan cannot take effect, of course, until the government decides to authorize construction of gymnasiums and libraries and stocks the latter with adequate supplies of books. Then the schools can enter further upon their proper function as neighborhood activity centres, rather than merely daytime instruction sites.

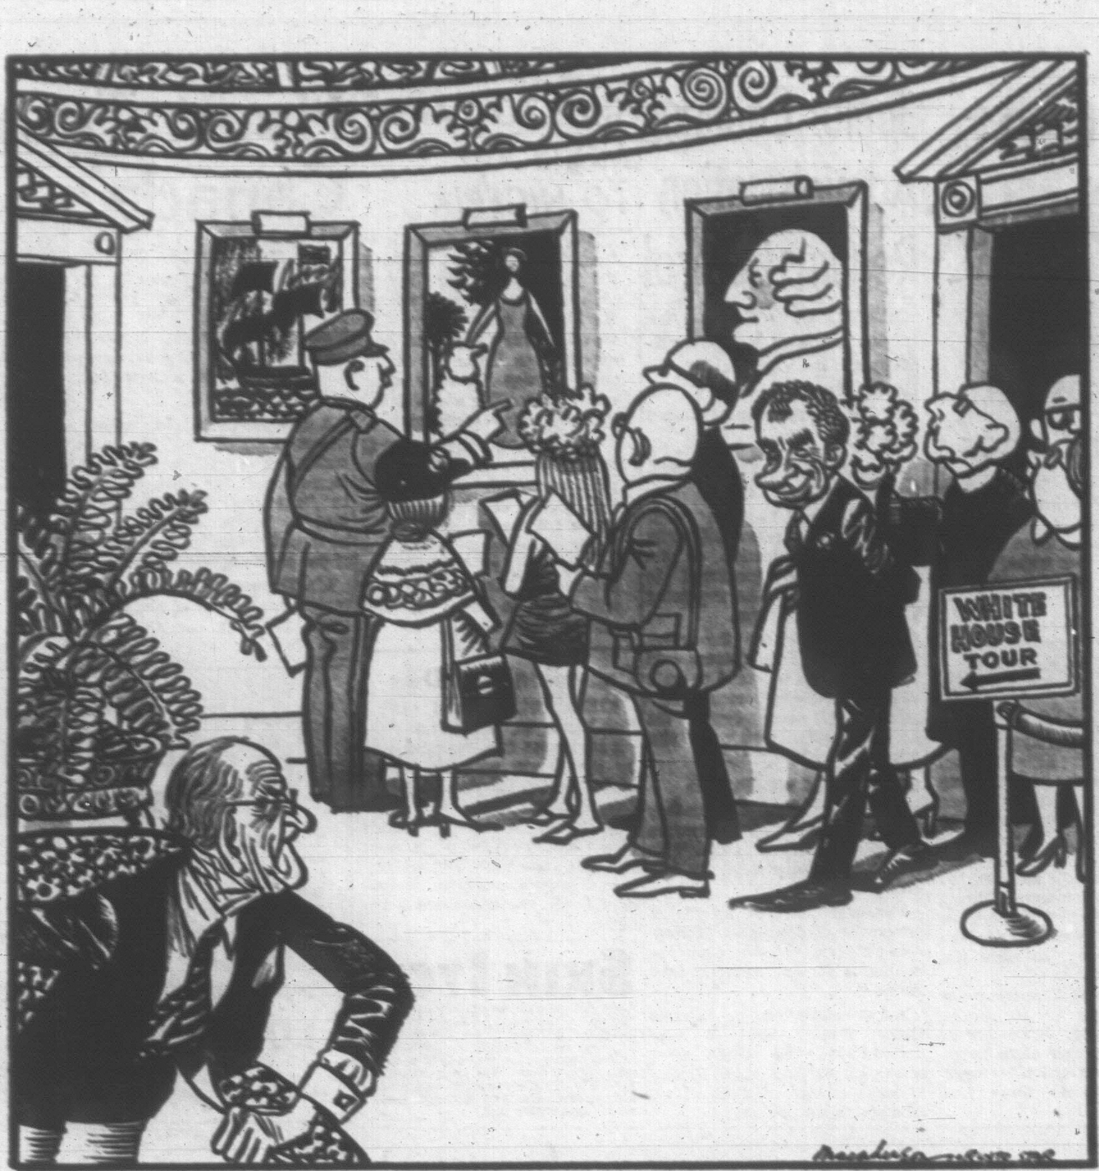
School Board Chairman Peter Bunn and his colleagues have done well so far in implementing the new approach to schools. All parties, including the public, should be encouraged to utilize the policy to the fullest extent.

A Clear Voice in the Peninsula

ALTHOUGH A THIRTY PER cent turnout of eligible voters is hardly evidence of wide enthusiasm, no one can misunderstand the meaning of Saturday's school-construction referendum in District 63, covering the Saanich Peninsula north of Royal Oak.

The better than three-to-one majority recorded in favor of the money vote leaves no doubt of the municipalities' intentions regarding school rooms—an opinion confirmed by the fact that every one of the nine polling areas shared in the favorable totals. Clearly the public has awakened to the unsatisfactory conditions posed by last December's narrow rejection of a supplementary building vote.

It is now up to the provincial government to recognize the expressed wish of the people and provide the approximately $3 millions required to complement the district share of $1 million. Too many of such votes have been put into cold storage by provincial government delay. But District 63 is already feeling the pinch and the building programs should be authorized now.



Letters

Letters will be considered for publication only if the writer is clearly identified to the editor, who may permit pen names at his discretion. Submissions will be edited and may be condensed. Short letters are favored. None will be returned.

Those Evictions

In a recent article in the Times headed "Legal Advice Being Sought for Students" Mr. Frketich says "several students have been evicted from apartments, and could have used a lawyer's assistance."

While we all extend our sympathy to students evicted from apartments, we must look also at the other side of the picture.

Why were they evicted? No landlord will evict a good tenant. On the other hand, if the tenant's behavior is such as to annoy other tenants, or compromise the good name of the apartment block, then there is no other course open to the landlord but to evict the offending persons. In such a case legal advice to the students would not be much help. Maurice Rockwood, 2464 Plumer.

Fault Not With Bob

Re the recent criticism of Bob Strachan by the young people of the NDP. I think the fault lies not in Mr. Strachan, but rather in the obsolete socialist ideas the NDP espouses.

If one is not a socialist by 21, one has no heart. If one is a socialist by 40, one has no head.

My personal opinion is that Bob Strachan is a courageous man—one who can and will face facts, something his followers are loath to do.—M. P. Paine, 3620 Quadra.

FROM THE SOLITUDES

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Frontier Assets Were Lost in the Rush to the Cities

NO STRANGER can begin to understand the American people, or the meaning of their November election, until he searches out the true origin of their nature. It will be discovered in the lonely places, not in the cities. Since the founding of Jamestown in 1607 the frontier, though now almost deserted, has remained, like a man's boyhood memories, the dominating influence on the American mind. All this is familiar to historians as an abstract theory, a piece of retrospective wisdom, but as a physical fact the frontier is known in our time to a small minority of Americans.

Hutchison

In the ghettos of New York, the slums of Chicago or the bungaloid wastes of Los Angeles uncounted millions watch, every night, the frontier's durable fairy story, the endless adventure of cowboys and Indians. They watch it from a safe, remote distance on television, aware that it is mere fiction, and bad fiction at that and yet they feel curiously involved in those good old days, now gone. So they are, though not as they suppose.

All the vices and virtues of a great people, all the stirrings and convulsions of the present election campaign, all the high hopes, the confusion and the despair, come out of the frontier. The modern American has moved to the city but in his imagination and dream-life, his private universe, he cannot bear to leave the ancestral womb. With all its machines and gadgetry, its wealth and its power, this civilization, perhaps more than any other, is gripped by a quivering, aching nostalgia.

Recently I have been exploring some parts of the frontier as it actually exists today—more solitary, less peopled than it was 50 years ago, before the mass retreat to the cities. Riding through the mountains of Wyoming, one sees what the first white men saw from their covered wagons, quite unchanged except for minor scars here and there, the smoke of a distant village, some white-faced cattle ruminating in the autumn sun and, a gleaming speck in the sky, the jet plane bound for Denver, New York or London.

One also sees, at their source, the vices and virtues now transferred from the frontier to the headlines and the television screens while the frightened outside world asks what is happening to its most powerful nation.

The besetting vice of the frontier, its violence, its cruelty and its indifference to human suffering, will not be detected by the stranger in the wilderness in the little town or the friendly ranch house. But at Emily Flender's spread near Dubois, I stumbled on a library of books recording, in print and photographs, the story of this land as it used to be:

What a story it is! What a breed of red men inhabited the Rocky Mountains before the white men came to complete the largest conquest and commit some of the worst crimes of history. The Indians in these parts, as the photographs show, were of superb physique, with faces far more handsome and intelligent than ours. A chief like the famous Joseph of the Nez Perce tribe, who won every battle against the invaders but the last, seems to dwarf the contemporary candidates of politics, and Chief Curly was so magnificent in build and countenance that with him as a model Michelangelo would have carved a better David.

If the white man's violence, and his accidental possession of superior weapons, extinguished the native culture and seized its land, there were great virtues on the frontier — the virtues of courage, of self-reliance, neighborliness and prodigal generosity. It is this strange mixture of good and evil that the white man has taken into the city and tried to tame and civilize.

He has not fully succeeded so far, as the daily news of crime, riot and miscellaneous folly reminds us, not only in the United States but everywhere. For we can see now, as our fathers did not, that the change from the frontier to the city was too fast, too wrenching and traumatic to be undergone without grave consequences, physical and spiritual. Man, who had mastered the frontier after some three centuries of experience, was not ready for the different urban life that machinery built for him overnight. And this single fact explains most of the current troubles that baffle our statesmen, economists and psychologists.

No wonder, then, that modern men seek the frontier through television and a few even return to it, briefly, in an automobile or an airplane, for their annual vacation. But they always flee back to the city, that flame irresistible to the moth, and the frontier is becoming empty again.

Of course, it was never what modern man imagines or anything like its phoney picture on television. The cowboy, its central figure, was not like his popular image, either, not a romantic hero or misplaced knight of chivalry but in most cases a hard-working, long-suffering drudge who lived under conditions and earned wages now forbidden by law.

His present successors are much better off, but they, too, feel the pull of dreams while they watch the electrical box at night. They know from their own lives that it is false in its picture of the frontier and yet true, as most myths are, in certain secret dimensions unsuspected by the producers and actors.

My new friend, Shorty, the head wrangler at the TX ranch, has spent nearly three score years and ten in the saddle, he pretends to have no illusions and he will pass the winter sensibly on the warm beaches of California but, come next spring, he will be back in the Wyoming mountains because he can find happiness nowhere else.

I wondered, when I left him at the corral gate with a band of last spring's clumsy colts, whether any of my city friends would ever achieve the contentment written on his face of leather or his state of higher education in life's essentials—one man who had accumulated little wealth by the world's reckoning but everything he needed. Most of us in North America cannot claim that success.

UNITED NATIONS, NEW YORK CITY

By WILLIAM R. FRYE

The Signs Are Favorable for a Vietnam Settlement

TWO important factors make this a good time for a total bombing halt and meaningful Vietnam peace negotiations, UN people believe.

The factors are:

1. Hanoi has only three more months to deal with President Johnson, after which it seems likely to find Richard M. Nixon, figuratively speaking, on the other side of the table. In North Vietnamese eyes, this almost certainly would be a change for the worse. Nixon has the reputation of being a hawk—that is, a tough anti-Communist unlikely to negotiate a "soft" withdrawal.

Frye

Johnson, on the other hand, while hardly an easy mark for Hanoi, may wish to leave office in a blaze of peacemaking glory.

There is, moreover, a presidential election in the offing; and while Johnson has rarely shown a great passion for Hubert H. Humphrey, the Democratic candidate, he would share Humphrey's humiliation if the latter were badly defeated.

Such a defeat would be interpreted as a repudiation of the Johnson administration. Dramatic progress toward a Vietnam peace might fend it off—and may be the only thing that could do so.

All this could work to the advantage of the North Vietnamese, and they seem to realize it.

2. The Soviet Union has a motive of self-interest to help push for a settlement at this time.

Moscow is seeking a post-Czechoslovak detente with the West, hoping to erase some of the damage the invasion did to her posture in the world, and to her relations with the United States. Progress toward peace in Vietnam would readily serve that purpose. Some UN sources suspect there already has been Soviet help. They believe Moscow had a hand in producing the current battlefield lull, and predict the lull will continue if, as they expect, all bombings of the North ceases.

Sharp and increasing tension on the Soviet-Chinese border in the area of Sinkiang apparently has helped to increase Moscow's interest in rapprochment with the West. Even the Nationalist Chinese confirm the existence of such tension.

Peking, according to Taipeh, has reinforced its land and air forces in the Sinkiang area, accusing the Russians of having done so and of having sent agents across the border from Inner Mongolia.

Balloon-carried Chinese leaflets, floated back across the border into Soviet territory, accuse Moscow of "selling out" the Viet Cong. They link the Soviet Union with the United States as China's "number one enemy."

The fact that in Europe, NATO ministers are scheduled to meet in mid-November to review their defence posture and their attitude toward the Kremlin may also have lent urgency to Russia's bid for a detente.

Still a further motive is believed to be impelling both Moscow and Hanoi toward a Vietnam settlement.

The war itself has not been going well for the Reds. Three Communist offensives this year have been blunted, with major losses, and efforts to mount a fourth have been consistently frustrated.

Every sign is that from the Communist point of view, the chances of negotiating a "good settlement" are getting worse.

The United States would not be wise to hold out, on this basis, UN people say.

The ideal time to negotiate any war, they point out, is when both sides have put as much into the conflict as they wish or feel able to put, and see no prospect of improving their position, at commensurate cost, by further effort.

Both the United States and the Soviet Union may be at that point, and if Russia is, then Hanoi, they say, may have to be.

An indication that Hanoi is willing, and perhaps even eager, to get down to business is seen in a remark by Xuan Thuy, its representative at the Paris talks, that there is still time for Johnson to make progress before the end of his term.

At about the same time that this remark was dropped, Secretary of State Dean Rusk was twice closeted in New York with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

Gromyko speculated publicly about the value of Vietnam peace talks in Paris or "some other place," apparently suggesting the possiblity of a larger conference embracing both South Vietnam and the National Liberation Front, political arm of the Viet Cong.

The hitch in all this, many fear, is that although Washington, Moscow and perhaps Hanoi are nearing a readiness to settle the conflict, there is no sign that Saigon is.

Saigon clearly feels it has not yet exhausted all chance of improving its positon on the battlefield, at commensurate cost.

Some of South Vietnam's Asian allies, including Thailand, are generally sympathetic to this view, not wishing to see a precipitate American withdrawal from Southeast Asia.

Nanaimo — The explosion of a powder house at Cumberland occurred at 4:45 this morning when several men were getting their powder preparations to go on shift in the mines. Four men were injured, and two of them, John Baird and Alex Armstrong are in hospital.

McNiven's boarding house, situated 20 yards away, was blown to matchwood; the inmates fortunately escaped serious injury. Plate glass in the business section of the town was all demolished.

Nixon and Humphrey: What Makes Them Tick?

'He Gives Everything Except of Himself'

By DON OBERDORFER

Richard Nixon

Standing atop a picnic table surrounded by deaf children, Richard M. Nixon spoke, through a sign-language interpreter, of the Quaker grace of his deaf Aunt Olive and of the special qualities of hearing and soul which beautify the lives of the afflicted.

The brief stop at the Michigan State School of the Deaf was prearranged, placed in his Flint, Mich., schedule by an enterprising advance man and recorded on film by CBC, NBC and ABC. Yet it was, withal, curiously affecting both to the candidate and to those who have traveled with him these 30,000 miles and six weeks since Sept. 4.

For perhaps the first time in his campaign, Richard Nixon had succumbed to sentiment, and the impact within—according to those who are closest to him—was substantial.

Chat Before Bed

Nixon spoke privately of the children while in the "holding room" of the Flint auditorium, waiting to flay George Wallace before the multitude of screaming cheerleaders and quiet spectators, and he brought up the children again in chatting before bed that night in Minneapolis.

Some time during the evening, he telephoned his firend, evangelist Billy Graham, and spoke of his dialogue with the deaf.

Members of the traveling press corps, many of whom are respectful of Nixon the politician and puzzled about Nixon the man, have analyzed and re-analyzed the rare event.

The fact is, almost none of the reporters feels reasonably certain about what makes Nixon tick or how he truly feels. One diligent and shrewd correspondent who has traveled with him for many months says "I have hardly a clue."

In the last analysis, however, the true character of the man may well be the most important issue of all this year or any other year.

Face to Meet Faces

A president, Nixon himself suggested recently to the United Press International editors in Washington, is selected less on specific policies and pronouncements than on "the judgment of the man," his background and his character.

This is a difficult—some say, impossible—task for an outsider in Nixon's case. In the opinion of those traveling beside him in his campaign, as well as some of those who know him best, Nixon's public and political posture is—in the words of T. S. Eliot's poem—"A face to meet the faces that you meet."

Whether orating and gesturing before the cheers of the multitude, standing alone before a selected panel of citizens in his "Nixon format" television shows, in conversation with a small group or the increasingly rare head-to-head discussion, he seems always to be at work and rarely to be spontaneous. He lets his hair down, if at all, only with a few of his closest friends and associates.

In an effort to move beyond the "old Nixon" or the "new Nixon" to the real Nixon beneath, some intimate friends were approached with a single question. "If you had to choose a single situation or circumstance over the years that illustrates the essence of Nixon the man, what would it be?"

The answers may be one-sided and self-serving, the cause of friendship as well as that of politics being involved, and some of the comments are distinguished as much for what they do not reveal as what they do.

Yet some things can be learned, and one such point—surprisingly—is that each of the respondents began or ended by saying that Richard Nixon is essentially a "shy man." As portrayed by these friends, he is a man of great inner discipline and self-control, ordinary in his tastes but extraordinary in his determination, his energy and his capacity.

'A Gentle Man'

In private, they say, he is not cold but warm and even—in the words of one—"a gentle man."

Their comments illustrate one point—that Nixon, despite his public image as a withdrawn, unfeeling man — has managed to gain and hold the intense loyalty of a group of obviously sensible people who know him well. Their views can be a useful counterweight to what everyone else knows, or thinks he knows, about Richard Nixon.

Herbert Klein, Nixon's director of communications and his press secretary during the vice-presidential years, thought of a moment during the 1959 Russian trip. The Soviet foreign ministry had summoned Klein to suddenly threaten to rescind some of the privileges—including exemption from normal censorship—which had been granted the Nixon press party.

"Acting on my own, I refused to accept this, and I gave the Russians four hours to change their minds unless they were prepared for action by the vice-president to make the whole story known," Klein recalled.

"I left there a worried man, because I am not a diplomat and I had no instructions from Nixon. I quickly sought him out. He backed me up 100 per cent, and the Soviets backed down. He's the kind of person who will give you room to work, and who will back you up in what you do."

Mrs. Jack Drown of Los Angeles, who is traveling with the campaign tour, has known both Richard and Pat Nixon since 1941 and with her husband is among their closest friends. Her picture of the essential Nixon is in the dining room of his New York apartment, surrounded by his wife and children.

She remembers a recent moment when the girls asked for instructions about the answers they should give in campaign interviews. "Well, listen," replied their father, "you should just answer in any way you think you should."

Faith in Family

"He had complete faith and confidence in his family," said Mrs. Drown, "and he is a gentle person, a gentle man in private, with a quality of sweetness he inherited from his mother. He has been injured quite a bit, but I have never heard him complain or feel sorry for himself. He listens. He wants to know what others think."

To Robert Haldeman, the Los Angeles advertising man who managed Nixon's 1962 gubernatorial campaign and is his traveling chief of staff this year, the true Nixon walked recently along the fog-shrouded beach at Montauk, Long Island, just before being nominated for president by the Republical party at Miami Beach.

"We had lost the secret service and were alone. Nixon was musing about the enormity of the job ahead, of bringing the country back together, trying to find again what used to be there. He was talking of his great concern about communication with young people, and his desire to lead the country rather than just govern it.

"The point," said Haldeman, "is not that he can do all these things, but that in his heart there is a very deep yearning and determination to do them."

'Mechanical Man'

Some of the qualities which his friends and associates see are rarely projected clearly on the campaign trail. After hearing his stock speech many times and his professional, carefully-conceived "spontaneous" television panel appearances over and over in different states, some reporters have called him, in private, "a mechanical man—a plastic man."

Nixon has wined them and dined them generously, led them to the best rooms in the best hotels, arranged for jet planes with pretty stewardesses, provided pleasant and efficient staff associates to answer questions and distribute position papers and transcripts of television appearances.

He has given of everything, in short, except himself. The something he is withholding is the essence.

If he is elected president, the nation is likely to discover only slowly and by indirection the nature of the true Nixon. Only then will it be clear whether the talk to the deaf children was genuine, or whether it was merely a political change of pace in a well-mechanized campaign for the presidency.

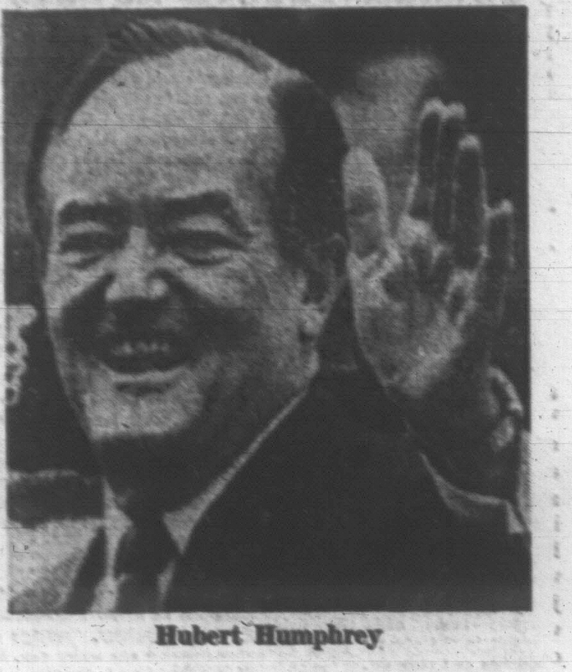
'The Happy Warrior' Out of Tune With Times

By DAVID S. BRODER



Hubert Humphrey

Hubert H. Humphrey, who describes himself quite accurately as "a very positive thinker," told Marie Torre, the Pittsburgh television interviewer, the other day how he came by the optimism that is so much a part of his nature and so much at the root of his current political troubles.

"My father," he said, "always told me that most of your troubles are in your own mind."

That is a terribly revealing sentence.

Optimism is so much the essence of Humphrey that his biographer, Winthrop Griffith, inevitably began his book with the words: "He is a happy man. He looks uncomfortable when he is not smiling."

Admirable Quality

So when Humphrey dubbed his 1964 campaign plane "The Happy Warrior," no one thought it an affectation.

Cheerfulness is an admirable quality in a man. It has stood Humphrey in good stead, permitting him to shake off the disappointments and defeats he has suffered in a fashion that commanded admiration from all.

Yet this year, it must be said, Humphrey's cheerful optimism has betrayed him. The "politics of happiness" proclaimed as his goal when he announced his candidacy last spring, came to sound like a mockery after Robert Kennedy's murder.

His good humor enrages dissident Democrats. A Vietnam war protester, who saw Humphrey marching in a parade in Pittsburgh, shouted in rage: "Why are you smiling when men are dying?"

Doggedly Upbeat

No one who knows Humphrey believes for a moment that the war in his eyes is anything but a curse. But, where Kennedy and Eugene McCarthy could agonize in public over the war, Humphrey remained doggedly upbeat.

His bedrock belief that things are bound to get better extends to his attitude toward his staff, which is notorious among politicians for its mediocrity.

Humphrey has borne with the limitations of his aides for years, in apparent confidence that they were bound to improve, but he is campaigning today without the kind of assistance a presidential candidate deserves, and this can be blamed on no one but himself.

The indulgence he extends to his staff he also uses to excuse bad habits of his own, particularly his loose tongue.

As a speaker, Humphrey rarely lets one sentence suffice when five paragraphs come to mind. In the first week of his campaign, he caused himself uncounted damage by failing to weigh his own words.

Undercut Planning

In seeking to offer some cheer to a young questioner in Philadelphia and a McCarthy delegate in Denver, he managed to make statements about the withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam and about his own attitude toward the bombing of North Vietnam that undercut months of careful decision-making.

Through such self-indulgence, the whole concept of a "politics of confrontation," which was sound enough in itself, was seriously compromised by Humphrey's generous tendency to tell each questioner something he thought he wanted to hear.

That same optimism and self-indulgence may well be at the root of Humphrey's problems with the Vietnam war issue. This reporter is convinced that Humphrey believes the war is a tragic misuse of American power, but over the years he has allowed himself to believe that something was bound to turn up to provide an escape from the situation.

Two years ago this summer, he told a private meeting of the national governors conference in Los Angeles that the enemy was over-extended and could not hold out much longer. This summer, he was hinting broadly at an imminent breakthrough in the Paris peace talks. The other day, he said he could "confidently predict" that "some" American troops could start coming home within months.

Such oft-repeated and ill-founded hopes raise a real question as to whether Humphrey has, in fact, faced up to the hard choices the United States confronts in Vietnam.

Obvious Sincerity

Similarly, his tendency to put the most cheerful interpretation on every situation also impedes his ability to deal candidly with the American domestic crisis. Humphrey has dedicated his campaign, with obvious sincerity, to the cause of "national unity."

But he has yet to acknowledge the contribution of the Johnson administration to the disunity that prevails. As a result, he has not yet made the tough-minded decision that many Democrats think is necessary—to separate himself from the divisive aspects of the administration's record.

It is well and good to call for "One America," as he does, but Humphrey has yet to indicate an understanding that America can be reunited only under leadership of a different kind from that offered by Mr. Johnson. By not distinguishing himself from the president, Humphrey in effect is forcing those who are seeking a change to turn to his opponent.

Not Coming Across

This is, one suspects, what really ails his campaign. He has made his slogan "the New Day," but he has not yet put the Old Day firmly to bed.

For all his decency, for all his honor and for all his contributions to the public welfare in the last 20 years, Hubert Humphrey today is not coming across as a credible alternative to President Johnson.

He now says that "events" will have more to do with the election outcome than the words of any of the candidates, but if this is more than the last gasp of his perennial optimism, he has not explained it.

The good heart and the cheerful spirit that are Hubert Humphrey are endearing qualities; but by themselves they will not win for him this fall. A president is more than a cheerleader.

Mental Illness Inborn?

By JOHN NEWELL
New Magazine

The common occurrence of mental illness is something of a puzzle, in view of the law of the survival of the fittest through natural selection.

Most other forms of illness come about through some other organism, usually a micro-organism, preying upon or competing with man.

But mental illness is usually the result of some wholly human factor and whether or not mental illnesses are precipitated by external conditions they are often linked to some inborn psychological weakness.

Such weaknesses are so common that one in seven of the whole population of Britain consults a doctor every year because of some form of mental disturbance.

It is certainly surprising, theoretically, that the human race, which has become the dominant species on Earth through a long and ruthless process of natural selection in which only the fittest might have been expected to have survived to breed, should still be so bedevilled by inborn mental weaknesses.

Why do mental weaklings still exist?

A new theory to explain the nautre and frequent occurrence of mental illness has been put forward, by Dr. John Price of the Medical Research Council's Unit working upon psychiatric genetics.

●

His idea is that mental illness is like the human appendix; it is the vestigial remains of something which was once vital to us as a species.

That is, or rather was, a hierarchical behavior pattern, a sort of human pecking order.

Every hen in a farmyard has a hen which is immediately superior to it and another which is inferior. It can peck the hens beneath it without being pecked back, but it has to submit to being pecked by superior hens without resisting.

The same sort of dominance hierarchy, as psychiatrists call it, is found among some of the apes, especially baboons.

Dr. Price's idea is that dominance hierarchies were essential for early human survival, as essential as the rigid hierarchies found in a modern army today.

In the early history of man, behavior which promoted the smooth functioning of the essential hierarchical system would have been characterized by anxiety towards superiors and irritability towards inferiors.

Other characteristics which would help to keep the hierarchy in being would include the capacity to get worked up about being promoted or demoted, to be elated at the prospect of promotion and depressed at demotion.

This rather unpleasant behavior pattern would have been necessary for the survival of a group of very early men, but in extreme forms the qualities required would take on the characteristics of mental illnesses.

●

Anxiety neurosis and schizophrenia would be the extreme manifestations of anxiety towards superiors. Aggressive personality would be the extreme form of irritability towards inferiors.

Mania would be the result of over-excitement at promotion in the hierarchy, depressive illness that of excessive depression about a demotion or the mere prospect of demotion.

Today human society no longer needs even the unexaggerated forms of the behavior best suited to maintaining human pecking orders.

But the personality traits involved have been so deeply ingrained by natural selection and our emergence into the position of dominant species has been so recent, that the traits and their exaggerated forms, in the shapes of mental illnesses—like the equally useless appendix—live on today and, presumably, will take millions of years to disappear.

●

The theory, if it is confirmed, could have valuable practical consequences in medicine.

For example, the value of a sedative drug in alleviating chronic anxiety and schizophrenia could be tested by seeing how much it affected behavior in baboons, which have retained hierarchical behavior.

If this kind of behavior is found to be controlled by certain parts of the brain only, in baboons, then the equivalent parts might become the focus of new surgical attacks upon mental illness in humans.

THE GALLUP POLL

Special Status Unwanted Say Most Quebec Voters

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

The big majority of Quebec citizens who do not want their province to separate from the rest of Canada are equally convinced that Quebec should not have a "special status" within Confederation. They are not calling for more power for Quebec than other provinces have.

This fact is revealed in a special Gallup Poll study carried out to ascertain opinions on the issue of "special status" among those who do not favor separatism.

Interviewers for the Poll first asked whether or not the public approved the suggestion that Quebec should separate from the rest of Canada and become an independent country. About three in four voters in Quebec—much the same ratio as elsewhere—opposed the idea.

As a second step, interviewers asked all those in the scientifically selected sample who opposed the idea of separation this question:

"Do you think the Province of Quebec should have a special status within Confederation, with more powers than other provinces, or do you think it should have the same powers as all the other provinces?"

Reaction of those Canadians opposed to the idea of Quebec's separation from Canada is shown below. The almost unanimous opposition in Ontario and the West is a level seldom reached in the Poll's history of public opinion research.

This is a question on which age has little effect. Canadians in all age groups have opinions which match the national average very closely.

	CANADA 76% Opposed	QUEBEC 72% Opposed	ONTARIO 75% Opposed	WEST 79% Opposed
Special status ..	6%	20%	1%	1%

LONG MARINE OUTFALLS GUARANTEE NO RETURN

Sewage should not return to the beach if marine outfalls are long enough, an associate professor of sanitation engineering at the University of California said Saturday.

Dr. Robert Selleck—he has two degrees in civil engineering and a PhD in sanitation engineering—told the sewage forum at the McPherson Playhouse there is an intense mixing of water locally.

Ninety per cent of coliform will disappear in four hours and dilution "can cut down on bacteria many fold".

He said: "We believe the (planned) outfalls are of sufficient length that this sewage will never come on the coast."

◆

Land Use for Waste Declared Hazardous

Raw sewage on the land is a "very real health hazard," a Vancouver doctor said Saturday.

Dr. Alfred Nelson, who has specialized in public health and is director of health services for B.C. Hydro, said inadequate septic tanks and tile fields result in the effluent going into ditches and streams.

"In areas where sewage is not properly disposed of, a very real problem exists with communicable disease," he told the sewage forum at the McPherson Playhouse.

NOT SERIOUS FACTOR

"Raw sewage in the sea is more nebulous," he said. "I can say that a very large mass of evidence tends to show that sewage on beaches and in the sea is not a serious factor in spreading disease."

This point was touched on by a British scientific and medical study called Memorandum 37 which concluded there is little or no danger to health in bathing in sewage-contaminated water.

This report said results of exhaustive studies of beaches in England and Wales "should go a long way towards relieving anxiety about any presumed danger of contracting infectious diseases such as enteric fever or poliomyelitis from sea bathing."

FEW EXCEPTIONS

And it said that, with the exception of a few aesthetically revolting beachers, "sewage or contaminated sea water can, for all practical purposes, be ignored."

Dr. Nelson agreed that there is a nuisance hazard because "sewage is offensive to the senses, no doubt."

But he described health hazards of sewage as "far more important."

He said the solutions posed in the 1965 engineering report that is the basis for regional plans for sewers are "hardly unique."

Many coastal towns in North America and Europe discharge raw sewage into the sea under controlled conditions.

While in Europe last month, he read a newspaper account of approval given to Bognor Regis, a resort on the south coast of England, to go ahead with a 1½-mile outfall."

Such cities, he said, are not trying to pollute the sea but to discharge sewage safely to prevent its pollution of the land.

Sea Only Repository For City's Effluent

The policy of the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health is to support disposal of sewage at sea and in deep water, it was said Saturday.

Senior medical health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread said 15 million gallons of water a day are being used in this area, most of it running off in septic tanks and sewers.

He said the projected sewage flow of 40 million gallons a day in 50 years (six million gallons go through sewers daily now) "can only be done at sea."

Primary treatment only may be required, but this was a decision to be made by the provincial government. The effluent could be disposed without any treatment except comminution.

Sewage disposal on the land was possible in the Sahara but most of the Victoria area was unsuitable because of rock and hardpan sub-soil.

INCREASED POLLUTION

"The suggestion that 40 million gallons can be pushed into the land will result in the effluent running into ditches, streams and lakes and this increases pollution," he said.

This could result in disease and he specifically mentioned typhoid.

"We can expect an epidemic of one of these major diseases unless we install sewers," he said.

Experts Defend Sea Disposal

By ROGER STONEBANKS

A panel of experts Saturday shot down almost every argument against marine disposal of sewage in Greater Victoria.

The panel included experts in sanitation, medicine and engineering.

They lectured in laymen's terms to make their points, but few laymen came out to listen, submit briefs or ask questions.

Between 100 and 150 persons attended the conference during most of the day at the 837-seat McPherson Playhouse but this dwindled to well below 100 as the session drew to a close at 6 p.m.

NO SURPRISES

Very little that was said between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. had not been recorded at some time in the past on the sewage disposal controversy.

This controversy reached its height during the summer when the Capital Regional District decided to hold the one-day meeting and bring in experts, some from as far away as California.

The regional district is responsible for implementing a $23 million program of constructing main sewer pipe lines and rebuilt outfalls which would run into deep sea water with the sewage being comminuted, or shredded up, before discharge.

Indications from the provincial government, however, are that primary sewage treatment plants will be required. This represents an additional cost of $26 million for the plants, which remove some of the solids in sewage by screening or settling.

Dr. M. J. Stewart, of Associated Engineering in Vancouver, gave the consensus of the day when he said the underlying reason for choosing deep-sea outfalls "is economic disposal with no detrimental effects."

He referred to a British medical-scientific study called Memorandum 37 which concluded that raw sewage in the sea does not constitute a health hazard.

The report, Dr. Stewart said, indicated the risk from bathing at polluted beaches is "negligible," other studies have shown no harm is done to sea life by disposal of sewage, he said.

The main reason for keeping beaches clean is esthetic — to keep a clean appearance.

Memorandum 37 was reported to be still valid by British authorities as recently as August, Dr. Stewart said.

Engineer Jack Priestman, of Victoria, who worked on the sewage study for the regional board, later referred to the same report and said Dr. Stewart had outlined all the points it had to make.

The first full report of this memorandum appeared in Victoria Friday in The Martlet, the university student newspaper, which was widely distributed at the McPherson Playhouse.

The first citizen brief was presented by Mrs. W. R. Walters, on behalf of an organization called the Capital Region and Brentwood Bay Conservation and Pollution Control Association.

The group opposed disposal of sewage at sea and recommended utilization of all wastes, rather than disposal of them.

A number of assertions in a prelude, including connecting red tide, bloom with sewage, dissolved oxygen, breakages in marine outfalls and other points were rejected by the experts.

Dr. Richard Pomeroy, a professional engineer from Pasadena with a Ph.D. in chemistry and long experience in sewage disposal, said there is "not any evidence" that red tide—an abnormal growth of planktonic organisms—have been influenced by ocean outfalls.

And Prof. Warren Kaufman, a University of California engineering professor, said utilization of sewage has failed because there was no market for the product or the market itself failed, although he admitted there were exceptions to this.

A brief by W. G. Smith on behalf of a group called the Smoke and Noise Abatement Society of Victoria urged study of alternative methods of financing sewers.

LAND SALES TAX

His recommendation was for the Shortt-Elliott plan, or a capital gains tax on land sale. If a parcel of land was sold, and there was a capital gain of $2,000, there there would be a levy of roughly 10 per cent against the capital gain.

Mrs. E. Smith of South Pender Island objected to sea disposal of sewage "treated or untreated because it causes some kind of pollution." She supported composting and returning the end product to the land to feed the soil.

Prof. Kaufman said that, despite the exceptions, "we can't find enough situations where composting is applicable" because of no market. This had happened at Berkley where no one would buy the piles of compost made there.

A brief from Enquai (environment quality), a university-based study group, suggested consideration of alternatives to marine disposal and more research and it regarded the outfall system as only an interim measure.

The Victoria branch of the Consumer Association of Canada said "some alternative to ocean dumping must be used" but it didn't give an alternative.

Dr. Alfred Nelson, director of health services for B.C. Hydro who has postgraduate education in public health and hygiene, said the whole field of sewage disposal hasn't produced an innovation for years. Local authorities have to go along with the methods that exist, that have been tried and tested.

He also took exception to the use of the word "dumping" saying that "we are dealing with a very low dispersion of solids in sewage water which are further diluted in the receiving (sea) water."

And, he added, viruses can get through sewage treatment plants.

Dr. Pomeroy said he took exception to one remark in the brief that by extending outfalls to deep water "we are only extending these harmful effects."

He said the present effects from short outfalls—most of the ones in Greater Victoria extend only to low tide—are because the sewage is not diffused and diluted.

A brief from Gordon Campbell, who was recently unsuccessful in spearheading opposition to the Saanich sewerage referendum, urged a system of land filtration, disposal of effluent on parks, playing fields or golf courses or to the sea if there was no other practical use, plus more research into the subject.

Prof. Kaufman said a land disposal system such as mentioned by Mr. Campbell will fail for economic reasons. He said such systems should only be considered when water is valuable and this could be the justification for the expense and there was no water shortage locally.

Dr. Pomeroy said there would be times when evaporation is zero, because it is raining, but the sewage will flow all the time.

He said the brief implies that the Victoria area continues its present ways, until the research is over many years ahead—with no guarantee of an answer, "without taking steps that can obviously be taken at this time."

Answering one question, Prof. Kaufman said he has "yet to see a more unsatisfactory place" than Greater Victoria for land disposal of sewage, because of the heavy soil and rock conditions.

Egypt Rejects Israeli Offer In Peace Move

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad rejected Sunday Israel's nine-point formula for peace in the Middle East. He said the points were "just repetition of what the Israelis were saying during the last 15 months."

Riad also said a start could be made toward peace only if Israel would say it was ready to implement the November, 1967, resolution of the Security Council.

Riad said in a telephone interview he had stated Egypt's position on the whole subject in a memorandum Saturday to Gunnar V. Jarring of Sweden, UN special peace envoy in the Middle East. Jarring received a memorandum on Israel's position four days earlier.

The November resolution calls for Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territories matched by Arab recognition of Israel's right to exist.

Israel's memorandum said peace could come only through Arab-Israeli agreement — not through proposals or assurances from outsiders.

The memorandum amplified nine principles Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban laid down in a speech to the UN General Assembly Oct. 8.

Give Indian Break Pleads Magistrate

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE, Alta. (CP) — An Alberta magistrate Saturday asked about 90 municipal police to give Indian people a break.

Circuit Magistrate William A. Shaw of Red Deer said he is convinced that Indians need not always be jailed for intoxication.

"I know that many native people are being arrested for intoxication charges these days, but I am wondering if it is always a necessary measure.

It is wrong for a man to lose his freedom over a lousy bottle of beer," he said.

"We all have taken a lot of drunken white people home. Why can't this be done with the native people?"

Magistrate Shaw, a former RCMP staff sergeant, said policies on arrest should be developed according to local circumstances.

"Other methods of keeping the peace should be studied, especially when we consider the number of Indian people being taken into custody against the much smaller white jail population figures."

Magistrate Shaw said he enforced the law on the Blood Indian reserve for 10 years and found the Indian population to be "a fine bunch of people."

"Some of them were no good, but there are more white people who are no good, and neither race should be penalized or discriminated against because of its bad eggs," he said.

Battlefields To Be Toured

Five veterans from Victoria will participate in national observances on Capital Hill, Ottawa, on Nov. 11. They will be transported by the RCAF and all expenses will be paid by the Department of Veterans Affairs.

The veterans are Robert England, W. J. Knotts, H. S. Rourke, W. B. Monteith and James Slater.

PM Plans White Paper On Inflation

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said last week a government statement or white paper on measures to stabilize prices and costs will be delivered within three weeks.

The prime minister was replying in the Commons to a question by Opposition Leader Robert L. Stanfield, who noted a speech by Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada, urging "guidelines" against inflation.

Mr. Trudeau said he had met Mr. Rasminsky this week—prior to the governor's speech Thursday in Victoria—and had discussed price-cost restraints.

He had since "finalized in my own mind" the government action that would be announced shortly.

Mr. Trudeau said this would not come at the same time as Finance Minister Edgar Benson's budget speech next Tuesday night.

Price-cost increases had to be attacked by other means than just monetary and fiscal policies.

Mr. Trudeau has held a number of private meetings with labor and business leaders to discuss a program of voluntary restraints. The government's intention to develop the program was first announced last Nov. 30 in a mini-budget delivered by Mr. Benson's predecessor in the finance portfolio, Mitchell Sharp.

'Young Vet' Of Chicago At Uvic

Jerry Rubin, a leader of the American New Left and vanguard of the youth revolt during the Democratic convention in Chicago, will visit the University of Victoria Tuesday.

He will discuss "America — the Sick Society" during a meeting of the Uvic political forum, at 12:30 in the Student Union Building.

Rubin is a founder and leader of the American Youth International Party — a group become known as the Yippies.

One of the major spokesmen for the student New Left movement in the U.S., he is the second person invited by Uvic students to explain his views.

Last week about 400 students listened to New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas.

Ex-Sailor Dies at 86

Funeral services were held at McCall Brothers funeral chapel Saturday for William John Davis, of 1749 Adanac.

A veteran sailor, Mr. Davis died Wednesday at the age of 86. In the 1890s he went to sea as a steward's boy and served aboard The Islander taking supplies to the Klondike.

Later he signed on as deck boy with the Canadian Australian line.

Mr. Davis was shipwrecked north of Mary Island when he joined the steamer Brixham on her voyage to Skagway. He was quartermaster on the deep-water ship, SS Devon, and spent three years in stern-wheelers plying the Yukon River.

He is survived by a son, Andrew McIntosh Davis.

Driver Fined For Leaving Crash Scene

Richard Gerdes, 3411 Lovat, has been fined $100 in central court for failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Gerdes hit a parked car and a fence on Bay Street and drove off, court was told.

In another case, an 18-year-old who pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance by shouting on Tyee Road was fined $25.

Police said Alvin M. Rach, CFB Esquimalt, shouted obscenities at them when they stopped his car in a routine roadcheck.

Shop Centres Facing Tough Opportunism

MONTREAL (CP) — Albert Sussman, executive vice-president of the International Council of Shopping Centres, says the shopping centre business was "never tougher" than it is today — but it never faced greater opportunities.

The New York executive told Friday's session of the council's Canadian regional conference that retailers are "pushing in every direction in their drive for expansion."

At the same time, he said, the mechanics of working out a deal between the shopping centres and the retailers "are increasingly harder to consummate."

Across the entire United States suitable land is harder to find and the cost of acquisition is higher, Mr. Sussman told the 190 developers, chain retailers, lenders and builders who gathered for the two-day meeting.

Key tenant deals keep narrowing the margin of profit and the cost of borrowing money was never higher. Apart from the high cost, the money may be available only by giving up a substantial share of the equity in the centres being developed.

Fishery Commission To Hold Annual Meet

TOKYO (AP) — The 15th annual meeting of the Canada-Japan-United States-North Pacific Fishery Commission will meet in Seattle Nov. 4 for a week's session, a joint announcement by the foreign ministry and Japanese fishery agency said today.

The announcement said discussion would centre on whether Japan is still bound by an agreement limiting Japanese fishing activities in certain areas in the north Pacific.

The limitations include fishing for halibut in waters other than the Bering Sea, for herring in parts of coastal waters of British Columbia.

Brenda Group Buying Mascot

Vancouver mining men headed by Brenda Mines president B. O. Brynelsen, of Noranda Mines, are offering $1.90 per share for 1 million Giant Mascot Mines Ltd. shares.

They want more than 20 per cent of the 4.6 million shares outstanding.

Giant Mascot is a nickel-copper producer near Hope and in the last six years it has exported to Japan more than $21 million worth of concentrates. It is preparing another property in B.C. formerly owned by Canam Copper.

'Peace Rally' Fever Fades

Export Climb To Continue

MONTEBELLO, Que. (CP) — Robinson Ord, chairman of the Canadian Export Association, said today Canadian exports probably will exceed $12,-billion this year.

He told the opening session of the association's 25th annual conference that the association has made a "material contribution" to the expansion of Canadian exports, which increased to more than $11 billion in 1967 from $6.8 billion in 1963.

However, he said, Canadian exporters are faced with the "compelling need to sustain growth in exports in order to maintain acceptable levels of employment" and their task will not be easy.

Sperry Rand Corp.

Sperry Rand Corp. has reported record net income of $18.47 million for the second quarter ended Sept. 30, compared with $17.35 million for the same period last year.

Earnings per share were unchanged at 54 cents. The per-share figure reflected an increase of over seven per cent in the average number of common shares outstanding over last year and the 10 per cent federal income tax surcharge.

Revenue for the second quarter was $389.43 million also a record and up from $380 million for the second quarter of last year.

Income for the first half amounted to a record $34.5 million of $1.01 a share, compared with $26.9 million or 84 cents, earned in the first half a year ago.

Thomson Papers

Directors of Thomson Newspapers Ltd. have approved a three-for-one split of the company's common stock.

An announcement Saturday said the proposal will be voted on Nov. 18.

The directors meeting Friday also approved a proposal to pay quarterly dividends of six cents a share starting Dec. 15. The new dividend would be equivalent to an annual rate of 72 cents compared with the current 56 cents.

Stock closed Friday at $55, up $3.

Merrill Island Up

Merrill Island Mining Corp. Ltd. reports net income of $184,896 or 3.4 cents a share for the year ended June 30, up from $59,757 or 1.1 cents in the previous 12 months.

Current assets were $3.47 million and current liabilities $125,327, leaving net working capital of $3.3 million compared with $2.9 million at the end of the previous year.

President R. P. Mills said a higher grade of ore is expected from a new open pit mine in the Chibougamau area, and this should offset to some extent the current decline in the price of copper.

Profits this year "should show a substantial increase as all pre-production expense has now been repaid."

Rothmans Confirms

Rothmans of Canada Ltd. announced Friday it has purchased all the common stock on Larus and Brother Co. Inc. of Richmond, Va.

The move was Rothmans of Canada's first into the United States tobacco market and involved a cash offer approved in principle by the board of Larus Investment Co. Inc. in August. Terms were not disclosed.

DOSCO-Hawker

Dominion Steel and Coal Corp. said Friday its debenture holders will be asked to meet in Montreal Nov. 18 to approve sale of some Dosco assets to Hawker Industries Ltd.

Approval will be sought for the sale of the Halifax Shipyards, Canadian Bridge and the Trenton, N.S., works of Dosco to Hawker Industries, which will become a subsidiary of Hawker Siddeley Canada Ltd. Hawker Siddeley now holds 77 per cent of Dosco's shares.

Cosmos Imperial

Cosmos Imperial Mills Ltd. will omit its quarterly dividend of 20 cents normally paid on its common stock in November, the Toronto Stock Exchange said.

Cosmos last paid a common stock dividend in August.

Corp. Fonciere Leaves Little

By BORIS MISKEW

MONTREAL (CP) — Noteholders with an investment of $2.6 million in the bankrupt Corporation Fonciere de Montreal were told Friday the most they can hope to recover will total between 10 and 13 per cent.

R. Victor Barnett, a Montreal chartered accountant appointed by Quebec Superior Court as trustee in the case, described the financial transactions of the investment firm as "terribly complex" and said that recovery of the remaining assets will take two or three years.

About 150 noteholders attended the three-hour meeting called by Royal Trust Co. in its capacity as trustee for the holders of some of the corporation's securities.

They accounted for an investment of $696,000 while another $903,500 was represented by proxy—for a total of $1.59 million, exceeding the 60 per cent required for a quorum.

Mr. Barnett said an attempt by the corporation, whose president at the time was Montreal financier Marc Bienvenu, to gain control of the Bank of Western Canada was one of the reasons for the financial failure of Corporation Fonciere.

ASSETS LOWER

Mr. Barnett, acting in his capacity as agent for the Royal Trust, prepared a financial statement based on information supplied by officers of the corporation and said his estimate of assets was considerably lower than those shown in the company's books.

He told the noteholders, many of them furious because of their apparent losses, that both the federal and provincial governments are making an investigation to determine whether there had been mismanagement by the company's officers.

Mr. Bienvenu resigned as president of Corporation Fonciere a year ago but continued to hold an interest in the company as well as in a number of other subsidiaries or associated enterprises.

The Bank of Western Canada, which had never got off the ground, attained assets of about $14.5 million before it was placed under liquidation—about the time Mr. Bievenu's financial empire began crumbling.

Mr. Barnett told the noteholders that assets attained through the liquidation of the Bank of Western Canada will go to demand debenture holders, who have first claim, and nothing would be left over to spread among the holders of series B, series C and series D securities.

These were the series that touched off the original petition for bankruptcy granted Sept. 24 after Corporation Fonciere fell in default in its payments.

Mr. Barnett said the Royal Trust began taking action against Corporation Fonciere last February after the company began falling behind in payments. It seized the company's remaining assets and launched the bankruptcy action after giving the company the 90-day notice to repay its creditors.

He said the company's total indebtedness is about $7,500,000 and that most of the investment was by small investors. However, the Bank of Montreal was among the larger investors with $250,000 sunk in corporation bonds.

The company's records showed profits of $100,963 in 1966 and $89,579 in 1967. There was no audited report for 1968 but an unaudited statement showed a loss of $1,277,000.

"I fear the loss was much greater than the report showed," Mr. Barnett said.

Exporters Told To Look Abroad For Markets

MONTEBELLO, Que. (CP) — Leading Canadian Exporters meet today to study ways of achieving a substantial growth in overseas markets instead of depending so heavily on the United States market.

The occasion is the annual meeting of the Canadian Export Association, which is opening a two-day session.

J. M. McAvity, Association president, said in an interview Sunday night that Canada's exports to the United States now account for close to 65 per cent of the country's total export trade.

He said this is an increase of about 12 per cent in the last five years, adding that Canadian exporters should be concerned about the country's "rapidly increasing dependence on the U.S. market."

Mr. McAvity, one of about 250 delegates attending the meeting, cited growing protectionism in many American industries and uncertainty over the attitude of the U.S. Congress following election of the new administration in the forthcoming November elections as grounds for concern.

The increased exports to the U.S. were attributed to the automotive and aircraft industries, with more than two-thirds of total export of manufactured goods being handled by these industries.

$ EXCHANGE

VICTORIA—Purchase of U.S. funds in terms of the Canadian dollar was quoted by the Royal Bank today at $1.07 1/16 for cheques, $1.08⅜ for cash, $1.05⅞ for silver. Sales were $1.07⅞ for cheques and $1.07⅝ for cash.

MONTREAL (CP)—The U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds was unchanged at $1.07 9/32. Pound sterling was up ⅛ at $2.38⅝.

NEW YORK (CP)—The Canadian dollar was down 1/64 at 92 7/32 in terms of U.S. funds. Pound sterling was down 1/64 at $2.39.

Disclosure: A Teapot Rumble

By RICHARD HALLORAN
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The lead-off speaker in a recent New York panel discussion observed, somewhat dryly, that a "minor panic" is running through the investment community.

He did not understate the turmoil, bewilderment, and frustration, stirred up by the controversy over the flow of information from publicly-held companies through the myriad channels of communication to the investing public.

The question affects the legal and ethical responsibilities of corporate executives, security analysts, investment advisers, brokers, exchanges, bankers, and public relations men.

Perhaps more importantly, it affects each of 24 million American investors, from the Wall Streeter to the small investor who is nursing along a favorite stock or putting a few dollars a month into an investment program.

In essence, the question for the investor comes down to this: "Am I getting gypped because somebody on the inside knows something I don't know and is using that information to buy a good stock or sell a bad one before I find out?"

•

Moreover, the issue has spilled over into politics. Republican presidential candidate Richard Nixon, in his now famous letter to the financial community, questioned "the effectiveness of existing law providing full and adequate protection for the investor."

If elected, Nixon said, a first priority of his administration would be a comprehensive inquiry into "the requirement for investment protection," among other things. He implied that the securities and exchange commission's drive for more disclosure of information should be curtailed.

In contrast, Sen. Harrison Williams (D—N.J.), chairman of a subcommittee on securities, said this week that he plans to hold hearings next year "to determine whether new legislation is necessary to insure equal access of information to all of our nation's investors."

The two immediate focal points of the issue are the Texas Gulf Sulphur case, which appears headed for the Supreme Court, and the Merrill Lynch inquiry, hearings for which are scheduled to resume Oct. 28.

•

Texas Gulf Sulphur most likely will appeal for a reversal of an Aug. 13 Court of Appeals decision. That court upheld an SEC finding that company insiders had misused confidential information for their own benefit on the stock market.

In the second case, the SEC alleges that insiders in the Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith firm of New York misused advance information about the Douglas Aircraft Co. to warn preferred clients to sell Douglas shares.

The philosophical issue that all investors are created equal, with an inalienable right to information which influences stock prices, seems resolved. The argument is about how the principle is translated into everyday practice, e.g.:

—Who is an insider? Some define him as one who has confidential information due to the nature of his job—a company executive, an underwriter, a legal counsellor.

Others contend that anyone who has information before it is made public is an insider.

—What confidential information must be disclosed to the public? This hits the nub of the issue. The court and the SEC say information that is "material."

But the definition of "material" is being debated. Some argue for a subjective reading that says anything—good or bad—bearing on an investor's decision to buy or sell must be publicized.

Others contend that an objective standard must be found.

—In what form should material information be disclosed? This, too, is a touchy one. Most involved in the debate emphasize that a specific piece of information must be placed in accurate perspective.

•

Still, there is a caution. The release of information, if not carefully done, can be construed as an improper effort to sell securities or to jiggle the price of shares on the market.

—When should information be disclosed? Timing is crucial.

—How should premature leaks be handled?

—When can confidential information legitimately be held back?

—What is adequate disclosure?

It's hard to say what is adequate. Among the possibilities are passing information to a selected group of analysts, a large group of analysts and brokers, inviting the trade and general press to a news conference, issuing a press release to the news services or sending out a mailing to present shareholders.

It may be a while before there are definitive answers. For the moment, there is no doubt that the flow of information on stocks has dwindled.

Vancouver Business May Groove

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI) — Investors are establishing new companies here with a view to establishing Vancouver as a major manufacturing centre.

Ones uch pioneer businessman is Donald Fergusson, the 31-year-old president of Collegiate Advertising Ltd., who recently opened his latest investment, the International Record Corporation, in Vancouver.

Being the only record manufacturing firm west of Toronto and north of Los Angeles, Calif., Fergusson is confident him ew venture will be a huge success.

At the start, Fergusson said his company plans to print records for all major recording companies but eventually he hopes to expand into the actual recording and distributing phases of the billion-dollar industry.

Peter E. Kidd, general manager of the new company, said there are numerous recording studios across Canada and the United States but record manufacturing firms are limited.

The scarcity, Kidd added, has forced recording studios to mail their recorded tapes some 1,000 miles to Los Angeles or 3,000 miles to Toronto for printing.

He said that in a business where a song is a hit one day and a "golden memory" the next, the time spent getting the record to the buying public is vital.

The new company is capable of manufacturing more than 2,000 long-playing records or some 7,000 single 45-rpm recordings a day.

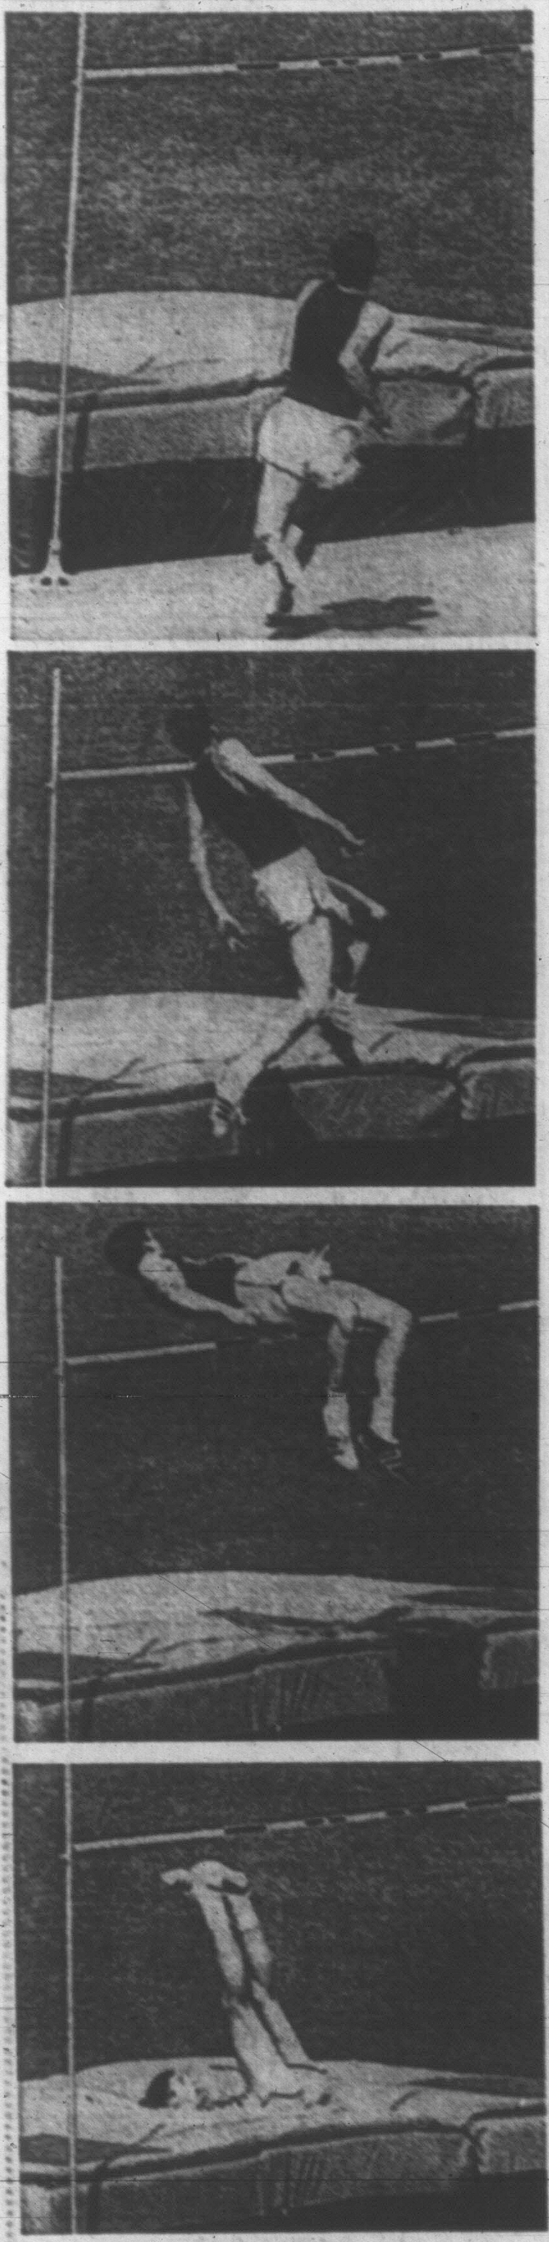
Three U.S. Relay Teams Shatter World Records

SPORTS

Editor: Doug Peden



'THE FOSBURG FLOP'

Unconventional style by Dick Fosbury, of United States, helped him to capture Olympic gold medal in high jump Sunday. Fosbury twists as he approaches bar, sails over it backwards. Unconventional, but it works! (AP Wirephoto.)

Olympic Track, Field Aces Leave Statisticians Dizzy

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The United States all-Negro relay teams climaxed their powerful running all through the current Olympic Games by sweeping the three relay gold medals Sunday, and Kenya's Kipchoge Keino took the 1,500 metres with ease over Jim Ryun of the United States.

In the windup relay, Lee Evans ran a tremendous quarter-mile as the men's 1,600-metre team won by at least 35 metres.

Every world relay record was broken and Keino set an Olympic mark in the 1,500 metres — the metric mile.

The Americans whipped through the 1,600 metres in 2:56.1, clipping 3.5 seconds off the previous world mark set by the U.S. last July 24.

Keino, playing his strategy brilliantly, beat Ryun by some 15 metres. West Germany's Bodo Tummler was thrid.

The U.S. also won both 400-metre relays in world record time.

Keino, a colorful runner, was the third Commonwealth runner in the last three Olympics to win the 1,500 metres. Herb Elliott of Australia did it in 1960 and Peter Snell of New Zealand in 1964.

Keino, silver medal winner in the 5,000 metres, set an Olympic 1,500-metre mark of 3:34.9, wiping out Elliott's 3:35.6 that had stood up for eight years since the Rome Games.

Cementing the domination here of Africans in distance running, an Ethiopian won the marathon, the last track event.

Mamo Wolde brought Ethiopia its third consecutive gold medal in the marathon with an easy victory in the longest race — 26 miles 385 yards — on the Olympic track and field program.

Wolde seemed to be in fine fettle at the finish and he ran an extra victory lap around the stadium before any other runner had entered. His time was two hours 20 minutes 26.4 seconds.

Marks Fall Despite Dour Predictions

The world records broken Sunday left statisticians dizzy after a standard-smashing that had never before been seen in the Olympics.

In all, 17 world track and field records were set at these Games and two were tied — all this despite dour predictions that Mexico City's altitude, 7,400 feet above sea level, would take a toll of the athletes and mar their performances.

Over-all, 17 Olympic records were set in men's events, some many times over, and nine in women's events.

In the 1,600 relay, Kenya's second-place time was 2:59.6. West Germany was third in 3:00.5, the same clocking as Poland, placed fourth.

The U.S. also wrapped up the men's high jump gold, its fourth of the day. Dick Fosbury, who dives over the bar backwards, took the high jump with a leap of seven feet 4¼ inches, an Olympic record.

Another American, Ed Caruthers, won the Silver medal, clearing 7-3½, and Russia's Valentin Gavrilov was third with 7-2¾.

U.S. swimmers won three final events Sunday, sweeping two of them and narrowly missing a sweep in the third.

Bernie Wrightson gave the U.S. its 11th consecutive triumph in the Olympic men's springboard diving event. Klaus Dibiasi of Italy was second, Jim Henry of the U.S. third.

The onslaught gave the U.S. nine of the 11 gold medals awarded so far in swimming and diving competition.

German crews took three of the seven gold medals in rowing Saturday West Germany winning the eights and East Germany the coxless fours and coxless pairs.

No Canadians Reach Rowing Finals

Henri Jan Wienese of Holland won the single sculls. Other winners were Russia in the double sculls, Italy in the coxed pairs and New Zealand in the coxed fours.

The U.S. took a silver medal in the coxless pairs.

There was no Canadian boat in the rowing finals and, for the first time since 1952, Canada went without a rowing medal.

Japanese competitors took three of the eight gold medals at stake in freestyle wrestling Sunday. The Japanese victors were featherweight Masaaki Kaneko, bantamweight Yojiro Uetake and flyweight Shigeo Nakata.

Russia and Turkey each won two of the wrestling golds. Iran one.

The U.S. swimming sweeps Sunday came in the men's and women's 200-metre individual medley races, following a U.S. sweep in the women's 100-metre freestyle Saturday.

Charles Hickcox led the U.S. sweep in the men's 200 medley, a new Olympic event, in 2:12. Greg Buckingham was second in 2.13, John Ferris third in 2:13.3.

Claudia Kolb won the women's 200 medley, also a new Olympic event, in 2:24.7. Sue Pedersen was second in 2:28.8 and Jan Henne third in 2:31.4.

Debbie Meyer and Linda Gustavson gave the U.S. a one-two finish in the women's 400 freestyle, with clockings of 4:31.8 and 4:35.5 respectively. Karen Moras of Australia was third in 4:37.0.

The U.S. triple relay victory was the first since the 1932 Olympics at Los Angeles.

The men's 400-metre relay team triumphed in 38.2 seconds, and was followed by Cuba in 38.3 and France in 38.4. The women's 400-metre relay team finished in 42.8. Cuba was second in 43.3 and Russia third in 43.4.

Keino Gives Kenya Third Gold Medal

The 1,600-metre relay was strictly no contest, although Kenya finished second in 2:59.6 to become the first country outside the U.S. to break the three-minute barrier. West Germany was third in 3:00.5.

Keino finished the 1,500 metres in 3:34.9 as he brought Kenya its third gold medal in track. Ryun was second in 3:37.8 Boda Tummler of West Germany third in 3:39.0.

Margitta Gummel of East Germany smashed the world record with a toss of 64 feet four inches in winning the women's shot put, and Dick Fosbury of the U.S. won the high jump at 7-4¼.

Four Canadians gained swimming finals during the weekend. George Smith of Edmonton and Sandy Gilchrist of Ocean Falls, B.C., placed fifth and sixth respectively in the men's 200 medley. Their times were 2:13.9 and 2:16.6.

Marion Lay of Vancouver came fourth in the women's 100-metre freestyle Saturday, in which Americans took all three medal places. Miss Henne was first in one minute flat. Miss Pedersen second in 1:00.3, Miss Gustavson third in 1:00.3, and Miss Lay fourth in 1:00.5.

Angela Coughlan of Burlington, Ont., was seventh in the women's 400-metre freestyle in 4:51.9.

The only non-Americans to win swimming golds so far have been Mike Wenden of Australia in the men's 100-metre freestyle and Djurdjica Bjedov of Yugoslavia in the women's 100-metre breaststroke.

Bill Toomey of the U.S. triumphed Saturday in the decathalon—a two-day, 10-event competition. Two West Germans, Hans-Joachim Walde and Kurt Bendlin, took second and third places.

Elena Novikova became the first Russian to win the women's foil fencing medal Sunday.

Pilar Roldan of Mexico won the silver medal, and defending champion Ilika Rejto of Hungary took the bronze.

France won the gold medal in the men's foil team competition.

A Gay, Gay Day For Wee Chi Chi

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A little guy who stands five-foot-seven and weighs 125 pounds, Chi Chi Rodriguez, walloped some powerful heavyweights in the $100,000 Sahara invitational golf tournament Sunday.

Dale Douglass, the Denver pro had never won a major tournament, still had a piece of the lead at the end of 72 holes, tied at 270 with Rodriguez and his seven-under-par 31-33—64 over the par 36-35—71 Paradise Valley course.

Rodriguez put Douglass away on the first hole of sudden-death. Rodriguez missed the green—the first he missed all day—and Douglass was on.

Rodriguez pitched up 1½ inches from the cup, got his par four and Douglass missed a putt of 24 inches for a five.

The $20,000 Rodriguez won almost doubles his golfing income for the year. Douglass had to settle for $12,000.

FALLS KILL TWO HORSES

Soviet Walkie-Talkies Cause Olympic Protest

MEXICO CITY — Britain rode into the lead Sunday in the tragedy-marred Olympic equestrian Three-Day event.

Each of the four members of the British team stormed home at the end of the formidable endurance test with flags flying. The weather conditions were described as diabolical.

Counting only the best three scores for each team in the dressage and cross-country endurance phases of competition, Britain leads with 146.93 penalty points. The United States is second with 185.62 points and Russia third with 258.61 Australia is fourth and France fifth.

Two horses died as the result of falls on the rain-soaked course and three riders suffered injuries that put them in hospital.

The jury met to consider protests lodged. One of them was against the Russians for using walkie-talkies on the course. The jury decision left the Soviet riders in competition.

Every horse that completed Sunday's gruelling 27-kilometre endurance test, made up of roads and track, a steeplechase of 12 hurdles and a cross-country course of 35 hurdles, must pass a veterinary examination before being allowed to enter today's show jumping contest.

John Carlos, one of the two banished Negro members of the U.S. Olympic team, said Saturday he plans to sue the U.S. Olympic committee for defamation of character.

"I am going to nail them to the wall," he said.

Sitting in the stands with his team-mates at Olympic Stadium during track and field competition, the 23-year-old sprinter opend telegrams and talked about the suspension of himself and fellow sprinter Tommie Smith.

"I have a lawyer in Los Angeles and a lawyer in New York. They have told me that the U.S. Olympic Committee acted in violation of the constitution. I am going to see to it that they have to pay."

The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia Saturday alleged that every American athlete who wins a gold medal at the Olympics will be paid $20,000.

Izvestia said in a report from Mexico City that "according to unofficial information, American sports bosses have promised to raise the payment for each victory in the Olympics to $20,000."

The Soviet newspaper asserted that this decision was made because of the trouble among American athletes over the black power protest by Tommie Smith and John Carlos. "Leaders of the U.S. team took urgent measures to restore quiet," it reported.

Izvestia did not say how much American winners were allegedly promised before the incident.

The big mystery at the Olympic Village Saturday was: Who blacked out the faces of Olympic athletes on display photographs opposite the United States headquarters?

Sixteen big pictures of Olympic athletes were on display. Sports represented were weightlifting, soccer, sprinting, relay races, volleyball, pole vaulting, wrestling, shot putting, and field hockey.

In every case the face of the athlete — whether black or white — had been made completely black by some kind of spray.

Wherever the name United States appeared on the shirt, it too had been blacked out.

Reading Bus Timetable Hardly Luis' Specialty

MEXICO CITY (AP) — For five years, Luis Alberto Nicolao of Argentina held the world 100-metre butterfly swimming record. Unfortunately, Nicolao's speciality was not an Olympic event.

This year in Mexico, the 100 metre-butterfly became an Olympic event. Nicolao had his chance.

He took an Olympic bus from the Olympic Village Sunday in, he thought, plenty of time to reach the Olympic pool. But the bus was delayed in traffic and took 30 minutes to make what is usually a 10-minute trip.

Nicolao arrived at the pool minutes after his semi-final heat in the 100-metre butterfly. International swimming officials rejected his plea for an extra chance to qualify for the finals.

Reay's Peace Shattered by Lowly Oakland

By The Canadian Press

Coach Billy Reay was at peace with the world until the lowly Oakland Seals came to Chicago Sunday night and defeated his Black Hawks 4-3 in front of 16,666 Chicago fans.

The Hawks were undefeated in four games, led the National Hockey League in goals scored and seemed almost unbeatable. The Seals were winless in four starts before coming to Chicago.

Now the Hawks share first place in the Eastern Division with Boston Bruins. And Reay will have to wait for his revenge until Nov. 1, when the Black Hawks travel to Oakland.

In other games Sunday, New York Rangers blanked Los Angeles Kings 7-0 and Montreal Canadiens edged Detroit Red Wings 4-2.

The Hawks defeated Toronto Maple Leafs 3-1 Saturday, Boston blasted Pittsburgh Penguins 5-1, Minnesota North Stars took Los Angeles 4-1 and the Seals lost 4-1 to St. Louis Blues.

Right winger Gerry Ehman scored two goals for Oakland Sunday while Billy Hicke and Norm Ferguson added one each.

EMBARRASS THE KINGS

A total of 14,612 fans at New York saw centre Phil Goyette and goaltender Ed Giacomin embarrass the Kings and the Rangers post their most decisive shutout in 12 years.

Goyette scored three goals while Giacomin collected his first shutout this season. Other Ranger scorers were Donnie Marshall, Walt Tkaczuk, Rod Gilbert and Jean Ratelle.

The key performer for Montreal in its victory before 12,183 at Detroit was Jean Beliveau who scored two goals, the 500th and 501st of his career.

Yvan Cournoyer and Jacques Laperriere also scored for the Canadiens, the only undefeated team in the NHL but still a point behind Chicago and Boston.

Gary Unger and Gary Bergman scored for Detroit which has only one win in four outings. (See summaries page 13.)

Fielder Records Point No. 1,500

By The Canadian Press

Vancouver Canucks saw a 2-1 first-period lead slip away Sunday night as Portland Buckaroos made it 3-3 going into the third and won a Western Hockey League game 5-3 before 4,823 Portland fans.

Vancouver took the lead on goals by Andy Bathgate and Marc Reaume after Bill Saunders opened scoring for Portland. Norm Johnson tied the contest at 1:10 of the second period but Bathgate came back with his second goal.

Gerry Goyer tied it with less than four minutes left in the second period.

Portland won the game on final-period goals by Mel Pearson and Roger Bellerive.

Before 3,228 Seattle fans, centre Guyle Fielder, WHL scoring leader, crossed the 1,500-point milestone, leading Totems to a 4-1 win over league newcomers Denver Spurs.

Fielder picked up two assists while teammates Bob Courcy and Chuck Holmes each scored two goals. The loss was the fifth straight for Denver, winless this season.

Roger Picard opened scoring for Denver early in the first period.

CHARLEBOIS RACING

Saturday games saw Phoenix edge Denver 4-3 at Phoenix on the strength of Bob Charlebois' three goals. Gary Meehan slapped in the Roadrunners' fourth goal in the second period.

Don Carter, Roger Picard and Trevor Fahey were the Denver scorers.

In the other Saturday game, San Diego beat Portland 3-1 in San Diego as 12,249 fans watched Gulls open a two-goal lead in the second, then withstand a late Buckaroo rally.

There was cohesion, a good supply of goals, but it was the effort on defence that pleased Victoria coach Bill Abbott most as O'Keefes defeated New Westminster Labatts 4-0 at Macdonald Park on Sunday.

"Any time you can hold the likes of Erroll Crossan and Don Wilson off the scoreboard," said Abbott, "then you have to figure that your defence did something for you.

"They really did today."

Goalie Keljd Brodsgaard's shutout, the jelling defence and a four-goal outburst in the second half made it Victoria's best all-around effort in six games. It also squared O'Keefes' record at three wins, three losses and pushed the Victoria club into sole possession of third place, four points behind second-place UBC and five back of the front-running Vancouver Firefighters.

DAVIES INJURED

The game was marred by an injury to New Westminster goalie Robin Davies. Diving in attempt to prevent Dick Joyce from scoring Victoria's first goal, Davies collided heavily with a goal post. He suffered a nasty gash to his face, a broken nose and slight concussion. Davies was treated in hospital but allowed to return to the mainland with his teammates Sunday evening.

O'Keefes scored their final three goals on Bill Strickland but the Westminster goaltending replacement couldn't be faulted on any.

Joyce scored O'Keefes first two goals while Ike MacKay and Pete Stoffer added the others.

THREE ON REBOUNDS

Joyce's first goal came three minutes after the second half started. While Davies made his valiant, diving try, Joyce merely headed in Tom Westwater's rebound from about two yards out. The play originated with a free kick taken by Peter Brett.

Joyce's second goal and the one by Stoffer also came off rebounds.

Stoffer had just substituted for Peter Wheaton in the 32nd minute and promptly took a hard shot. Strickland made the stop but Joyce was Johnny-on-the-spot to bang home the rebound.

MacKAY'S PRETTY

MacKay's goal was the prettiest of the day and came off a corner kick in the 41st minute. Russ Ball took the corner, and sent a low, sizzling drive in front of the goal. MacKay, making his move almost as Ball made his kick, headed the ball home past the near post while Westminster's defenders still were packing the far-post area.

Stoffer added the fourth goal on a MacKay rebound two minutes later.

While afforded solid protection by fullbacks Howie Anderson and Ray Telford and the half-line of Westwater, Pete Roberts and Brian Robinson, Brodsgaard did require a bit of luck to save his shutout.

STARTED SLOWLY

Minutes after Joyce had scored Victoria's first goal, Westminster's Jack Perri found himself alone and unmarked about six yards from the Victoria goal. The ball came to him from a scramble but Perri pounded it over the top post with Brodsgaard well out of the picture.

It was perhaps the only decent scoring chance Westminster had in the second half.

O'Keefes move to Vancouver for a game with North Shore on Saturday and play their next home game Nov. 2, against Burnaby.

Royal Victoria Junior Team Places Third

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

Victoria's rapidly-increasing family of competitive sailors saw action in Seattle, Oak Bay, Cadboro Bay and Esquimalt waters at the weekend.

Royal Victoria Yacht Club juniors placed third in the annual McCurdy Cup competition at Seattle Yacht Club.

Seven teams sailed Penguins in the double-knockout, two-day series which was won by the host club. Other clubs represented were Royal Vancouver, Seattle Corinthian, West Vancouver, Maple Bay and Hollyburn.

Victoria's team included Louise Anstey and Susan North; Chris Sanderson and Kathy Maddock; Dennis Woodward and Philip Huggitt; and John Readshaw and Colin Huggitt.

Rough-Housing Cats Scratched By Their Sins

Like those detergent commercials, comparison may or may not prove a thing . . .

Victoria Cougars might have looked to comparisons after dropping an 8-7 British Columbia Junior Hockey League decision to Penticton Broncos at Memorial Arena on Saturday.

A year ago, Cougars were the lightest-scoring and one of the least-penalized crews in the six-team league.

With 41 goals in seven games, they are definitely showing greater scoring punch. Also, the Cats aren't taking a back seat to anyone in the minutes-served department.

IT BACK-FIRES

But undue roughness can be too much of a good thing. The Cougars found that out Saturday when the unbeaten Broncos cashed in for four power-play goals.

In addition, the opportunists from the Okanagan also scored three goals while both sides were playing short-handed.

Victoria defenceman Laurie Moore is one who will certainly agree that to sin is to err. The robust rearguard was whistled off for five minors, glumly watched from the penalty box as Penticton scored seven of their eight goals.

Veteran Reg Cherenko led the way with four goals. Pat Laughton added a pair while Ed Hays and Ron Boyle dropped in for singles.

EVANS INJURED

Adrian Blais and Grant Evans each scored twice for Victoria while Doug Gibson, Lonnie Miles and Bruce Cowick each added one. The goals for Evans were his 12th and 13th of the season but his efforts for a hat-trick suffered when the centre suffered a leg injury early in the third period.

Both teams leaned to offensive fireworks to entertain a turnout of 2,812 fans. But the defensive efforts, on both sides, didn't thrill a soul.

Penticton's Tom Madden and midget-aged Murray Kennett offered limited exception. Madden, a one-time Victoria resident, appears to be the "take-charge" guy of the Penticton team.

He picked up three assists, as did Cougars' John Van Horlick and Dave Cousins.

PASSES OFF MARK

But for their spotty defensive work and a "missed chance," the Cougars might have won it all early in the second period. Moments after Miles had scored to give Cougars a 4-2 lead, Cousins missed a great scoring chance.

The Broncs wheeled back and didn't miss, Cherenko making it 4-3.

While they played it wide-open and, for most of the part, entertaining hockey, the Cougars were below form in the passing and teamwork department. They fore-checked poorly and, at times, had difficulty in breaking out of their own zone.

Victoria goalie Ed Forsland made 27 stops, compared to 25 by rival Steve MacDonald. Forsland made several brilliant stops in the second period, his best.

Bouncing deflections beat him on three goals, and he was well-screened on a fourth. Out-of-position Victoria wingers and "technical sins" also hurt Forsland.

Cougars will have had a week to repent, and try again next Saturday when Kelowna Buckaroos visit Victoria.

Neither Could Royals . . .

By Canadian Press

Penticton Broncos continued their undefeated march in the British Columbia Junior Hockey League by clipping New Westminster Royals 5-3 Sunday to grab a share of first place.

Jack Taggart's Broncos now have won four straight.

Solid goaltending by Steve MacDonald sparked Penticton's latest victory. He made 32 stops while rival Maurice L'Heureux handled 25 before a crowd of about 300 in New Westminster.

In the only other game of the weekend, Kelowna Buckaroos travelled to Vernon and jolted the hometown Essos 7-5 before 614 fans.

Kelowna's victory was clinched by three third-period goals after the two squads finished the first frame tied 2-2 and the second at 4-4.

Firemen Forge Ahead

VANCOUVER — Both played, neither lost, but Vancouver Firefighters managed to gain ground on the UBC Thunderbirds in the early run for the Pacific Coast Soccer League leadership.

The Firemen bounced into sole possession of first place by blanking Burnaby Villa 4-0 at Callister Park on Saturday. The best Thunderbirds could manage was a scoreless draw with Columbus before 1,318 fans on Sunday.

Inside Jim Blundell scored two goals for Firefighters while winger Chang Chi-Do and Tom Miller added the others. Miller's goal was his sixth in six games, tops in the league.

Columbus had a slight offensive edge in Sunday's game but failed to capitalize on a number of scoring opportunities. The squad was without four of its regular team members—goalie Peter Green, fullbacks Sam Lenarduzzi and Jim Berry and winger Sergio Zanatta—all playing for the Canadian national team in the World Cup game at Hamilton, Bermuda.

Wests Regain Share of Lead

Victoria West turned on the scoring power Sunday at Central Park to thump Hourigan's Kicker's 9-1 and regain a share of first place with Gorge Molson's in the Victoria and District Soccer League's First Division.

Molsons had snapped a first-place deadlock with Wests Saturday by blanking winless Red Lion 6-0 at Heywood Avenue Park.

Canadian Scottish moved on to the Heywood pitch Sunday and recorded a third draw in as many starts by battling to a 2-2 sawoff with London SC.

Peter Mason scored both Scottish goals while George Pakos and Doug Gregory connected for the London booters.

Tom Collett was the big man for Victoria West, firing three goals against the Kickers to match the three-goal effort turned in for Gorge Saturday by high school ace Rick Lamoureux.

STREAK EXTENDED

Watson Hotspurs extended an undefeated streak to six games and remained on top of the second division ladder Sunday by bouncing Gorge 4-2.

In other second-division matches Sunday, Suburban Motors remained a close second by blanking Falcons 4-0 behind the two-goal scoring of Tony Pakos.

Norsemen edged Saanich 3-2 and Saints turned two goals by George Goetken into a 2-1 win over Kings Hotel. Robbie Ross netted three tallies and paced Victoria West past Colony 5-2 and Royals blanked luckless Adult Studies 15-0 behind the six-goal attack of Rudi Kuebler.

Ken Sainsbury gave London SC a 1-0 win over Tillicums.

Power Shown By Shawnigan

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — Shawnigan Lake Boys' School trampled over Vancouver's David Thompson High School 35-3 Saturday in an exhibition rugby match.

Bill Sleath paced Shawnigan with a penalty goal, try and four converts while Robert Cerere and Kit Taylor scored two trys each. John Houston, Ted Ritchie and Don Finlay contributed single trys.

David Thompson's only point came from a penalty goal by Joe Yamanaka.

The tables were turned in a junior match with David Thompson blanking Shawnigan 9-0.

Bermuda's Cup Hopes Fading Out

HAMILTON, Bermuda (CP) — Canada and Bermuda played to a scoreless draw Sunday in their second meeting of the World Cup soccer elimination series.

It was a drab game in which Canada missed a score of scoring chances, but the result virtually eliminated Bermuda from contention in the series, which also involves the United States.

Canada beat Bermuda 4-0 in Toronto in the first game Oct. 13. The Canadians now have five points from three games, Bermuda one point from two games and the U.S. no points from one game. The teams play four games in all. Canada beat the U.S. 4-2.

Canadian players showed poor finishing moves in their 20 scoring chances.

The game virtually quashed Bermuda hopes. To stay in contention the Islanders must beat the United States twice while Canada would have to lose its game at Atlanta, Ga., next Sunday.

The winner of the series will meet Guatemala in the next round of the series leading to the 1970 World Cup championship.

Czechoslovakia defeated Denmark 1-0 in another qualification World Cup match. Czechoslovakia won the first game 3-0.

Rams Upset Farmers; Mustangs in Stampede

Jack Clarkson led the way with two touchdowns as James Bay Mustangs stampeded Cowichan Timbermen 33-0 on Sunday to take sole possession of second place in the Vancouver Island Juvenile Football League.

At Nanaimo, the host Rams upset Oak Bay Farmer Construction 13-7 and recorded their first win in seven starts.

John Howe opened scoring for Mustangs with a single. He also added a touchdown and convert while Bob Rimmer and Craig Lawrence crashed through the Cowichan line for the other Mustang majors.

Randy Thompson made several key tackles to spark James Bay's defence while Paul Burgoyne was a workhorse on attack.

Ray Genniver went across the line on a 50-yard pass-and-run play and Pat Groves scored the convert on a pass from quarterback Lee Doney to give Farmers a 7-0 lead in the opening quarter at Nanaimo.

Rams bounced back in the second quarter on two touchdown passes from Kurt Miller to Al Clavord. The first covered 45 yards and the second 32 yards. Miller made good on one of two convert tries.

Uvic Norsemen trimmed JBAA Crusaders 14-3 in a second-division match Saturday, Oak Bay Wanderers mauled Cowichan 24-3 and the Uvic Saxons rallied from a 12-0 halftime deficit to nip Barbarians 12-13 in a thrilling finish.

Drive it long and hard. All you'll wear out are your driving gloves.

Driving gloves are made to last as long as all those family cars that can't take the family after two years. You know, the ones you see in every used car lot in town.

If you're looking there for a Corona, don't bother. You won't find one till 1971 maybe.

Because Corona is built to take the tough life. The 90 horsepower oversquare engine does zero to 40,000 easily. Cruises at 80 all day. And won't get you pushed into the 'Slow vehicles keep right' lane going uphill. Unlike some imports we can name.

Just because Corona is built to take the rough life doesn't mean you have to rough it. Corona is thickly carpeted. The vinyl bucket seats recline fully. Three-point seat belts, padded dash and an optional automatic are all part of the soft life inside a Corona.

There's more. Smooth syncromesh four-on-the-floor. Quad headlights. Two-speed wipers. Emergency flashers all make life a little easier. All at no extra cost.

If replacing your driving gloves is a major repair, you must be driving a Corona too.

Regal Jingle Displays Horse-of-Year Talent

(Times News Services)

If there was ever any doubt about Regal Jingle's qualifications as British Columbia's horse of the year, the four-year-old chestnut gelding dispelled it at Vancouver's Exhibition Park Saturday.

Taking to the sloppy strip as the ducks took to the infield lake, Regal Jingle spread-eagled his field by 14 lengths in winning the $15,000-added Premier's championship.

Broken Bubble, closing steadily, finished second, a half-length ahead of Haig's Task.

Regal Jingle bore top weight of 126 pounds as he won his sixth race in 13 starts, picking up $11,975 for owner Frank McMahon.

* * *

Another McMahon horse wasn't as impressive at Toronto's Woodbine track. Dominion Day II, owned by McMahon and Max Bell of Calgary, finished third in the $30,000-added Canadian International Championship Stakes.

Argentine-bred horses finished 1-2. George Gardiner's Frenetico won first money of $30,900 while Petit Duc was second, a length behind.

* * *

Nodouble, the only three-year-old in the race, won the $132,600 Hawthorne Gold Cup by a length at Hawthorne race track in Chicago.

Cabildo nosed out Irish Dude for second money in the 1¼-mile race.

Nodouble, ridden by Martinez Heath, was timed in 1:59 1-5 to equal the track record set by Daycourt in the 1959 Gold Cup.

At Lexington, Ky., Sale Dal led almost all the way in winning the $58,650 Spinster Stakes. Politely, one-half length behind the winner at the wire, and third finisher Pattie Canoy were involved in a steward's inquiry but remained in the same order after films of the race were viewed.

Fulla Napoleon scored one of the major upsets of the year at Liberty Bell Park in Philadelphia, winning the featured $35,839 Tar Heel Stakes. Fulla Napoleon and second-place Batman upset the highly favored Rum Customer.

Sterne Entry Places Third

COQUITLAM (CP) — The Seattle team of Milt Davis and Wade Carter drove a Porche 911S to an 18-lap victory in the 10-hour endurance race Saturday at Westwood circuit.

It was the second straight Westwood endurance victory for the American team, which won the seven-hour 1967 event in the same car.

They completed 381 laps for a total of 685 miles in Canada's longest road race and the third longest in North America.

Second-place went to the Vancouver team of Giovanni Cassatini and Giovanni Coletta in an Alpha Spyder.

George Sterne and Richard Evans, both of Burnaby, placed third in a Morgan, three laps behind the second-place car. Chris Dougall of North Vancouver and Bob Stevens of Richmond placed fourth in a Sting Ray, one lap behind the Morgan.

Men 'Less Manly' Living in Apartment

OTTAWA (CP) — Apartment living may make men less manly and children more dependent, says an urban environment consultant.

Dr. Marvin Lipman, a consultant with Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., says government should do something about it immediately.

Men may feel less masculine in an apartment because they are not needed to do the things they would have to do if they owned a house, he says, in a report prepared for the Canadian conference on housing in Toronto this week.

Young children become more dependent because of the need to be closely supervised by their mother "who is unwilling to let them roam loose . . . out of sight."

Since Canadians are apparently "trapped" by economic forces into building more high-rise apartments for families and fewer houses, the design of apartment buildings must be substantially changed.

The federal government should see to it that apartment buildings provide ample play space for children, working space for fathers and simulate a "home" atmosphere as much as possible, Dr. Lipman says.

Prince George Toothier Than Lower Mainland

VANCOUVER (CP) — Children in the British Columbia Lower Mainland have nearly twice the incidence of decayed, missing or filled teeth than children in Prince George, where water fluoridation began 12 year ago, according to two dentists.

A report released Friday showed Prince George children have near perfect teeth due to drinking fluoridated water.

It stated there has been a 61.1 per cent reduction in decayed, missing or filled teeth among 1,000 children who took part in the 12-year study. The reduction in the 12-14 age group was 86 per cent.

Dr. George Hann, regional dental consultant in Prince George, compared figures in a study of Lower Mainland children aged 11 to 15 done by Dr. Spencer Gallagher of the Vancouver city health department.

Children aged six to eight in Prince George had an average of .8 decayed, missing or filled teeth, compared with 1.15 for Lower Mainland children of the same age.

Take Your Choice of U.S. Polls

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The campaigning for the Nov. 5 United States presidential election has spawned a skirmish among the men who make it their business to tell who's winning.

Two of the major polls vary by 10 percentage points. Democrats say they're encouraged. Some political analysts say the figures could be meaningless.

Senator Edmund S. Muskie, the Democratic vice-presidential candidate, took a look last week at the Harris poll, which showed the Democrats had narrowed the gap between them and Republican Richard M. Nixon by three percentage points to five per cent.

"We can easily close that gap if we get out and work," said Muskie.

But George Gallup released a poll showing the Democrats behind by 15 per cent. Based on the 1964 U.S. presidential election, the 10 percentage points translate into 7,000,000 votes.

DIFFERENT DATES

A third public opinion analyst, Burns W. Roper, said the pollsters can't claim the differences came because the polls were taken on different dates.

The Harris Poll, with Nixon leading Hubert H. Humphrey 40 to 35 per cent, was taken at the end of September. The Gallup Poll, where Nixon held a 44-to-29 per cent lead, was taken Oct. 8-10.

"I do not believe there was a 5,000,000 vote change in seven days," said Roper. Gallup and Harris blamed a time lag for the difference after publishing two varying polls just before the Republican national convention.

Yet another public opinion analyst, Louis H. Bean, who contradicted most other pollsters in 1948 and predicted Harry S. Truman's victory over Tom Dewey, said even before the latest Harris and Gallup tabulations that the election looks closer than those two polls show.

Humphrey, meanwhile, frustrated in attempts to get a televised debate with Nixon, debated a white "X" painted on the floor in New York's Madison Square Garden.

"Why oppose medicare?" Humphrey asked the "X". Humphrey gave his own answer, quoting Nixon as saying medicare wouldn't work.

In Chicago, Nixon told The Associated Press he feels the speculation over a break in the Paris peace talks "has changed things.

"How much, I don't know. I doubt that it will change things a great deal."

New Job for Leger?

MONTREAL (CP) — Le Devoir says Jules Leger, Canada's ambassador to France, is to return soon to become deputy minister to Gerard Pelletier, the secretary of state.

Nine Provinces Adopt No-Fault Car Policy

TORONTO (CP) — Motorists in nine provinces next year will be able to obtain car insurance that will pay up to $5,000 for traffic accident injuries regardless of who is to blame, according to insurance industry spokesmen.

The insurance will pay benefits to any driver, passenger or pedestrian injured in an accident with a driver who has the new coverage, which will be available Jan. 1 in all provinces except British Columbia and Quebec, but by July in B.C. as well.

H. F. Baker, executive secretary of the Ontario Insurance Agents Association, said he expects the limited accident benefit option will cost Ontario motorists between $6 and $15 a year.

Baker said the new insurance should provide fast payment for injured persons. It will not prevent injured persons from suing for higher damages in the courts but payments under it would be deducted from final court settlements.

PAYMENTS

In addition to hospital and medical coverage of up to $5,000 the option provides a $5,000 death benefit and payments of a maximum to $35 a week for a maximum of 208 weeks as indemnity to an injured person for losses of wages.

Famme said Quebec is studying a scheme of compensation without fault on its own.

Payment-without-fault has been a feature of Saskatchewan's government-operated car insurance system since 1946.

Fund Sets Record

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. and Yukon division of the Canadian Cancer Society raised a record $301,221 this year, Peter Downes, chairman of the division's campaign has announced.

CANADA SAVINGS BONDS

There are probably as many good reasons for buying Canada Savings Bonds as there are Canadians. There are the hopes, plans and ambitions you have for yourself and your family. There is the desire, which all of us share, to play a part in building the future of our country. The simple, safe, profitable way to help realize these goals is to buy Canada Savings Bonds.

They offer an excellent return. The average yield to maturity is 6.75% a year. There are fourteen annual interest coupons which begin at 5.75% and rise to 7.00% for each of the last nine years. These can be cashed each year as they become due. Better still, if you choose to keep these coupons uncashed, you can earn interest on your interest. Take full advantage of this option and, when your Bonds mature, your total interest earnings plus your original investment will amount to $250 for each $100 invested.

They are available to everyone. Canada Savings Bonds are available to every Canadian resident in amounts from $50 up to $50,000, for cash or on instalments, wherever you work, bank or invest. Adults, children, businesses and institutions—all may buy them.

Few investments are so profitable. None builds more surely for the future. Buy into Canada today. Buy Canada Savings Bonds. It pays.

It pays.

Uvic Captures Soccer Crown

By STEVE HUME

University of Victoria teams spent the weekend establishing themselves as dangerous competition when they join the Western Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Association on a full-scale basis next year.

Playing in the WCIAA field hockey championships at Winnipeg as an "exhibition" entry, the Uvic girls finished in a tie with trophy-winning UBC. Vikings' soccer team went one better—powering its way to victory in the WCIAA tournament at Regina.

The Victoria girls won their final games Saturday, defeating University of Manitoba 6-0 and Saskatchewan 1-0.

The two wins left Uvic with a record of seven wins and one tie to match UBC's record in the eight-game tournament.

Uvic tied UBC 1-1 on Friday. Since Uvic is not considered a full-fledged member of the WCIAA, UBC claimed the Donna Hunt Trophy.

At Regina, Vikings clinched the soccer crown with an overwhelming 11-0 victory over last-place Brandon University Bobcats in their final game Sunday.

Vikings finished with four wins and one loss in the five-game round-robin series. University of Manitoba Bisons walloped University of Saskatchewan (Regina) Cougars 15-0 to finish in second place with three wins, a loss and a tie.

HUSKIES THIRD

Manitoba squeaked past University of Saskatchewan (Saskatoon) Huskies on total scoring. Huskies, in third place, also had a 3-1-1 record.

University of Winnipeg Wesmen finished in fourth place, Regina fifth and Brandon last.

Vikings' loss was a 1-0 upset at the hands of defending champion Manitoba, on Saturday.

At home, the Uvic cross-country team prepped for the WCIAA championships at Calgary next Saturday by winning their first B.C. Cross-Country League race.

Running in the rain over a 6.2 mile course at the Gordon Head campus, Uvic runners slogged through the grueling race to sixth, seventh, 10th, 13th and 15th place finishes to take the team event on a handicap basis.

THORNE BEST

Led by Charlie Thorne at sixth, Larry Corbett at seventh and Ken Cameron at 10th, Ed Day and Wayne Morrison followed up to count for the winners. Total elapsed time for Uvic was 161:46.5 minutes, 11.7 seconds ahead of second place Vancouver Olympic Club.

Victoria's Optimist Spartans finished third in the race led by veteran distance star Norm Patenaude, who coasted to a third place finish behind Dave Wighton of VOC and Gary Harrison of Vancouver Striders. Patenaude's time was 31:32.8 minutes. Wighton clocked 30:32.0 while Harrison moved through the course in 30:57.6.

The Uvic team will test itself against the best in the West when it travels to Calgary.

TALENTED TWOSOME

That could be quite a task. The best includes University of Alberta's Ray Haswell, and University of Calgary's Dave Atkinson.

Haswell just missed the Canadian Olympic team as a 5,000 metre competitor, and has competed in Europe as a member of the Canadian team last summer.

Atkinson, a Calgary ace who emerged in age-class competition two years ago, is now strong enough to run open competition, and he's been consistently right on Haswell's heels and has even upset the Edmonton veteran a number of times.

Browns Humble Unitas

By The Associated Press

Johnny Unitas, one of the truly awesome figures in the National Football League, was sent into the game Sunday to spark Baltimore's sagging offence. Instead, he turned in a performance that was anything but awe-inspiring as the Colts were upset 30-20 by Cleveland Browns.

Baltimore's first loss in six games dropped the Colts into second place in the Coastal Division behind Los Angeles Rams who got past stubborn Atlanta 27-14. The Rams and Colts collide next Sunday.

In other NFL action, Green Bay (3-3-1) tied Detroit (3-2-1) 14-14; Dallas (6-0) topped Minnesota (3-3) 20-7; St. Louis (3-3) humbled Washington (3-3) 41-14; San Francisco (3-3) upset New York Giants (4-2) 26-10; New Orleans (3-3) edged Pittsburgh (0-6) 16-12, and Chicago (2-4) beat Philadelphia (0-6) 29-16.

HITS ONLY ONE

Unitas, troubled by a sore elbow and who didn't see his first action until late in the Colts' fifth game, started the second half in place of Earl Morrall. Cleveland led 14-7 at the time.

Unitas completed just one of 12 passes—a screen behind the scrimmage line—and had three intercepted. The interceptions led to two Cleveland touchdowns and a field goal.

Bill Nelsen passed for three Cleveland touchdowns as the Browns (4-3) stayed in a first-place tie with New Orleans and St. Louis in the Century Division.

Los Angeles downed Atlanta (1-5) with a 17-point second quarter in which Roman Gabriel threw a pair of touchdown passes and Bruce Gossett kicked a field goal.

Unbeaten Dallas and its their vaunted "doomsday defence" returned to their knockout ways in the second half to stop Minnesota.

Dallas, winning its sixth game, trailed 7-6 at halftime after giving up the first touchdown this season on the ground late in the second quarter.

The Cowboys' victory knocked the Vikings, now 3-3, out of a first place tie with Detroit in the Central Division.

In the Giants-49ers game, John Brodie picked New York apart with his passing while Gary Lewis and Ken Willard rambled for large chunks of yardage as San Francisco controlled the ball.

THIS ONE WRECKED RAIDERS

Costly fumble on this play ended bid by Oakland Raiders to pull out American Football League victory at Kansas City Sunday. Defensive end Aaron Brown appears to be slapping hammerlock on Oakland quarterback Daryle Lamonica, causing him to fumble on passing attempt. Chiefs recovered fumble and launched drive for touchdown that clinched 24-10 triumph over Raiders. (AP Wirephoto.)

Straight T Formula Suited Chief's Taste

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Playing without injured receivers Otis Taylor and Gloster Richardson, Kansas City Chiefs resorted to straight T-formation football Sunday. The result was a 24-10 triumph over Oakland Raiders that left the 6-1 Chiefs a half-game ahead of 5-1 San Diego, which crushed Denver 55-24, in the American Football League's Western Division.

The defending champion Raiders dropped 1½ games back with a 4-2 record.

New York Jets maintained their one-game lead in the Eastern Division with a 20-14 victory over Houston. Runner-up Boston kept pace with a 23-6 clubbing of Buffalo. In an inter-division skirmish, Miami edged Cincinnati 24-22.

The Chiefs sent Mike Garrett, Robert Holmes and Wendell Hayes slashing through the Oakland defences. Quarterback Len Dawson went to the air only three times and completed two, an AFL low, as the running game amassed 294 yards.

PASSES BURIED DENVER

Kansas City, which hosts San Diego Sunday, had a 24-0 lead on short touchdown runs by Hayes twice and Holmes and Jan Stenerud's field goal before Oakland scored in the third quarter.

The Chiefs extended their winning streak to five games, a club record.

San Diego, meanwhile, unleashed a powerful air attack that buried Denver. John Hadl completed only nine passes but they covered 321 yards and accounted for four touchdowns—74 yards to Lance Alworth, 22 and 75 to Gary Garrison and 50 to Jacques MacKinnon.

Three touchdown tosses, Bob Howfield's field goal and Joe Beauchamp's 35-yard interception return gave the Chargers a 31-10 halftime lead.

New York put together a long drive in the late going after blowing a 13-0 lead. Joe Namath's passes covered 53 yards and Matt Snell plunged over from the two for the winning points with 46 seconds left.

Evenson Sets Pace As Lions Clip 'Peg

By The Canadian Press

Rookie Jim Evenson of British Columbia Lions enjoyed a memorable weekend at the expense of Winnipeg Blue Bombers in one of two Western Football Conference weekend games.

But in the other, place-kicker Larry Robinson turned in a rare failure of a convert attempt, giving Edmonton Eskimos a 14-13 win over Calgary Stampeders.

Evenson became the first player to pass the 1,000-yard rushing mark in the Canadian Football League this season when the Lions defeated the Bombers 16-14 in Vancouver Saturday night. The game, witnessed by 22,400, the smallest crowd at Empire Stadium in recent years, meant little to the two teams, both WFC doormats.

Evenson ran for 154 yards to boost his season total to 1,047, a lead of 111 yards over George Reed of Saskatchewan. Halfback Jim Young got one Lion touchdown, Evenson the other.

Ted Gerela converted both and booted two singles on wide field-goal attempts.

SCORES FOR BOMBERS

Jim Nielson scored a touchdown for the Bombers on a 49-yard pass from quarterback John Schneider. Pierre Guindon had two field goals—from 37 and 13 yards—a convert and a single.

In Edmonton, Robinson's attempted convert went wide at 10:31 of the fourth quarter.

The Calgary setback left the Stampeders with 18 points, one behind league-leading Saskatchewan Roughriders. The Eskimos, assured of a playoff berth, have 15 points and still have an opportunity to overtake the Stampeders. British Columbia has nine points and Winnipeg four.

Peter Kempf's kicking handed Calgary its fifth loss of the season before 19,231 fans.

Kempf accounted for the winning points with a 46-yard field goal early in the fourth quarter. He also booted a 33-yard field goal and converted a 38-yard touchdown by Jim Thomas. Randy Kerbow added a 47-yard single in the first quarter.

Bob McCarthy scored both Calgary touchdowns, on passes of 16 and 14 yards. Robinson converted the first touchdown.

The battle for first place in the Eastern Football Conference has been reduced to a two-team struggle, with Hamilton Tiger-Cats now out of contention.

Ottawa Rough Riders held on to first place Saturday by edging Hamilton 27-24 and Toronto Argonauts stayed within one point of the top with a 29-25 victory against Montreal Alouettes Sunday.

Hamilton is five points back of the Rough Riders, without a chance of finishing first. The Alouettes were ousted from playoff contention, suffering their seventh consecutive defeat.

Don Sutherin's fourth field goal, with just 70 seconds remaining, gave the Riders their win before 25,421 at Ottawa and quarterback Wally Gabler hit end Al Irwin with a 24-yard pass with two seconds left to give Toronto its triumph before 21,142 at Toronto.

Sutherin also had two converts and a single. Quarterback Russ Jackson scored one Ottawa touchdown on a one-yard plunge and Bo Scott picked up the other on a three-yard run.

Tommy-Joe Coffey of Hamilton took a four-yard touchdown pass from Joe Zuger and added a 45-yard field goal and three converts. Halfback Dave Fleming contributed a one-yard touchdown plunge and Tommy Grant hauled in a 48-yard pass from Zuger for another touchdown.

Esquimalt Retains Bantam Leadership

Esquimalt downed Oak Bay 45-13 to rest easy in first place of the Norm Fieldgate Bantam Football League on Sunday.

In other league struggles, Victoria Boy's Club downed Glen Lake 20-12 and Knights of Columbus crushed Gordon Head 33-6.

Noted UBC Professor Dies at 48

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Leslie Wong, a prominent member of British Columbia's academic community, died at his home Saturday. He was 48.

Police said death may have been due to a heart attack.

Walter Gage, acting president of the University of British Columbia, where Dr. Wong was a member of the commerce and business administration faculty, described his death as "a great blow to the university."

Canada as a whole would suffer because of Dr. Wong's involvement in the country's financial affairs, said Professor Philip White, dean of commerce.

Dr. Wong headed a Colombo Plan project in Malaysia and Singapore in 1961 which established commercial and business administration faculties at universities there.

Lieutenant - Governor John Nicholson said:

"His death comes as a great shock. He will be missed, not only in academic circles, but in other cultural fields."

Born in Victoria, Dr. Wong was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wong Sing, who came here from Canton, China, early in the century and lived on Johnson Street for many years.

Dr. Wong, who lived at 2588 Wallace Crescent, Vancouver, was educated at Victoria High School, Victoria College, and received a bachelor of commerce degree from UBC in 1945.

In 1946 he received a master's degree in business administration at the University of California. He joined the faculty at UBC after four years of private retailing in Vancouver and seven years in the insurance field.

He was appointed by the B.C. government as first chairman of the Credit Union Reserve Board, which was formed a few years at his own recommendation.

Dr. Wong is survived by the widow, Bessie, at home; four brothers, Tom in Richmond, Henry in Vancouver, Robert in Granville, Ohio, and James in Vancouver; two sisters, Mrs. James (Edna) Chow, Victoria, and Mrs. Ben (Joyce) Yip in Seattle.

Funeral services will be held at Forest Lawn Mortuary, Vancouver, Tuesday at 3 p.m., Rev. Andrew Lam officiating.

Instead of flowers, donations may be sent to the Leslie Wong Memorial Scholarship Fund now being set up by UBC.

Ojukwu's Last Stand, and Then . . .

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Sixteen months of civil war, marked by butchery and mounting starvation, have squeezed the Biafrans into a small area of southeastern Nigeria, about one-tenth the territory originally held.

What may well be the last stand of Lt.-Col. Odumegwu Ojukwu and his Ibos is taking shape in the Umuahia region, in the Biafran heartland.

There the Ibos, convinced that surrender would only lead to extermination, are under federal siege, with relief workers estimating the starvation toll at about 15,000 a day.

While Nigerian officials maintain that starvation claims are exaggerated, church and other relief experts conclude that perhaps 1,000,000 Ibos, mostly women and children, already have died in a war encouraged to some extent by the white man's arms.

The Lagos government under Maj.-Gen. Yakubu Gowon has been receiving arms and other aid from Britain and other sources. Despite criticism by some of his own Labor supporters, Prime Minister Wilson maintains that eventually the world will see that Britain's policy was right.

Commonwealth sources suggest most of Biafra's arms come from the black market, through funds raised partly in the European Common Market. Support for the Biafrans is reported to be growing in The Netherlands, France, West Germany and Italy.

One Commonwealth official estimates that because of outside help, the Ibos may be able to hold out for six months.

Rich in resources and once a showcase of African democracy, Nigeria actually is made up of about 250 tribes, organized under British direction into an independent Commonwealth country in 1960.

Experts say that aside from geography, there is little to unite the main groups which include the Hausa, Ibo, Yoruba and Fulani tribes. Among some of the groups, language and culture may be as far apart as that between English and Russian.

About 8,000,000 Biafrans have been squeezed into an area that normally held only about one-quarter that number. Many are living in the bush under the most primitive conditions. Relief supplies getting through are reported to be only a fraction of minimum requirements.

Political bloodshed started in 1966 when Eastern army officers rebelled and killed Northerners running the federal government. One of Africa's most respected leaders, Sir Abubakar Balewa, Nigeria's first prime minister, was among those assassinated.

This brought Maj.-Gen. Aguiyi-Ironsi, an Ibo, to power. But anti-Ibo riots erupted in the North in May, 1966, when thousands of Ibos were slaughtered. Two months later Northern officers mutinied and killed Ironsi.

Gowon, who headed the federal regime since the July, 1966, coup, is a British-educated Northern but a Christian of the minority Tiv tribe. His plan is to reduce tribalism in a reorganized state, but the Ibos say he merely wants to carve up their old territory.

Ojukwu, son of a multi-millionaire and a contemporary of Gowon's at British military schools, declared Biafra's independence May 30, 1967.

Lagos said it would be a short-lived independence. Gowon underestimated Ojukwu's determination to remain free — no matter what cost in agony and blood.

Woman, 81, Dies Year After 'Death'

TORONTO (CP) — Mary Sotnick, 81, died Saturday—almost a year to the day after a coroner signed her death certificate.

On Saturday, Oct. 21 1967, Coroner Elie Cass examined Mrs. Sotnick at her home and pronounced her dead.

But her son, John, 42, noticed that the blanket covering his mother was moving. He touched her and felt a heartbeat.

He called an ambulance and his mother was taken to Toronto Western Hospital.

Six days after being pronounced dead, Mrs. Sotnick embraced her son and sobbed:

"Johnny, Johnny, I want to go home."

After less than three weeks in hospital she was well enough to go home.

The incident sparked criticism of methods used by coroners to determine deaths.

Dr. Fred Cruickshank, then acting chief coroner of Metropolitan Toronto, ordered coroners not to sign death certificates without an attending family physician to verify the death. If no doctor was present, coroners were told to send the apparently dead person to a general hospital where positive determination of death could be made.

'Canada Must Decide Indian Land Question'

By HUMPHRY DAVY

NANAIMO — Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said Saturday a legal agreement eventually will have to be reached between Indians and senior governments on the ownership of British Columbia lands.

He told the annual convention here of Southern Vancouver Island Tribal Federation that he was aware that most of the land of B.C. had never been surrendered by Indians.

"No treaty has ever been signed as has been done by Indians in other parts of Canada," he agreed. "An agreement will eventually have to be reached."

The minister's statement came as a surprise to delegates as federal, provincial ministers and Indian Affairs department experts, have refused to be drawn into a dispute about whether the land does still belong to the Indians and that there is any necessity for an agreement.

But it was clear that the minister thought the matter would have to be settled in one way or another.

MAJOR ISSUE

The Indian claim that they have aboriginal rights to the land and want compensation for their losses was treated lightly by non-Indians 10 years ago, but in the last year the question has emerged as one of the major legal issues of the century.

Already five British Columbia bands have launched a suit against the attorney-general, claiming ownership of 7,000 square miles of land in the Nass River Valley along the province's northwest coast.

The writ was filed in B.C. Supreme Court on behalf of the Nishga tribal council. The case is expected to open next year.

At the same time Parliament proposes to establish an Indian claims commission to study Indian law and to deal with the land claims of individual bands.

GEORGE III

But whether it will go into the B.C. Indian land question will depend on its terms of reference.

There are about 500 treaty Indians in the province and all of them are in the Peace River area. The remainder of the band with a population totalling about 45,000 have never surrendered their rights to lands which they once occupied.

They base their land claim on a proclamation issued by King George III in 1763 which recognized the right of Indian nations to occupy and use the land.

Prof. K. Lysyk of the University of British Columbia, who later addressed the convention, said the Nass River court case would not only effect B.C.

"It will have direct implications for the Yukon, where again no treaties for surrender of Indian title have been negotiated," he stated.

The question of unsurrendered Indian title, he said, was a complex legal problem.

But he pointed out that the problem was not unique to Canada.

"It is one which has arisen elsewhere, including countries which share our commonlaw heritage—other countries in the Commonwealth and the United States, he said.

War Service Won Little Says Veteran

NANAIMO — The president of the Southern Vancouver Island Tribal Federation told an Indian-white audience Saturday that sometimes he wants to forget the ever fought for Canada in the Second World War.

Ross Modeste, addressing the organization's convention here explained that in the army he was treated as an equal in Canada and abroad.

But once the war was over, he said, he was treated differently—as a second class citizen and denied the privileges, services and opportunities of the white society.

And the bitter pill was to see Canada accepting people from Europe, former enemies, and providing them with opportunities and services denied to Indian people, he said.

"I fail to see why Indians were not given the same opportunities," he stated. "In no way do I bear any animosity to the new Canadians. If I have created that impression, I'm sorry."

Mr. Modeste called upon Indians to unite provincially and nationally to fight for a better standard of living and the right to retain their identity as Indians.

Group Raps Health Services

NANAIMO — Improvement of medical services for Indians was one of the major issues discussed at a convention of the Southern Vancouver Island Tribal Federation Saturday.

Delegates requested the federal government to make it a legal obligation rather than a "moral" one to provide medical, dental, optical and drug services to B.C. Indians.

Under the present system, funds for medical services are voted upon by Parliament from year to year and are allocated by the national health and welfare department to Indians it considers are in need of assistance.

There is no set fund as this varies from year to year and there is also no definite policy for the administration of medical services to Indians.

Mrs. Diana Recalma, wife of a Qualicum chief, disapproved of the way medical funds were allocated.

"I know of one Indian with a large family who is working as a logger," she said, "He just can't afford to pay for dentures but because he is working he can't apply for assistance. The only way he can get them is to go on relief."

SPECIAL NEEDS

Mrs. Recalma said as the average wage of Indians was $1,300, they should be given special consideration with regard to medical services.

Another resolution requested the department to issue medical service cards to all health and welfare recipients instead of sending a list of their names to druggists.

Benjamin Paul of the Tsarlip Indian reserve, said it was humiliating for Indians to have their names on a list for everyone to see.

Dr. R. D. Thompson, federal regional director for medical services agreed that the medical services for Indians were inadequate, and that their health standards below that of the whites.

But he pointed out that his department had limited funds to work with and these had to be used where they were most needed.

B.C. PLAN

Municipal Affairs Dan Campbell speaking on a government proposal to permit some Indian bands to make their reserves into municipalities, promised to allow them to revert to their reserve system if it didn't work.

"I give you a solemn pledge that if in three or four years you don't like it, I'll take it off your hands," he stated.

He said it would benefit some reserves as they would be entitled to government grants and all services provided to incorporated districts or villages.

He mentioned Alert Bay and Bella Bella as likely communities that would benefit as municipalities.

Provincial Delays Draw Criticism

By Staff Reporter

NANAIMO — A University of British Columbia law professor Saturday blamed the low economic and health standards of Indians on the slowness of provincial governments to admit their responsibilities towards them.

Prof. K. Lysyk told the convention of Southern Vancouver Island Tribal Federation here that provincial governments should take over the administration of Indian welfare from the federal government.

"The native peoples should receive the same social services as other citizens of the provinces," he said.

The B.C. government in the past has refused to take on Indian welfare as proposed by the department of Indian affairs.

Earlier, at the morning session, Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said the province would not take over the service until the department of Indian affairs phased itself out of welfare.

'OTHER ISSUES'

"The province refuses to be simply an agency for the distribution of welfare cheques," he said. "There are other issues involved in welfare, such as rehabilitation and employment."

He was opposed to any system which treated Indians differently from other Canadians and that was what the department of Indian affairs was doing, he said.

"For this reason I feel the Indian affairs department should be abolished—should have been phased out long ago."

In a surprise move, the minister invited Indian leaders to accompany him to a federal conference on Indian welfare next year.

TAX QUERIED

I'm tired of one government saying one thing and another saying something different," he said. "I want the Indians to hear for themselves what goes on."

CHIEF UNDERWOOD
'. . . we pay taxes'

When asked by Chief Philip Paul of the Tsarlip Indian reserve if the Indians would be allowed to speak, the minister said that this would be up to federal government officials who called the meeting.

Chief Ed Underwood asked the minister why Indians did not receive any benefits from the social service tax.

"We pay the tax," he said. "Why shouldn't we receive some benefits?"

The minister said that the tax was used to pay for social welfare, hospitals, schools, and far from covered the costs for all these services.

Prof. Lysyk in his address said there was nothing constitutionally to prevent the provinces to extend their services to Indian reserves.

"There has been a widely held assumption that provincial laws could not extend to Indians on reserves," he said. "The reserve has sometimes been regarded as a sort of enclave of foreign territory, so that provincial services must stop at the boundaries of the reserve."

He said the reason for this provincial policy was not constitutional but historical and political.

"In any event a section of the present Indian Act, dating back to 1951, has the effect of delegating any necessary constitutional authority to the provinces," he said.

But he pointed out tradition dies hard.

"The slowness on the part of the provincial governments to admit their responsibilities toward Indians—in particular, reserve Indians—has contributed to the plight in which the latter now find themselves," he stated.

He said he was not suggesting that the federal government should abandon all Indian affairs to the provinces.

"There would still be a continuing federal responsibility to provide supplementary services," he said.

Penalty Points Game Keeps Drivers Alert

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Penalty points system for traffic violations goes into its fourth week on Tuesday with assurance from those charged with its implementation that "so far" it is working.

Forbes

An interesting sidelight came in my mail the other day with a letter from Jean MacKenzie, talented author of Storm Island and the mother of two active, intelligent young sons.

She contends that the "traffic people" have unwittingly provided harassed parents with a new and interesting car game.

All it needs, she writes, is a pair of bright eyes, 10 fingers and somewhere in the car, the Motor Vehicles Branch folder that lists all penalty points.

Then let the youngsters keep score on erring drivers. The first to tally up 10 points wins the game.

It will not be long, Jean goes on to say, until the MacKenzie lads will be "begging for driver's licences and car privileges." And she believes her game "Ten Points" should make an excellent foundation for good driving habits.

She and her husband plan to use it when the boys are with them in the car, whether it is on long trips or around town.

I think Jean has something. I've been in cars where active youngsters counted passing vehicles of different colors, played "I Spy" with out-of-town licence plates and even kept watch for bearded drivers.

This "Ten Points" idea has them all beaten. And I'm willing to wager that in adopting it for their youngsters, parents would also learn something about the penalty areas.

* * *

Rev. Alex Calder of Oak Bay United Church stopped me the other day to say that a recent column I wrote about young couples who moved from one part of the country to another and landed on their feet, reminded him of an incident that occurred in a small town "away back when".

A young man arrived in this place from eastern Canada. He had a brand new university degree and he had come to teach in the little school. He planned, in his spare time, to work for his doctorate.

As it turned out school work was time consuming and there was little or no opportunity to study.

Finally, the young man went to the town's school board and said he wished to resign.

What would he do if he did resign, he was asked. Jobs were few in his line of work around there.

They were advertising for a school janitor the young man pointed out and he'd like to apply for that position. He thought it would give him more time to study.

Startled but willing to help, school board members agreed to the request.

So, the young man got up early in the morning and made the school warm and cosy for the children. Then he went home and studied until school was out and he could go back, clean up and make everything ready for the next day. After that he had the evening free for his books.

He got his doctorate, Mr. Calder said. And, what was even more startling his wages as a janitor were much higher than the salary he had received as a teacher.

Another story Mr. Calder told me had to do with a time in his career when he was chairman of a board charged with recommending salary increases for teachers in a particular school.

All received raises except one young woman who "simply didn't warrant it."

When the results were released she came to Mr. Calder to ask why she was passed by. And was told as kindly as possibly "because you are not a good teacher."

Mr. Calder recalls the young woman turned and without a word flounced out of the office. She went to her classroom, closed her desk and walked out of the school.

"She quit . . . just like that!" he told me "and she went out and found a position in the business world that gave her $200 more a month to start."

In these two anecdotes this friendly United Church minister was telling me that it is not only young marrieds who take chances and land on their feet. Single lads and lasses can do it too.

"We're working for a record sale of poppies this year," Mr. Normington said, "because more funds are needed to help the many veterans hard hit by the rising cost of living.

"We hope everyone will wear a poppy this November, partly because Nov. 11 is the 50th anniversary of the First World War Armistice."

VICTORIA, B.C., MONDAY, OCT. 21, 1968—PAGE 21

Mayor Gives 'Decision' To Pro Team

The experts demolished the "lay professionals" at the sewage forum Saturday.

This was one of the main impressions of Victoria Mayor Hugh Stephen.

"They annihilated some of the objections made," he said in an interview this morning, mentioning red tide and fecal clouds as two examples.

"Against that type of knowledge and experience and expertise, most of the arguments made aginst them were invalidated."

He said the visiting experts, whose credentials are "pretty formidable, overwhelmingly sustained the original sewerage report." (See page 6.)

This report, presented in 1966, recommended plans for sewer main trunk lines and rebuilt ocean outfalls, extending several thousand feet into deep water with the sewage being comminuted, or shredded, before disposal.

The Capital Regional District, responsible for implementing the plan, organized the one-day public forum Saturday on sewage disposal and the marine environment.

PLAN UPHELD

Mayor Stephen said the experts upheld the original view that disposal of sewage at sea, without treatment but with long outfalls, would "adequately answer our problems without danger to human life or health, to aesthetic values or to marine life."

The experts were subjected to a number of queries, "and to me they disposed of them completely."

Mayor Stephen said the regional district brought to Victoria men whose credentials are beyond dispute "unless a person has a subjective mind.

"If we are still forced to put in treatment, that is well and good. But we were told it will not produce any better shoreline and there is no difference to the end result," he said.

The meeting was told that treatment plants will cost $16 million on top of the original $23 million cost for new trunk lines and rebuilt outfalls, plus annual maintenance.

Mayor Stephen said the cost will probably be more because this figure was based on having treatment plants on the shoreline, and he didn't support this.

REVERSE FLOW

Thus, sewage flows would have to be reversed and pumped to central treatment plants, before the effluent went into the sea.

"On the evidence I know, and what was presented Saturday, this is not necessary, it will do nothing to improve the criteria we have been told to work to and it is morally wrong to insist on that expenditure when it will do nothing for us," he said.

Indications are that the provincial government will require primary treatment plants—which remove some of the solids in sewage by screening and settling—before the effluent reaches the ocean.

★

Breakdown Promised On Forum Cost

A detailed breakdown on the cost of Saturday's forum on sewage disposal methods should be available within the next two weeks.

Pre-forum estimates placed the cost at between $6,000 and $10,000.

"But we won't know the exact cost until all the bills are in," executive director of the Regional District Board Bill Long said this morning.

"On Saturday we asked all those taking part to submit their accounts as soon as possible. The detailed breakdown will be made public."

●

The most-frequently asked question during the forum was about the qualifications of the panel itself, suggesting a wider range of scientific knowledge, and pointing out that some (not all) of them were connected with the 1966 engineering report.

In defence of the competence of the panel itself, two organizers of the meeting said it was essential that every panel member be conversant with sewage treatment.

●

One of them said he knows of no biologists in the Victoria area who are conversant with sewage treatment.

Another said that while the background of some panel members was in engineering, some of them had gone on to higher scientific studies.

Mr. Long said some critics had apparently lost sight of the original reason for calling the experts together.

●

"Primarily the forum was called so that the experts could explain in detail to district and municipal officials the reasons for their findings in the Sewerage Study Survey," he said.

"Having decided to do that it was suggested that at the same time the public and any local experts should have time made available to them so that they too could express their opinions."

COMING UP NEXT as an additional display in the new Provincial Museum is the inside House Post from Quamichan, at left. Museum worker John Smyly looks over stacks of other totems which will be added later.

Police Seek Two Men For Armed Robbery

Police today are looking for two young men who menaced a city storekeeper with a gun Saturday and robbed her of $20 and cigarettes.

The bandits, believed to be between 20 and 25, and with silk stockings drawn over their faces, levelled a gun at Mrs. Yee Ngai, 2567 Prior, at the Cedar Hill Store, 1400 Hillside.

Minutes later, at 11 p.m., a patrolling city police cruiser saw her standing on the corner of Cedar Hill and Hillside yelling for help.

She told the police one of the men had pointed a "long barrel" gun at her forehead and made her sit down.

The telephone was then pulled off the wall and the cash drawer taken from the register. It contained $20 in silver. Several cartons of cigarettes were also taken.

The men fled north on Cedar Hill in a greyish-blue car, believed to have been an older model Ford. A motorist driving by at the time of the holdup was able to supply partial descriptions, police said.

Mrs. Ngai's two daughters, Sherri, 8, and Annie, 10, were in the store at the time of the robbery.

One of the bandits was described as tall, slim with black clothing. The other is believed to be heavier and with grey clothing. Only one carried a gun described as a pistol or sawed-off rifle, police said.

Saturday's holdup was the second of its kind this month. Two weeks earlier a lone young bandit brandishing a gun took $100 from John's Grocery, 1871 Oak Bay Avenue.

Uvic Probe Subject Of Meeting

The first open meeting in a broad investigation of the academic and internal structure of the University of Victoria will be held tonight.

A special study group set up by the university senate nearly a month ago will receive briefs and arguments on ways to improve course listings and evaluation of student performance.

Suggestions have been made to give out more information on courses offered at Uvic to students applying. Some have also requested an end to final examinations and a new method for assessing a student.

ONE OF THREE

It is expected the subcommittee meeting tonight will outline how it will approach the study and consider briefs already submitted.

The full investigation of governing and departmental structures at Uvic was called for by the senate after student proposals during the summer had been considered.

Five special subcommittees were set up under regular senate committees on academic planning and university government.

The committee meeting tonight, under the chairmanship of Dean Ronald Jeffels, is one of three under the academic planning body.

It will meet at 6:30 in the upper lecture room of Craigdarroch College (the residence complex).

'Working on Local Ills' UN Official Tells Critic

JOHN BATEMAN
. . . medal winner

The Victoria United Nations Association began its annual commemorative week missing a strip torn off by the angry head of Victoria's low-income group.

Mrs. Pat Hilborn, president of the low-income group, said "I just got my hands" on a copy of the UN's Declaration of the Rights of Children and it "made me mad."

She said in an interview "it's kind of ridiculous to go after your neighbor" when there are children suffering and going hungry in "bountiful British Columbia."

UN Association president, D. M. Falconer today agreed there are problems close to home but said, the association, within its context, is working on local ills.

He said the association's primary task is educational. Last December it sponsored a public meeting to discuss the rights of Indians, women and the poor on Vancouver Island.

Its year-long program is concentrated on human rights in an effort "to see what amount of injustice is discernible at the local level."

He said the association's aim and Mrs. Hilborn's are "not incompatible." Both are working to bring public attention to a continuing problem.

A second public meeting on human rights is being organized for next December, he said.

DO THEY KNOW?

Mrs. Hilborn, saying her organization had more than 80 members, asked whether the general public realized what poor children in the province are experiencing.

She described a recent instance of a local mother and two small children who lived on porridge for two weeks.

She said that sort of situation is "pretty raw."

"And there's some way somebody out there is going to hear this."

Island Chef Shares Awards for Cooking

A Canadian team of chefs has cooked its way to victory in the International Culinary Exhibition in Frankfurt, Germany.

In a telegram sent to Karl Breitschmid, president of the Vancouver Island branch of the Canadian Federation of Chefs de Cuisine, a team official said they had won five gold medals, two silver medals and a Gold Chief of Culinary Arts of Excellence silver tray.

The 14-man team included one Vancouver Island representative, John Bateman, chief instructor at the Nanaimo Vocational School.

Trail Riders Plan Sunday Competition

Colwood Trail Riders will hold a two-hour trail ride Sunday, starting at 11 a.m. at 4537 Rocky Point Road.

About 30 riders are expected to enter the competition, which will have junior and senior classes. Fifteen judges, headed by Dave Metzger of Calgary, will decide the winners.

School Projects Bloom in Spring After Yes Vote

Four Out of Five Support Program

Saanich Peninsula school board chairman Mrs. Nora Lindsay said today building of badly-needed school additions should start in the spring following solid support from ratepayers Saturday.

Property owners from Royal Oak to Sidney voted almost 4-to-1 in favor of a $4 million school building program, clearing the first of two hurdles to alleviate jammed classrooms.

Still to be overcome are provincial government financing restrictions on school construction but Mrs. Lindsay was optimistic because the planned additions are all "essential."

Under the three-year program, no new schools will be built but additions or renovations will be made to all 18 district schools.

The school board will now seek department of education approval to proceed with working drawings and hopefully building can begin in the spring, said the chairman.

30 PER CENT VOTED

Saturday's ballot in day-long rain saw only 30 per cent of 9,000 eligible voters turn out but they gave an impressive 77.7 per cent "yes" to the $4,082,400 referendum.

A 60 per cent majority was needed for it to pass. The final tally has 2,105 in favor and 607 opposed, with all nine polls in district schools recording a majority in support.

There has been no new classroom construction in the school district for the past 3½ years and the accommodation crisis was heightened when ratepayers defeated a $554,800 supplementary building referendum last December, voting only 56.41 per cent in favor.

Mrs. Lindsay said today she found "very rewarding" the support given the school board by a variety of community groups.

As much of the building in the program will be done in the first year as is possible, she said. Additions at Keating and Saanichton elementary schools and Claremont Secondary School she put at the top of the piority list.

OVERCROWDING

Overcrowding has forced classes into school libraries, lunchrooms and in one case, a paint shop alongside a school.

Three-quarters of the $4 million will come from government grants with ratepayers paying the balance over 25 years.

The program includes money for buying future school sites and one or two of these are top priority too "because if we don't get them soon they just won't be there," said the board chairman.

Saturday's poll-by-poll results:

HEAD-ON COLLISION KILLS MAN

Christian Mark Poulsen, 23, a native Victorian and father of four, died Saturday in a head-on collision on the rain-slick Cedar highway six miles north of Ladysmith.

A longshoreman, Mr. Poulsen lived in Ladysmith for the last year.

He was passenger in a car driven by Alexander MacMillan, 38, of the Cedar area that was in collision with a truck driven by Joseph Drixler, 40, of Ladysmith.

Drivers of both vehicles are reported in fair condition today in Ladysmith General Hospital.

Mr. Poulsen leaves a wife, Joyce Mary-Lou, and children Rena, Mark, Theresa and Christopher. He was the son of Mrs. Violet Sinclair and Reno Poulsen, both of Victoria.

FUNERAL SET

Ladysmith RCMP said they believe Mr. Poulsen died immediately.

Funeral will be Thursday at Sands Memorial Chapel of Chimes at 3 p.m. An inquest has been ordered.

In good condition in Victoria's Royal Jubilee Hospital today is 15-year-old George Gow of Cedar seriously injured in a single-car crash late Friday night on Yellow Point Road near Nanaimo.

He was passenger in a car driven by Harold Floram Besse, 17, of Nanaimo who was treated in hospital there and released Saturday.

Mr. Poulsen was the only Islander among at least six B.C. residents who died accidentally during the weekend. Across Canada 56 persons were killed.

Five Refugees Arrive in City

Five refugees from the Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia were to arrive in Victoria this afternoon.

The group — two couples and a child — were sent here from Vancouver by the Canadian immigration service.

John Albrecht, a spokesman for the 20-person Czech community in Victoria, said this morning he has been asked to meet the five when they arrived by bus.

Neither he nor government officials in the city knew the names or gackground of any of the refugees.

They are part of the nearly 2,000 refugees taken into Canada since the invasion and among the first to come to Victoria.

EARLIER ARRIVAL

Mr. Albrecht said one other family from Czechoslovakia has settled in the city since the Russians moved into their homeland by force.

A group of about 225 Czechs recently arrived in Vancouver, and government officials are trying to help them settle in areas where they can find work, Mr. Albrecht said.

A Canada Manpower official said no information on the group to come here had been sent in advance but the office will interview them for employment.

"They came through in a hurry," he said. "We will discuss their problems with them when they arrive."

The group has accommodation already arranged in the city and Mr. Albrecht will act as a guide and interpreter for them.

Ask The Times

Q. Please publish the names of the six largest cities (by population) in the U.S. I have a friend who claims Los Angeles is larger than Chicago, but I disagree.—L.S.

A. According to a 1960 census published in the 1968 edition of the World Almanac the six largest cities by population are: New York, N.Y., with 7,781,984; Chicago, Ill., 3,550,404; Los Angeles, Calif., 2,479,015; Philadelphia, Pa., 2,002,512; Detroit, Mich., 1,670,144, and Baltimore, Md., 939,024. These figures are subject to eight years' change, so no really accurate answer is possible at this time.

Prepare for Snow Before It Comes

By PENNY SAVER

This weekend my husband brought home a strange load. He and a friend had hunted around until they found a good quantity of sand. This they have piled in their respective garages. "Why," I asked, "do you want sand? The children are much to big to need a sandbox." "In case it snows," he replied. "I'm determined that this year no sudden snowfall will make me late for work by pinning me in the driveway. Joe and I have made up our own motto: Why wait for snow, do it now." I decided to adopt this motto when I asked him for money for new drapes for the living room (the old ones just aren't thick enough to insulate against a real cold) and a pair of new winter boots for myself. He laughed and gave me the money.

Victoria's unexpected snowstorms are a good reason for keeping a can of the product I found the other day handy in the car all winter long. Think back to last year; we didn't get much in the way of white stuff, but what we did get packed to ice faster than the sanding trucks could make their rounds. Even with sanding, there were hills where car after car would spin helplessly trying to get enough traction to get moving again. The product I found is a spray-on tarry substance that will give that second of traction, even on ice. It is non-injurious to tires and can be cleaned off white-walls and paint with tar remover. Spray for around five seconds on the tire tread; let it dry for two minutes then start off slowly. The gooey stuff grips the ice and gets you going again. A six-ounce, $1.89 can contains at least three applications (an application being five seconds of spray on both back tires). Full first-aid instructions are written on each can.

Mathilda Starts Knitted Rug

Even if winter doesn't bring snow, it brings cold weather and cold weather means cold floors in the morning. On a cold morning there is nothing nicer than a rug right where your feet first touch when you leap (or crawl) out of bed. Mathilda, I knew, planned to hook a bedside rug, but when I dropped over to see what kind of wool she had chosen I found her knitting instead. She had decided to try a knitted rug kit costing $19.95. "Much more economical than a hooked or ready-made rug of the same size," she commented these rug kits come in three patterns, trellis, tree of life or figure eight. The rugs, finished in a fringe, are 27 inches wide and either 47 or 57 inches long depending on the pattern. They are available in a natural bone shade only. These rugs are knitted on number one needles.

A young friend of mine had her ears pierced recently but finds that buying earrings to match every outfit can become expensive. She found a solution to this problem in 14 carat gold earposts that cost only $1 a pair. These earposts are topped with a tiny dot of color, and there are some wild colors to choose from. They also come with gold, silver or pearl dots. A plastic ring on the post itself holds them in place yet keeps the cost of the earring down. I was interested to learn that these inexpensive, but attractive earrings are made in Canada.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

The habit of giving the legs and feet special care pays wonderful dividends any time and particularly at this season of the year. The cold dry air can give trouble. Special measures are indicated in order to keep our legs and feet attractive and comfortable.

Lowman

Winter weather is drying and, therefore, the skin of the feet is sure to become rough unless it is given regular attention. Give the bottoms of the heels an extra measure otherwise calluses will form, and these can be a serious handicap. When the condition is extreme, painful cracks may appear. Anyway, rough skin is unattractive even when glimpsed through sheer hosiery.

While soaking in your tub, use a bath brush on the rough spots on your feet. After drying, always massage a body lotion in well. It is a good idea to sleep with white socks on one night a week after massaging a cream into the heels and around the toe nails.

There are products on the market which help "melt" the dead skin. You simply apply one of these, leave it on for a few minutes and then wipe it off, along with some of the dry skin. Most products say not to leave the cream or lotion on for longer than 10 minutes. Always follow the directions which come with the product you are using.

It is not wise to try to take care of corns, ingrown toe nails or severe calluses yourself. You will be much better off to take those troubles to a podiatrist.

Remember that legs become dry, too, during the cold months. Massage them with a body lotion once a day. Your arms and hands should have the same treatment. Give special care to your elbows. Even women who do not feel the need for bath oil in the summer usually find it helpful during the winter.

AND, of course the beauty of a leg depends on its contour also. If an oversize calf is your problem, try this exercise. It is slimming to the abdomen too. Lie on your back with your legs straight and your arms over your head and resting on the floor. Raise both legs with stiff knees. At the same time raise your arms from the floor. As you do this point your toes back toward your head as though you were going to touch the SOLES of your feet to your fingertips. Touch fingertips and toes and return legs and arms to place slowly. Continue. Keep your legs straight throughout the exercise.

If you would like to have my leaflet "Why Not Take Steps Toward Lovely Legs?" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to me in care of this newspaper.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Nude in Painting, She Says 'It's Me'

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a 50-year-old so-called society lady who tells everyone that the life-sized painting of the naked lady she has hanging in her downstairs hallway is HER?

SAW IT

DEAR SAW: If the "naked lady" is indeed she, she's an exhibitionist. If it isn't, she's both an exhibitionist and a liar.

DEAR ABBY: We are two sisters, ages 17 and 19 and we are both "GOOD" girls. Last week-end we double-dated two boys I'll call Jim and Joe. Afterwards we went to Jim's house. His parents weren't home, but we didn't have anything wrong in mind.

Well, Jim's parents came home earlier than expected and they found Jim and me in their bedroom, and my sister and Joe in another bedroom. I swear that nothing out of the way took place. We were just lying on the bed, relaxing and maybe doing some very LIGHT making out. It was all clean fun.

Naturally Jim's parents thought the worst. They called my sister and me names and chased us out of the house and told their son right in front of us that he was not to ever have anything to do with me.

This is a small town and news travels fast. My sister and I told our parents, and they were very understanding. How can we remedy the situation with Jim's parents? They are terribly narrow-minded.

SMALL TOWN, PA.

DEAR SMALL TOWN: You probably can't. I think Jim's parents over-reacted, but you kids asked for it. Chalk it up to experience and don't repeat the scene.

DEAR ABBY: My 82-year-old mother read a letter from your column out loud to me. It was the one from the woman whose husband was retired. He stayed in the house all day long, following her around and supervising the housework. She said if she didn't get away from him for a few hours, she'd go out of her mind. "Death would be a welcome relief," she said.

You asked in your answer, "His or yours?" That brought a big laugh from my mother who doesn't laugh easily.

Then Mother said, "I know exactly how that poor lady feels because that's the way I felt about your father. He's been dead for six years, and by God, I miss him. Nobody to fight with."

Government Plans Changes In Fair-Employment Laws

OTTAWA (CP) — The government plans changes in fair-employment legislation that will allow the labor department to initiate action in cases of discrimination against females, the Commons was told Monday night.

James McNulty, parliamentary Secretary to Labor Minister Mackasey, announced the proposal in a reply to Grace MacInnis (NDP — Vancouver-Kingsway) during an adjournment debate.

Mrs. MacInnis called for introduction of legislation to end discrimination against female workers, as recently charged by leading Canadian labor officials at hearings of the royal commission on the status of women.

THE FABRIC DOCTOR HAS THE ANSWERS

QUESTION:

Can Suede Jackets Be Drycleaned?—Mrs. B. J. C.

Dear Mrs. B. J. C.: Regular drycleaning procedure is not recommended for real suede. Most dyes in suede will bleed in drycleaning solvent, particularly the darker colors. It is recommended to send suede jackets to a specialist outside the city who will re-dye the garment as part of the cleaning job. Proper suede cleaning is expensive, and this is a factor to consider when buying this type of garment.

Mrs. Jeannette Schiller, one of 11 enthusiastic instructors in the elementary correspondence school, discusses a course for her Grade IV pupils with the school's director, Arthur Plows.

IN ESSAYS AND ART FROM ROUND THE WORLD

Tall Snakes and Saloons Delight Teachers

By MAUREEN DUFFUS

One pupil studies in the summer kitchen of a trapper's cabin; another on a ketch in the South Seas; another in a medical mission in Africa, and others on a beach in Portugal.

Their instructors in Victoria look forward to the daily mail which brings some of the most engagingly original compositions and paintings to the elementary correspondence school of the province's department of education.

"The present emphasis on creative writing in the schools is nothing new to us," says A. H. Plows, director of the branch for the past 16 years. "Our children have always had to do a lot of writing, since it's the only way they can communicate with us."

Mr. Plows and the instructors, all qualified teachers with classroom experience, come across some treasures in the mail-bag.

A little boy in Nicaragua writes nonchalantly about an interesting happening: ". . . and then my father met a snake that was four feet tall"

PIG PREFERS CAB

A boy on a ranch in northern B.C. writes about a stock sale where his father bought an outsize sow who was reluctant to be loaded onto the pick-up truck:

"Have you ever tired to load a sow on the back of a pick-up truck? My father solved the problem. The pig rode in the cab, and I rode in the back."

And from a trappers cabin came a beautifully written story about a bear who wandered on scene while "Tommy's" mother was cooking. The boy watched gleefully as the bear nudged his mother who, without looking up, said "Go away Tommy, don't bother me." She looked up when the bear nuzzled her again.

"I'll never forget the way my mother scatted up the nearest tree!" concluded the mischevious little boy who sat and watched the bear without saying a word to his parent.

"They're writing about things that happened, but they use words well. Some of the language is very earthy," Mr. Plows admitted. "The spelling may be unorthodox, but in our marking we try to keep the red pencil to a minimum and encourage them to write imaginatively."

Art assignments reflect this imagination, too, and the variety of subjects is fascinating.

CARD-PLAYING MOUSE

On Mr. Plows' wall is a detailed painting of a saloon, with graphic portraits of a happy cow-boy moose and an itinerant logger-bear playing cards. Drawn with delightful humor are a bottle and glasses on the table, a three-lamp chandelier overhead — and a pig behind the bar.

The significance of the bartending pig has so far escaped the instructors.

In startling contrast is the impressionist painting from a seven-year-old in an African medical mission, showing a splash of black paint on an operating table, with white bandages, more black blobs for the attendants, and lots of bright red for a properly gory effect.

The variety of work is the result not only of the world-wide nature of the school, but of the different backgrounds of the parents. Most of the overseas pupils are children of professional people working or studying abroad for a year or two. The "children afloat" are the hardest to keep up with as they circumnavigate the world with their parents, in anything from "a cruiser to a cockleshell."

"But whoever they are it's a real challenge, keeping these children up to the level of their contemporaries in school. We're working with children who often have no resource material, and who, in B.C., have only books from the provincial open shelf library's free service to supplement their course work," Mr. Plows pointed out.

"There is also a shortage of texts, so our instructors, who write their own courses, often have to re-write a text book. Since we can't lecture, we find new ways of coping.

"In some ways our instructors may have a closer relationship whith their pupils than the classroom teachers, since each child is very much an individual case.

"Postcards, letters and snapshots from our families help a lot. We can see, for instance, that the kids on the ranch who seemed to be slowing down are a fine healthy lot helping with the haying. No wonder they didn't have time to complete the last assignment."

What happens when these children return to the classroom after father has finished building a bridge in South America, or comes home on leave from his mission?

"They fit in very well. There is a certain period of adjustment, and there are bound to be deficiencies in some areas. But the children catch up quickly."

Mr. Plows, who retires soon, has taught in schools across the province. But this, he is sure, is the most interesting teaching job he has ever had. His instructors and staff all share his enthusiasm.

HANDS BOUQUET TO MOTHERS

Mr. Plows gave credit to the mothers of children studying by correspondence, who have to turn into teachers and superintend the lessons.

"It isn't easy to assume the dual role, but one mother in a lighthouse solved it by having her children literally leave in the morning. A few minutes later she rang a bell and the children came back to "school" in the kitchen."

Organized Confusion Reigns At St. Margaret's Fair

There was organized confusion upstairs, downstairs and everywhere except the boarder's chambers when St. Margaret's School held their annual Fun Fair Saturday.

Parents, pupils, staff and Old Girls all contributed to fill the stalls with gift items, plants and parcels from overseas, small items sent from friends of the students.

Children played games while their elders admired the student art that decorated the walls.

Even the fathers got into the act by running a "money tree" guessing game.

The affair was opened by Mrs. G. R. Pearkes who was introduced by J. Davies, president of the Parent's Auxiliary.

Joining Mrs. Pearkes at the head table were her former classmates and early students of St. Margaret's: Lady Stuart-Taylor, Mrs. Cynthia Pinkarr, Mrs. T. J. Steel, Mrs. T. G. Ely, Mrs. P. Holmes, Miss F. Price, Mrs. F. R. Nixon, Mrs. F. Grant, Miss R. Jones, Mrs. G. Quinton, Mrs. L. Ramsay and the head-mistress of the school, Mrs. L. French.

The fair, which was convened by Mrs. H. G. Ingram and Mrs. T. Butler realized proceeds of $1,250.

Mrs. Butler was in charge of the tea room which featured entertainment by the "Teacup Trio," composed of the school music teacher, Miss Rosalie Frampton on the piano; Miss Katherine Butler, flute; and N. Perlea, violinist, whose solos in a gypsy mood raised enthusiastic applause from the guests.

Most of those attending were enthusiastic patrons of the many raffles convened by Mrs. R. Bridal, Mrs. J. Stanley, Mrs. R. Jewsbury, Mrs. E. Bonk, Mrs. H. Butler and Mrs. H. Passmore.

Other conveners were R. Hamer, games; Mrs. R. Bolton, boutique; Mrs. A. Helm, books; Mrs. J. Alexis, home cooking; Mrs. A. B. Schlatter, candy; Mrs. R. Wainwright, delicatessen; Mrs. J. Maltby and Mrs. R. J. Saunders, gifts and novelties; Mrs. G. De Waal, garden stall; T. Pepper, money tree; Mrs. J. Mackenzie, tombola; and Mrs. Mary Crump, bingo.

The Grade 11 students organized a cake walk while the grade 12 students looked after decorations. Mrs. A. Howell was in charge of publicity.

The Old Girls Association kept a coffee bar open while W. Sheperd convened a hot dog stand.

Junior school art work was displayed by Mrs. R. Futcher while Mrs. M. Metrakos organized a display of senior school art. Mrs. Metrakos also demonstrated her technique at quick pastel portraits in the third floor art room.

WANDERING MANDARIN

Exotic Oriental Festival Aids Chinese Lions Club

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Outside it was cold, wet and grey.

Inside were shimmering gowns of red, blue, gold and green; richly-embroidered satins, many-colored drapes and Chinese lanterns of every shade and hue.

Central Junior Secondary School had been transformed from its work-a-day self into an oriental market place—and to the rain-soaked visitors from without it was a place of enchantment.

"We need color these days," commented Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett, wife of the premier, after she had opened the 13th annual Lantern Festival staged by Victoria Chinatown Lions Club.

Escorted by Mrs. Ed Chow, convener, Mrs. Bennett toured the brightly-lit stalls and bought some Chinese novelties for her grandchildren. She was accompanied by Mrs. Waldo Skillings.

Between 1 p.m. and 11 p.m. Saturday, more than 4,500 men, women and children attended. The over-all proceeds from this yearly fund-raising project for Lions Club charities was close to $5,300.

CHINESE PAGEANT

Highlight of the festival was a spectacular Chinese pageant staged by Jack and Bessie Tang and based on the old Chinese legend of the Wandering Mandarin. The auditorium was crowded at the afternoon and evening performances.

The legend was narrated from the stage by Mrs. Tang, wearing a heavily-brocaded pink and white gown stitched with thousands of sparkling sequins.

"In the Flower Kingdom, many years ago, lived a mandarin by the name of Wang Yun," she said. "During his life span of three score years and ten, he practised the virtues of humility and believed it was more blessed to give than to receive.

"He devoted his entire wealth and time helping the needy and sick. And it was prophesied by the Mang Gar, his life prophesier, that his good deeds would be rewarded by the supreme God in Heaven.

"On the 19th day of the 10th moon, as he was strolling in his garden, the heavens split open with a thunderous roar and two fairies suddenly appeared on the Moon Bridge, dressed in brilliant hues of green gold and silver.

"They had been sent down from heaven with a special robe of gleaming white, which gives the wearer the mystic power to see all the special wonders of heaven and earth, and to see into both the past and the future."

After the fairies had dressed Wang Yun in the magical robe, they accompanied him on a magic sampan along the Tin Hor, bettern known to the western world as the Milky Way.

The heavenly journey was splendidly depicted on stage by dozens of richly-costumed performers, and Wang Yun was finally escorted back to the Flower Kingdom by the Celestial Lion.

Mrs. Tang estimated the total value of the costumes at between $7,000 and $8,000. Some are from private collections in Victoria, but the majority have been imported from Hong Kong.

The festival's many other attractions included stalls laden with oriental fire sticks, fortune cookies, lichee nuts, sesame candies and almond shortbread.

There were novelty stalls displaying such curios as crocheted poodle dogs, spirited dolls, chopsticks, lanterns, kites and key-chains.

A demonstration of Chinese water-color painting was given by talented Victoria artist Stephen Lowe. There was fortune-telling by Rene and Chim Chan; a display of Chinese calligraphy (your name in Chinese characters) and a genuine Chow Mein tea.

A Chinese smorgasbord filled the brightly-decorated restaurant from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.

At the opening of the festival by Mrs. Bennett, Rev. Edward Ling, padre to the Chinatown Lions Club, gave the invocation and the address of welcome was given by president Ed Chow.

O Canada was played by club's Drum and Bell Corps in their colorful uniform.

Past-president Colin Sihoe was manager of the festival, assisted by Bob Warman. Mrs. Ed Chow was convener; Mrs. Lil Chan, co-convener.

"I'm afraid to mention names because so many men and women have worked to make the festival a success," said Mr. Sihoe.

"Between them we estimate they have given about 4,200 man hours of work since we started last August."

Eight members of the Vancouver Chinatown Lions Club came to Victoria to study the Victoria festival.

"They would like to hold a similar festival in Vancouver," Mr. Sihoe said.

JUDGE TO DECIDE SOON ON B.C. LABOR POST

VANCOUVER (CP) — Yukon Judge John Parker said Sunday he will decide between now and the beginning of December whether to continue as chairman of British Columbia's new labor mediation commission. The federal government has refused him leave of absence from his Yukon post and says he can not do both jobs. He is commuting now and has accepted only expenses for his mediation post.

United Church Head Lauds Sincere Rebel

CALGARY (CP) — The moderator of the United Church of Canada said Sunday he supported some forms of rebellion to bring about social change.

Dr. Robert McClure told an audience of 3,000:

"Some people forget that a certain amount of destruction is sometimes unavoidable. But some rebels have warped minds.

"I address myself to the sincere rebel who is ready to live and die for a better world."

Dr. McClure said rebellion must have an outlet, but some forms are more decorative than useful. He classified picketing and similar types of demonstrations a "very sissy form of expressing rebellion."

"Never was national policy changed by carrying placards, throwing ink or paint. These methods require a very minimum of thought, a minimum of effort and result in a minimum of effectiveness."

He said the true rebel must learn to love and not just tolerate other races and cultures.

Canada Shines in Olympics With Moose Medallion Filet

FRANKFURT (AP) — The International Cooking Olympics ended happily for everybody Sunday. The sponsor, the German Cooks Federation, decided for the first time in its 68-year history to award the 15 participating countries the gold cooking Olympics medallion.

Some 800 other awards were made for individual competition in hot and cold cooking.

Canada's four-man national team picked up five gold medals and regional entrants from Halifax, Montreal and Edmonton won one silver apiece.

John Schmied of Montreal, president of the Canadian federation of Chefs de Cuisine, said Sunday night the team is "very well satisfied."

Schmied said an attempt will be made to bring the culinary Olympics to Canada in a few years.

The big hit among the Canadian dishes was filet of moose medallion, pan fried and smothered in fried bacon bits, mushrooms and onions and trimmed with Manitoba wild rice and buttered New Brunswick fiddleheads.

"The people went crazy over it," he said. "The 100 portions we made were quickly sold out and we could have disposed of twice as many."

LIKED TURKEY TOO

Second favorite was Canadian Thanksgiving dinner—butterball turkey with stuffing of potatoes mixed with chopped giblets, plus cranberry sauce.

Members of the national team were Rudolph Doseger of Montreal, captain; Pierre Demers of Montreal, assistant captain; and Fred Stahali and Antoni Ronald of Toronto.

Besides the medals, the Canadians won honorary prizes from the German Cooks' Federation and the United States Federation of Chefs de Cuisine.

Among the Canadian silver medallists, Alex Clavel of Halifax scored with three preparations—cold Atlantic trout, Nova Scotia lobster lighthouse and a platter of seaford hors d'oeuvres.

Santo Fata of Montreal, supervising chef for the CPR, won his medal with Gaspe salmon, salmon mousse and a platter of Canadian appetizer tidbits.

Sweepstake Winner Doesn't Want Advice

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A Brantford, Ont., spraypainter whose Irish Sweepstakes ticket won him $130,000 Saturday on the Cambridgeshire run at Newmarket, England, says any investment dealer who tries to help him spend his winnings can "go fly a kite."

William Vander Heyden, 37, father of three, said this is the first time in 10 years of buying the sweepstakes tickets that he has won. He is one of four Canadians who hold winning tickets on Emerilo.

Rev. Joseph Lopuszansky, 61, a parish priest for only three months in Welland, Ont., said his winning ticket was sent him by a friend. He said he has not decided what to do with the money.

But Newfoundland tugboat officer, William Greene, 41, said he will begin spending his winnings by taking a vacation to his native Burin, Nfld., then spend the rest to the benefit of his wife and nine children.

Montreal electrical supply store owner John H. Roy said he will let his money "sit awhile."

The second place finisher, Wolver Hollow, returned a prize of $50,000 each to four Canadians—Mrs. Duncan MacKay, Hinton, Alta.; Donna Wiegand Waterloo, Ont.; C. Anderson, Clarkson, Ont.; and E. Jones, Georgetown, Ont.

Scottish Compositions Feature Sunday Concert

By BERYL PROUDMAN

Under the auspices of the Victoria Musical Art Society, popular Victoria performers were presented Sunday afternoon in a light, predominantly Scottish program of songs and dances in the McPherson Playhouse.

Gail Bamford, sparkling with vivacity and flashing twinkling disciplined feet, danced like a star performer in solo and ensemble numbers.

The smoothed and softened routines of her "Blue Bonnets O'er the Border" in which a softly-falling petticoated skirt lent grace to the steps, contrasted most charmingly with the more angular leapings of her other dances.

Dancers from the Adeline Duncan Studio provided colorful opening and closing numbers and dances were interspersed between song groups throughout.

John Dunbar, who knows better than any other local singer how to put across a Scottish song, sang three groups and introduced the program.

In appealing quiet songs like "Aignish on the Machair" and "Fairy Love Song" his magnetic hold over the audience was as strong as ever.

For contrast, he sang several rousing battle cries and these he performed with such wholehearted enthusiasm that they put too great a strain on his vocal powers and lacked the full rich quality of quieter numbers.

Ruth Champion is never more happy than when soaring among the high notes so she was most at home in Puccini's "Si, Mi Chiamano Mimi" from La Boheme. Her tones and facial expressions reflected with transparent clarity the changing moods in the words she sang with such feeling.

Hageman's "Do Not Go, My Love," another in her un-Scottish concert group, was exquisite in its fearful anguish; a beautiful song beautifully sung.

SINGS LAMENT

Among her Scottish numbers, "Deidre's Farewell" was too loud and clear for a longing lament but, despite a self-consciousness about rolling her r's, "Doun the Burn Davie Lad" was most successful.

Though the position of the piano made Grace Timp disquietingly anonymous for much of the program, she accompanied the singers with sensitive artistry. Jamie Troy piped a faultless maintenance of the various rhythms.

BERTRAND
. . . respects rights

Pledge Made On Language

COWANSVILLE, Que. (UPI) — Premier Jean Jacques Bertrand swept through his home riding of Missisquoi Sunday, assuring English-speaking Quebecers their language rights would be respected.

Reasserting his belief that Quebec should remain within Confederation, Bertrand told his voters, "We must build a strong Canada by building a strong Quebec."

He said he was carrying on the work of the late Premier Daniel Johnson. "Daniel Johnson was a true Quebecer—he was also a loyal Canadian," Bertrand said.

New Museum 'Monument To Mediocrity'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A national museum board official suspects the British Columbia government, perhaps fearing "culture vultures," is wary of letting the public take part in its cultural activities.

J. R. Longstaffe, board vice-chairman, told an arts councils' seminar Saturday the results of such caution are exemplified by the new provincial museum in Victoria.

"The consequences of this closed shop, carefully cloistered from external influences, is a museum which, in terms of architecture, display installations, works of art and museum environment, is a monument to mediocrity."

Opera Into the Hinterlands Comes of Age in Ten Years

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian Opera Company performers left Sunday night for a trip that revives many memories for tour manager Ernest Adams.

"It's been 10 years since we mounted our first tour at the request of the Canada Council and this one is a coming-of-age," said Adams in an interview.

The first tour took 25 performers about 8,000 miles to 24 towns on a $40,000 budget. This year the $165,000 tour will take 38 performers and an orchestra about 12,000 miles through 50 communities.

It begins in Weyburn, Sask., and proceeds to Regina, Edmonton and Victoria as well as 24 U.S. cities and as far north as Yellowknife, N.W.T.

Four of the 19 in the cast of The Barber of Seville, John Arab, Alexander Gray, Sheila Piercey and Jan Rubes, were with the company 10 years ago when they also did The Barber of Seville.

"I was singing in that group and I can remember the cast working as stage crew," Adams said.

"In those days—boy it was fun—each sponsor was asked to contribute a set. We had kitchen chairs, coffee tables for desks."

When asked why the company continues the tour if it is losing money, Adams replies:

"The idea is to bring opera to communities which usually wouldn't see it. In some communities, they have never seen any live theatre.

"In our first tour, 800 of the 1,300 persons at Baddeck, N.S., turned out. They were jammed against the walls of the tiny theatre."

Opening lead—♣ Q

Oswald: "You were about three years old when I first met Ben, who had just started at the Press. He wasn't a Life Master then for the simple reason that they hadn't thought of Life Masters back then, but he was a bridge player and he added the post of Bridge Editor to his regular work with the paper. He did not do the sort of column we write but he covered bridge news that would be of interest to Cleveland readers.

"He also was a mighty tough opponent at the table. Today's hand is one he bid and played against me in a Cleveland tournament some time before the Second World War. He used a newfangled convention called Blackwood to get to seven spades."

Jim: "I note that he stayed out of the no-trump trap. The best North and South can make at no-trump is 12 tricks."

Oswald: "The hand would be a cinch grand slam bid today. At least you would expect nearly every pair in a good field to reach seven spades. Back in that neolithic age of bridge we got exactly one match point for watching Ben run off 13 tricks. Not that he wasted much time. He drew trumps and claimed in a total elapsed time of about two seconds."

Jim: "I think I see why so few players reached the grand slam. North-South could count on 13 tricks if he could depend on his partner for both the king and queen of spades or for a six-card spade suit headed by the king."

Oswald: "His partner told me at the time that Ben would not rebid a bad spade suit over his three-heart bid so that he had no worries when he bid seven."

10-MILE POINT UNUSUAL — ATTRACTIVE

This attractive home, built with a high regard for Japanese architecture also uses the best functionalism of Western architecture to produce better living because — it is located in the 2nd best area (Uplands is first) — the lot is large 90x220 — it's treed, offering you a natural park of your own. The privacy extends also to the home. The living room is peninsular with a separate entrance (how many times have you crossed through a living room or dining room to get to another room — A living area should not serve as a passageway). Between the living room and the large dining room is a free-standing stone fireplace — serving both rooms and its stack to the full height of the open beamed roof. The wall between the dining room and kitchen is translucent and has a Japanese design. The lighting from either room through the paneling adds a most interesting texture to these rooms. The kitchen has black walnut cabinets that only Tech Designed Homes would produce. This is a room that most ladies will not be able to resist. The bedrooms are large, 3 have feature walls and special lighting and there are two full bathrooms. In addition there is a large rumpus room finished in yellow cedar with a floor to ceiling fireplace. There are many more features. The price is $38,500 and there is a 7½ per cent mortgage available. B. Price, 385-2458.

GORGE AREA

You will be CHARMED with the SPACIOUS interior of this delightful home. Living room and large SEPARATE DINING room. Fully MODERN family sized KITCHEN. 3 bdrms., VANITY BATH. Full high bsmt. Disturbed Students To Get Aid

A plan to help children who are leaving school because they are "disturbed" was outlined Saturday by E. G. Callbeck, director of special educational services for the Greater Victoria school board.

He wants to set up a Learning Assistance Centre staffed by experts who will diagnose a child's specific learning problem, then "prescribe" a remedy. It would serve all elementary schools in Greater Victoria.

The centre, still in the planning stages, will be directed by Mrs. Marion Forster, a remedial consultant for the school board. Mr. Callbeck said University of Victoria professors and graduate students have been enthused with his plan.

Approval was given in March by the school board for preparing assistant teachers to be posted in some schools. These teachers' main duties are handling students with learning problems. The program, new to Victoria, has been "very successful" in Calgary, said Mr. Callbeck.

Statistics show that five to seven children in an average classroom of 35 have learning problems, he said.

By setting up a centre—hopefully in Victoria's Adult Education Institute—there could be "some sort of feedback" between experts in the field of learning problems and teachers dealing with these children in their classrooms.

Mr. Callbeck spoke at a workshop on the troubled child at the Adult Education Institute.

Salvation Army Centre Opened For Alcoholics

The Salvation Army's expanded Harbor Light Centre for alcoholics at 516 Yates was officially opened Saturday afternoon by Dr. James A. Taylor, B.C.'s deputy health minister.

Archdeacon A. E. Hendy of the Anglican diocese of British Columbia gave the prayer of dedication and Judge Montague Drake brought greetings from the citizens' Advisory board.

Lt.-Col. Wilfred Ratcliffe, B.C. divisional commander, told of the Harbor Light Centre in Vancouver, which has just celebrated its 15th anniversary.

"It is a place of miracles under the spirit and guidance of God," he said, "and that is true also of the Victoria centre."

All paid tribute to Capt. Albert Ferris, superintendent of Victoria's Harbor Light, who has worked untiringly on the expansion of facilities since the Army acquired a bakery next door.

Capt. Ferris thanked Mrs. Ruth Woodward and the Woodward Foundation for donating furniture to the renovated building.

Child Discipline Debate Planned

Two school trustees, a teacher and a professor will debate ways of disciplining and raising children in school and home at a meeting of Willows Parent-Teacher Association Tuesday.

Taking part will be teacher Mrs. Kory Regan, past president of the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association; Dr. Henry Timko, assistant professor with Uvic's education faculty; Peter Bunn, chairman of the Greater Victoria school board, and trustee John Porteous.

Moderating the panel discussion will be R. D. Kilshaw. It will be held in the school's auditorium at 8 p.m. An audience question period will be included and the public is welcome.

HOME GARDEN

Sow Now for Annuals

By HILDA BEASTALL

The easiest way for a busy gardener to grow a few good annuals for flowering outdoors next year is to sow the seed now. With careful selection and a patch of well-cultivated soil no larger than three feet by six, a hundred fine young plants could be ready by late April to transplant into vacant spots anywhere in the garden.

Hilda

By thinning out progressively so that each plant had a spacing of about five inches, transplanting would be no problem.

A ball of soil with each plant would ensure no setback, and flowering would begin much earlier than with spring-sown annuals, even those started indoors.

Only the hardiest of flowering annuals stand a chance of going successfully through the unknown rigors of our coastal winters. Unknown, for we never know whether it will be heavy rains our plants must endure, or if it will be a season of frosts, icy winds, and then rain.

Nicotines (flowering-tobacco) are one of the hardiest annuals, beloved for their spicy fragrance. Large, overwintered plants make handsome specimens in semi-shaded borders.

White alyssum is always worth growing for its sweet hay scent, and the dwarf forms of cornflower go well with it for a colorful dainty bed of blue, pink and white.

For early-cut flowers, nothing comes up to well-grown spikes of larkspur, also in blue, pink and white. In good strains of seed, flowers are double and compactly placed on long stems.

Salpiglossis, scabiosa and sweet peas are others of the hardiest annuals to sow now.

Have the seed slightly deeper at this time of year, and make sowings very thinly to avoid overcrowding and the need for thinning before spring.

After germination, be prepared to give slight protection during hard frosts by forming teepees with twiggy branches.

New Serum If Bitten By Animal

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

This fall, if anyone gets bitten by a bat or a skunk or other small animal, he should be given the new anti-rabies serum, that is even better than the vaccine. The old vaccine, which has to be given daily for about eight days, is a rough and unpleasant treatment. It is good news that an injection of the new serum is much easier to take.

Alvarez

Today, apparently the spread of rabies is due more to little wild animals than to dogs. Any small wild animal such as a squirrel or skunk that is acting peculiarly or coming too close, should be avoided.

If a child teases a dog and gets bitten, the thing to do is to watch the dog carefully for 10 days, to see if he shows any signs of illness. With rabies, even a previously friendly dog is likely to become aggressive and irritable, or a vivacious one may become quiet and sleepy; he will stop eating, and he may become glassy-eyed. There may also be a change in his bark.

If the dog should become decidedly ill, he should immediately be sent to the health authorities who will examine his brain for the so-called Negri bodies which indicate the presence of rabies. Whenever a person is bitten by a dog, it is extremely important to keep the animal in sight until the pound man can come and get it, and keep it for observation.

Sometimes when a much disturbed woman in my office tells me how awful the modern rebellion of teen-agers is, I tell her that in my library I have the translation of a letter found in the dry sands of Egypt, and dating back perhaps 1,000 years before Christ. It was written by a businessman to his wife, when he had gone to Lebanon to buy some timber. He was distressed because his wife had written that their boy was not taking care of the animals on their farm as he should have been doing; and as the man said, it was too bad that modern children were becoming rebellious, and were not responsible and hard-working as they were when he was a boy!

Now I see that the great Chinese sage, Confucius, living about 2,500 years ago said, "There are those who bemoan their times as lost ... With long hair unkempt and bodies unwashed, they would lay down the philosophy of their times, and persuade all others with their constant criticisms of society and their mournful fears. They are sick, and would inflict their sickness on all who ignore them or deride them." One suspects that Confusius was talking about the hippies of his day.

* * *

Often a much-worried woman, married to an alcoholic, writes asking me if she could not slip some Antabuse (a drug which when used in combination with liquor, makes a drinker ill) into her husband's whiskey to make him so disgusted with liquor he will stop drinking.

I doubt if that would work. When the man found out the trick that was played on him, he would probably be very angry. A cure for alcoholism is not so easily accomplished. The people of Alcoholics Anonymous who know better than anyone else how to cure alcoholics, won't bother with a man who has not come to them saying, "I am an alcoholic; I am in an awful mess; I have got to have help—please help me." As long as the man keeps saying, "I am not an alcoholic and I can handle this," the Alcoholics Anonymous people are not interested.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Golden Era of Wheat Started in Scotland

By BOB BOWMAN

Export of wheat from the prairie provinces, for many years the backbone of Canada's prosperity, was almost a case of carrying coals to Newcastle. In 1842, David Fife, a farmer near Peterborough, Ontario, received an unusual type of wheat from a friend in Scotland, and planted it in the fall. Only three plants grew, and it is said that two of them were eaten by a cow.

Fife realized then that the new wheat should be planted in the spring and then he obtained exceptional results. The wheat ripened several weeks faster than any other types in use at that time. This was important because it minimized the possibility of wheat being spoiled by early September frosts.

Fife called the new wheat after himself and began shipping seeds to U.S. farmers in the middle west. In 1868, prairie wheat was destroyed by a plague of grasshoppers and farmers in the Red River area managed to get some of the Fife seeds from their American friends. It was then that wheat growing on the prairies began to enter the golden era because "Red Fife" was ideally suited to conditions there.

FIRST SHIPMENT

The first shipment of wheat from Manitoba to eastern Canada took place Oct. 21, 1876. There were 412 sacks containing 857 bushels which travelled by boat and rail from Winnipeg to Duluth, and then by boat through the Great Lakes to Toronto. The wheat sold at 80 cents a bushel plus 35 cents freight.

Two years later "Red Fife" was shipped from Winnipeg to Glasgow from where the original seeds had come in 1842. So the unusual circle was completed, and Canada's prairie provinces gradually became "the breadbasket of the world."

Although the original seeds were sent to Fife from Scotland, it is believed that they came originally from the Ukraine, or some country in the Middle East of Europe. Of course many new and better types of wheat have been developed since then.

Other events on Oct. 21:

1755—Many Acadians were deported from Nova Scotia.

1872—Emperor of Germany determined U.S.-Canada boundary between mainland and Vancouver Island.

1880—Contract signed with present CPR for construction of transcontinental railway.

1886—Canada protested U.S. seizure of British Columbian ships which were hunting seals in the Bering Sea.

1887—Quebec threatened to form "Laurentian State" at meeting of premiers at Quebec City.

Fight 'Shaping'

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The Telegram says a major confrontation over fishing and territorial limits may be shaping up between Canadian vessels and French trawlers operating out of the French islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, 12 miles off Newfoundland's south-coast Burin Peninsula.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Jody Dyer, age 9, of Rochelle, Illinois, for her question:

Can the stars be solid?

In our everyday world we expect the seas to be watery liquid and the air to be made of filmy gases. The dry land is crowded with a multitude of metals and minerals and other solid substances. This is the way things are on our planet. But on a seething star things are very different.

It is extra heat that changes solid ice to liquid water and more heat changes the water to steamy gas. If the temperature then starts to drop, the steamy water vapor changes to liquid water. If the water loses still more heat, it freezes to solid ice. Every solid substance melts to its liquid form at its own special temperature. At a certain higher temperature, it boils and changes to a gaseous vapor. Compared to other parts of the universe, the range of everyday temperatures on our planet is not very great. A scorching summer day may seem like the hottest event in the whole universe, but it is not.

The blazing faraway stars are hotter by far than things ever get on our moderately cool planet. Some are hotter than others, but the coolest star is about twice as hot as our steel-melting blast furnaces. It is hot enough to boil iron and lead and all the other solid substances of our world and change them into gaseous vapors.

Made of Matter

The differences between solids, liquids and gases take us down to the miniature world of atoms and molecules. Stars, planets and all other objects are made from these same bitsy particles of matter. Atoms and molecules get their energy from heat. Loss of heat makes them slow down and stand more or less still in rigid formations. Extra heat gives them extra energy to move around as liquids, and still more heat gives them enough zip to zoom off as separate particles of gas. In a star, even the coolest star, the atoms, molecules and smaller particles of matter have enough heat to zoom around as free and separate particles of gaseous material.

Gases spread out as far as they can. In a star they are hugged down by the mighty force of gravity. This force is strongest at the centre of a heavenly body, and most of its gaseous particles are crammed in the core. The outer layers of a big, fairly cool star may be 25 times thinner than our ordinary air, while the crowded core is heavier than lead. But its densely packed particles do not act like our solid lead. They are not locked together. Each has enough heat energy to zoom around on its own at a terrific speed. Certain small stars called dwarfs are very dense — perhaps 5,000 times heavier than our solid planet. Even so, its tremendous heat keeps its small particles of matter separated into seething gases.

It is, naturally, too hot to stand on the surface of any star, but even if we could withstand the heat, we could not stand on a star. Its peppy, high-speed particles do not cling or lock together to make a solid surface. On earth, the normal gases are airy and too thin to hold our weight. On a dense and heavy star, the hot gases are more restless than boiling soup. You could not stand or build a house, even on a star that is thousands of times heavier than our ground.

* * *

Andy sends a World Book Globe to Sheila Battars, age 12, of Lancaster, Pennsylvania, for her question:

Why do weeds grow so fast?

The weeds that grow in your neighborhood are at home. They are wild plants, and their ancestors have lived right there for ages. Year by year they have grown used to the soil and the weather of the changing seasons. They thrive because they are suited to their surroundings. As a rule, the wild plants have only a few months of friendly weather, and they must make the best of this growing season. Often their seeds have only two or three months to sprout, grow to their full size, produce blossoms and seeds for the next generations. The weeds that cannot grow fast enough to keep up with the seasons fail to survive. They produce no seeds and you do not find them growing in your neighborhood.

A few weed seeds always manage to invade our gardens. Here they share the pampered lives of our favorite plants and flowers. They relish the richer soil and enjoy the extra water we sprinkle around during the dry weather. Naturally, weeds that managed to survive the hardships of the wilds do even better in a garden. They thrive better and grow faster than our cultivated plants that must be pampered with so much tender care.

Keep Land Pure, Michener Urges

REGINA (CP) — Governor-General Roland Michener says Canada must guard her resources as world population increases.

"Our land, water, forests and wildlife are taking on new attractions for the people of a crowded world in which there will be very little unspoiled land."

The Governor-General, speaking during weekend ceremonies in the Saskatchewan legislative chamber, said that if Canada's riches are to be preserved for future generations, "It behooves us not to waste or to pollute."

FIVE-DAY TOUR

The Micheners are on a five-day tour of Saskatchewan that ends Wednesday.

Saturday, the Governor-General invested H. W. Sturdy, British trade commissioner for Saskatchewan, as a member of the British Empire, then met about 300 children lining the halls of the legislative buildings.

Sunday, the Governor-General and Mrs. Michener attended St. Paul's Anglican Church where Mr. Michener read the lesson.

Break Indicated In Paris Talks

U.S. Releases 14 Prisoners

PARIS (UPI)—A strict United States security lid and last-minute cancellation of a North Vietnamese press briefing today heightened speculation of a possible break in the deadlocked talks on the Vietnam war.

Both sides meet Wednesday for the 27th negotiating session since the talks began May 13.

The North Vietnamese delegation headed by Minister of State Xuan Thuy called off without explanation its regular Monday briefing just three hours before it was scheduled to begin. Hanoi officials had announced Sunday the briefing would be held as usual.

Spokesmen for the U.S. negotiating team headed by Ambassador at Large W. Averell Harriman were equally reticent.

'REGULAR DAY'

Mark Sheehan, ad eputy news secretary, described delegation activities as "just a regular routine working day." He said Harriman and his righthand man, Cyrus R. Vance, were in their offices in the U.S. Embassy but "had no appointments listed."

The timing of the release of 14 North Vietnamese prisoners of war today was viewed in Paris as an effort to make good on a deal Harriman worked out with Thuy at the conference table two months ago.

Sheehan said the Paris mission would have "no comment at all" on the release of the PoW's, announced by the U.S. Embassy in Saigon.

Asked if Harriman or Vance suggested the release at this time for any particular reason, Sheehans said: "I said I really don't have anything to say."

The North Vietnamese sailors were released off the coast of North Vietnam during a specially-arranged ceasefire in the area.

The 14 men were released from a U.S. destroyer and sent ashore in a motor boat 12 miles from the North Vietnamese city of Vinh, which is 125 miles north of the demilitarized zone.

The 36-hour temporary ceasefire was arranged between representatives of the U.S. and North Vietnamese governments in the Laotian capital of Vientiane so the seamen could be safely landed ashore.

The ceasefire zone extended from the coast 12 miles out to sea and 13 miles north and south of Vinh.

SEA BATTLE

The sailors were among 19 North Vietnamese captured during a sea battle between American vessels and three Hanoi gun-boats in international waters in the Gulf of Tonkin on July 1, 1966, the spokesman said.

Five of the group were previously returned to North Vietnam—three on March 29 and two others, who were ill or injured, in 1967.

The cease-fire and release of the prisoners, coupled with the withdrawal of the U.S. battleship New Jersey from off the coast of North Vietnam and the continued lull in the ground war, increased speculation that Washington and Hanoi might be moving toward progress in the Paris peace talks.

Diplomats at the United Nations said they believe North Vietnam wants to get a peace settlement before the next U.S. administration takes office Jan. 21.

160 Firms in U.S. Favor 'No-Fault' Plan

By JOHN MIKA

The compulsory self-insurance concept of traffic accident compensation on a "no-fault" basis was undergoing intense study today by segments of the insurance industry on both sides of the continent and both sides of the border.

It was featured by an immediate public debate among insurance spokesmen in the U.S. in sharp contrast to the continuing silence of their Canadian counterparts.

In Nanaimo, the Insurance Agents Association of B.C. board of directors was hammering out its position on the concept as proposed by the Wootton Royal Commission report released 11 days ago.

But IAA president Robert Spray told The Times this morning that it was "too early yet" to announce positions since the industry as a whole has not commented yet "although I'm sure the time will come when comment will be made."

In Washington, D.C., the same concept was publicly advocated by the American Insurance Association, representing 160 companies, as a means of cutting present insurance costs almost in half and guaranteeing immediate compensation to victims.

At the same time, a B.C. petition of 11,826 signatures collected over the past five weekends by parents of children killed in traffic was forwarded to the federal and provincial governments urging steps already proposed or endorsed in the royal commission report.

The petition asked the federal Parliament to amend impaired driving legislation so that it banned chronic drinking-drivers from the roads—an expected consequence of the new B.C. Motor Vehicles Branch's demerit system which was praised by the commission as a vital step towards reducing the traffic toll rate.

The petition also asks the provincial government to implement the Commission's proposal that youths between 16 and 18 be required to graduate from an approved driver training school as a condition of qualifying for a driver's licence.

The "no-fault" concept

Tanker Floating 'Bomb'

EASTBOURNE, England (Reuters) — A blazing Norwegian tanker, described by police as a floating bomb, blazed fiercely a mile offshore today and coastal roads were closed to traffic.

Police also toured residential areas, warning that doors and windows should be opened to minimize effects if the tanker blew up.

The 15,300-ton Sitakund burst into flames in the English Channel on Sunday night after three explosions which shook houses along the English coast.

French vessels picked up 31 survivors, but three crew members were missing and believed dead.

The tanker, with ballast tanks full of explosive gas, was towed early today from the main channel shipping lanes and grounded.

HELMETED STUDENTS STAGE RIOT IN JAPAN

TOKYO (AP)—Some 1,200 helmeted students armed with staves stormed the Japanese defence headquarters today but were hurled back by 1,000 riot police using high-pressure water guns and tear gas.

The students threw rocks, chanted anti-American slogans and carried red banners and posters denouncing the "aggressive United States war in Vietnam".

Police said they arrested 210 demonstrators. Many students and police were reported injured. The students were demonstrating support for an anti-war day sponsored by two of Japan's biggest labor unions.

Nigerian Red Tape Stalls Canadian Relief Aircraft

By JACK BEST

LAGOS (CP) — While thousands of Biafrans are reported starving three Canadian Forces Hercules transport planes sit idle, waiting for the go-ahead to start ferrying food and medical supplies in civil-war-torn Nigeria.

One of the $3 million pot-bellied turboprops, on loan to the International Red Cross, sat on the tarmac at Lagos's Ikeja airport Sunday, where it landed one week ago.

Two others, one at Recife, on the northeast coast of Brazil, and another at Ascension Island, 730 miles southwest of here in the Atlantic, sat waiting for the red tape to be cut.

One apparent reason for the delay in starting to transport relief supplies is the uncertainty of the Nigerian government as to how far it should co-operate in facilitating relief operations into break-away Biafra, the eastern section of Nigeria where civil war has ranged for 16 months.

Major K. S. (Ken) Johnson of Smiths Falls, Ont., commander of the Canadian detachment, last Wednesday sought permission from the Nigerian chief of staff to fly supplies to Port Harcourt, 300 miles east of here, but permission was denied for "military reasons."

He had scouted the area, held by Nigerian forces commanded by Col. Benjamin (Black Scorpion) Adekunle, who takes a dim view of non-military aircraft operating in his command area, and found that runways near Calabar, 100 miles east of Port Harcourt, could handle the transports.

WIRE BRIEFS

No De-Escalation

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Gen. Curtis E. Lemay said today he found no evidence in his trip to Vietnam for George C. Wallace that the Communists had decided to de-escalate their part of the war.

He said North Vietnam was pouring supplies into South Vietnam at an unprecedented rate.

Rural Mail Service

OTTAWA (CP)—Postmaster-General Eric Kierans said today that rural postal service will be continued on a six-day week basis because a five-day delivery week proposed to begin February 1 would cause "serious hardship" in rural areas.

Hard Line In Budget Expected

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Benson is expected to take a hard line in his budget speech Tuesday night on the ability of Ottawa to finance much more provincial spending.

"We are not a well that anyone can dip into," he said recently when asked about fresh provincial demands for more tax-sharing.

Prime Minister Trudeau has proposed a conference of federal and provincial authorities to start trimming the shared-cost projects already burdening the federal taxpayer.

This is in advance of next year's demands on the federal treasury when perhaps five other provinces will join Saskatchewan and British Columbia, which now are participating in the national medical care insurance scheme.

Medical care insurance is costing the federal treasury $35,000,000 this fiscal year, which runs to next March 31. But this only covers Ottawa's share of the plan in the two provinces.

ONLY A GUESS

S. S. Reisman, secretary of the treasury board, told a Senate finance committee meeting last week that the $35,000,000 figure is really only an educated guess of the federal cost.

A much more indicative figure will be the one contained in next year's spending estimates, covering perhaps seven provinces.

This is the season when the provinces and the federal government are staking out their positions before haggling over tax-sharing arrangements.

Premier Robarts of Ontario said last month his province needs a bigger slice of the federal income tax dollar. Ontario now gets 28 cents out of every $1 collected by Ottawa in basic personal income taxes.

The tax-sharing arrangements now in effect stem from the Second World War situation in which Ottawa took over provincial tax fields to finance the war. They were continued as a way of avoiding the jungle of tax duplication that prevailed before the war.

Slowdown Imperils New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor John V. Lindsay says a police slowdown coupled with the city's teachers' strike "now directly perils the safety of untold numbers of New Yorkers."

Lindsay offered Sunday to meet a major teachers' demand in an effort to end the strike affecting the city's 1,100,000-pupil school system, but the union rejected his plan.

Lindsay said the police "slowdown" ordered by the 22,000-member Patrolmen's Benevolent Association in a contract dispute posed "the threat of disorder" at various schools.

As part of the "job action" in the city-police dispute, patrolmen began calling in sick during the weekend while those on duty stopped handing out summonses for traffic violations except when ordered to do so by superiors.

Beaten, Neglected, Dumb Susan Fights Way Back to Normalcy

By W. RALPH THOMAS

Susan was five months old before anyone realized she was close to death.

She had been beaten, starved and neglected.

Her little body bore the marks of dozens of blows and she was suffering from acute malnutrition.

During the first five months of her existence she was physically, mentally and emotionally damaged.

Susan was the second illegitimate child of an alcoholic woman. The first child was five years old when Susan was born, and since the mother was seldom home the five-year-old had to look after Susan as well as himself.

When Susan cried he would sometimes try to feed her. Most of the food could not be eaten by such a tiny baby, so Susan would continue her hungry cries. Her half-brother would then beat her until she stopped crying or until he was tired of hitting her.

Her diapers were seldom changed and she developed severe rashes and colds.

Except for the "care" of her brother and periodic beatings from her drunk, angry mother, Susan was totally neglected.

When she was five months old the Family and Children's Service was called in and she was taken to hospital. No one expected her to live.

But she recovered and the agency put her up for adoption.

Because of her racially-mixed parentage, no one

Jackie, 'Telis Wed in Simple Ceremony

By MAXINE CHESHIRE
The Washington Post

SKORPIOS, Greece — With a dark and gloomy rain falling intermittently outside, former first lady Jacqueline Kennedy became Madam Aristotle Onassis Sunday in a simple ceremony performed in a crypt-sized private chapel on this remote and private island.

Jasmine covered the outside walls of the tiny, whitewashed country church where the 39-year-old widow of the late President John F. Kennedy was remarried. There was only room inside for some 20 members of the immediate families to stand while Greek Orthodox vows were read by the Rev. Polykarpos Athanassiou.

Candles were the only illumination. There were no flowers, although four crates of orchids had been left unused on the dining room table aboard the yacht Christina.

Orchids are the flowers which the new Mrs. Onassis disliked above all others.

Onassis himself, a man of incredible power in his homeland, had personally planned every detail of the wedding. Mrs. Onassis, a woman of definite tastes who ordinarily demands precision and perfection in everything, allowed her bridegroom to make the arrangements.

She wore a lace-trimmed, beige chiffon dress which she had worn earlier this year to a friend's wedding. Her shoes were flat-heeled in an attempt to equalize her husband's shorter stature.

Both she and her daughter Caroline wore ribbons to hold back their hair.

Caroline and her brother John participated in the ceremony, which lasted almost 45 minutes. The two children carried single white candles which had been decorated with white flowers and ribbon. Onassis's own son, 20-year-old Alexander, had flown the ceremonial props down from an Athens florist on Friday and they were kept refrigerated in readiness.

Alexander and his 18-year-old sister, Christina, watched as their father, one of the richest men in the world, became the husband of one of the most admired women in the world.

Mrs. Onassis had intended to walk to her wedding. But the day dawned with a bleak downpour. Some Greeks maintain this is good luck, but many Greeks said over and over again: "The gods are weeping, the gods are weeping."

The wedding party has been housed here since Thursday aboard the $3 million converted Canadian naval ship. The house which he is building on the island looks like a pink parthenon that is as yet unfinished.

Onassis himself drove to the chapel, which is located on another side of the island from where the yacht docks.

Mrs. Onassis and her children, when it became apparent that the rain was not going to let up and that they could not walk, got aboard a power launch and were whisked through choppy waves to the other side of the island.

Onassis Leap-Frogs Greek Oneupmanship

By The Washington Post

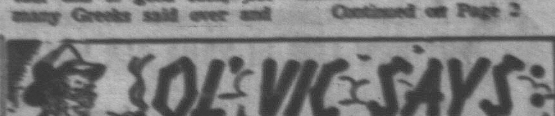
ATHENS — By winning one of the most desired women in the world, Aristotle Onassis has gained a seemingly unbeatable lead in the extraordinary game of "oneupmanship" waged by the powerful clans of the Greek shipbuilding industry.

In the Hellenic tradition, the thirst for money and power alone do not stoke these fierce rivalries. A strong desire to outdo in fame, respect or prestige motivates the jealousies and in this respect the acquisition of Mrs. Kennedy may have been Onassis' most important since he began building a billion-dollar empire.

In the pecking order of great families—Niarchos, Livanos, Empirikos, Pateras and Hatjipateras—Onassis is now acknowledged king.

The most immediate rival for world fame and power—the 59-year-old Magnate Stavros Niarchos—is with a shooting party in Spain and could not be reached for comment about the good fortune of his long-time competitor.

In Athens, the bitter competition between the two men is an open secret. Sometimes it has caused collisions in the business world itself, as in the struggle for control of petroleum shipping in the Persian Gulf, but mostly it has been expressed in a leap-frogging effort at outdoing the other.



Now they're even holdin' down on th' news that Paris WASN'T givin' out.

Export Climb To Continue

MONTEBELLO, Que. (CP) — Robinson Ord, chairman of the Canadian Export Association, said today Canadian exports probably will exceed $12-billion this year.

He told the opening session of the association's 25th annual conference that the association has made a "material contribution" to the expansion of Canadian exports, which increased to more than $11 billion in 1967 from $6.8 billion in 1963.

However, he said, Canadian exporters are faced with the "compelling need to sustain growth in exports in order to maintain acceptable levels of employment" and their task will not be easy.

Oil Production Up

CALGARY (CP) — Crude oil production in Alberta averaged 664,739 barrels a day in the week ended Oct. 14, the Alberta Oil and Gas Conservation Board said Saturday. Production the previous week was 658,275 barrels a day. Daily production for October is expected to be 600,890 barrels compared with 622,251 in October 1967.

News of the World fell 2s 3d to 46s 3d on profit-taking, after its recent good rise following the Pergamon Press bid.

British funds were narrowly better in quiet business. A combination of the Wall Street gain Friday, and continuing Vietnam peace hopes, sent dollar stocks ahead again.

Fishery Commission To Hold Annual Meet

TOKYO (AP) — The 15th annual meeting of the Canada-Japan-United States-North Pacific Fishery Commission will meet in Seattle Nov. 4 for a week's session, a joint announcement by the foreign ministry and Japanese fishery agency said today.

The announcement said discussion would centre on whether Japan is still bound by an agreement limiting Japanese fishing activities in certain areas in the north Pacific.

The limitations include fishing for halibut in waters other than the Bering Sea, for herring in parts of coastal waters of British Columbia.

Mayor Gives 'Decision' To Pro Team

The experts demolished the "lay professionals" at the sewage forum Saturday.

This was one of the main impressions of Victoria Mayor Hugh Stephen.

"They annihilated some of the objections made," he said in an interview this morning, mentioning red tide and fecal clouds as two examples.

"Against that type of knowledge and experience and expertise, most of the arguments made aginst them were invalidated."

He said the visiting experts, whose credentials are "pretty formidable, overwhelmingly sustained the original sewerage report." (See page 6.)

This report, presented in 1966, recommended plans for sewer main trunk lines and rebuilt ocean outfalls, extending several thousand feet into deep water with the sewage being comminuted, or shredded, before disposal.

The Capital Regional District, responsible for implementing the plan, organized the one-day public forum Saturday on sewage disposal and the marine environment.

PLAN UPHELD

Mayor Stephen said the experts upheld the original view that disposal of sewage at sea, without treatment but with long outfalls, would "adequately answer our problems without danger to human life or health, to aesthetic values or to marine life."

The experts were subjected to a number of queries, "and to me they disposed of them completely."

Mayor Stephen said the regional district brought to Victoria men whose credentials are beyond dispute "unless a person has a subjective mind.

"If we are still forced to put in treatment, that is well and good. But we were told it will not produce any better shoreline and there is no difference to the end result," he said.

The meeting was told that treatment plants will cost $16 million on top of the original $23 million cost for new trunk lines and rebuilt outfalls, plus annual maintenance.

Mayor Stephen said the cost will probably be more because this figure was based on having treatment plants on the shoreline, and he didn't support this.

REVERSE FLOW

Thus, sewage flows would have to be reversed and pumped to central treatment plants, before the effluent went into the sea.

"On the evidence I know, and what was presented Saturday, this is not necessary. It will do nothing to improve the criteria we have been told to work to and it is morally wrong to insist on that expenditure when it will do nothing for us," he said.

Indications are that the provincial government will require primary treatment plants—which remove some of the solids in sewage by screening and settling—before the effluent reaches the ocean.

★

Breakdown Promised On Forum Cost

A detailed breakdown on the cost of Saturday's forum on sewage disposal methods should be available within the next two weeks.

Pre-forum estimates placed the cost at between $6,000 and $10,000.

"But we won't know the exact cost until all the bills are in," executive director of the Regional District Board Bill Long said this morning.

"On Saturday we asked all those taking part to submit their accounts as soon as possible. The detailed breakdown will be made public."

●

The most-frequently asked question during the forum was about the qualifications of the panel itself, suggesting a wider range of scientific knowledge, and pointing out that some (not all) of them were connected witht he 1966 engineering report.

In defence of the competence of the panel itself, two organizers of the meeting said it was essential that every panel member be conversant with sewage treatment.

●

One of them said he knows of no biologists in the Victoria area who are conversant with sewage treatment.

Another said that while the background of some panel members was in engineering, some of them had gone on to higher scientific studies.

Mr. Long said some critics had apparently lost sight of the original reason for calling the experts together.

●

"Primarily the forum was called so that the experts could explain in detail to district and municipal officials the reasons for their findings in the Sewerage Study Survey," he said.

"Having decided to do that it was suggested that at the same time the public and any local experts should have time made available to them so that they too could express their opinions."

Police Seek Two Men For Armed Robbery

Police today are looking for two young men who menaced a city storekeeper with a gun Saturday and robbed her of $20 and cigarettes.

The bandits, believed to be between 20 and 25, and with silk stockings drawn over their faces, levelled a gun at Mrs. Yee Ngai, 2567 Prior, at the Cedar Hill Store, 1400 Hillside.

Minutes later, at 11 p.m., a patrolling city police cruiser saw her standing on the corner of Cedar Hill and Hillside yelling for help.

She told the police one of the men had pointed a "long barrel" gun at her forehead and made her sit down.

The telephone was then pulled off the wall and the cash drawer taken from the register. It contained $20 in silver. Several cartons of cigarettes were also taken.

The men fled north on Cedar Hill in a greyish-blue car, believed to have been an older model Ford. A motorist driving by at the time of the holdup was able to supply partial descriptions, police said.

Mrs. Ngai's two daughters, Sherri, 8, and Annie, 10, were in the store at the time of the robbery.

One of the bandits was described as tall, slim with black clothing. The other is believed to be heavier and with grey clothing. Only one carried a gun described as a pistol or sawed-off rifle, police said.

Saturday's holdup was the second of its kind this month. Two weeks earlier a lone young bandit brandishing a gun took $100 from John's Grocery, 1871 Oak Bay Avenue.

Uvic Probe Subject Of Meeting

The first open meeting in a broad investigation of the academic and internal structure of the University of Victoria will be held tonight.

A special study group set up by the university senate nearly a month ago will receive briefs and arguments on ways to improve course listings and evaluation of student performance.

Suggestions have been made to give out more information on courses offered at Uvic to students applying. Some have also requested an end to final examinations and a new method for assessing a student.

ONE OF THREE

It is expected the subcommittee meeting tonight will outline how it will approach the study and consider briefs already submitted.

The full investigation of governing and departmental structures at Uvic was called for by the senate after student proposals during the summer had been considered.

Five special subcommittees were set up under regular senate committees on academic planning and university government.

The committee meeting tonight, under the chairmanship of Dean Ronald Jeffels, is one of three under the academic planning body.

It will meet at 6:30 in the upper lecture room of Craigdarroch College (the residence complex).

School Projects Bloom in Spring After Yes Vote

Four Out of Five Support Program

Saanich Penisula school board chairman Mrs. Nora Lindsay said today building of badly-needed school additions should start in the spring following solid support from ratepayers Saturday.

Property owners from Royal Oak to Sidney voted almost 4-to-1 in favor of a $4 million school building program, clearing the first of two hurdles to alleviate jammed classrooms.

Still to be overcome are provincial government financing restrictions on school construction but Mrs. Lindsay was optimistic because the planned additions are all "essential."

Under the three-year program, no new schools will be built but additions or renovations will be made to all 18 district schools.

The school board will now seek department of education approval to proceed with working drawings and hopefully building can begin in the spring, said the chairman.

30 PER CENT VOTED

Saturday's ballot in day-long rain saw only 30 per cent of 9,000 eligible voters turn out but they gave an impressive 77.7 per cent "yes" to the $4,082,400 referendum.

A 60 per cent majority was needed for it to pass. The final tally has 2,105 in favor and 607 opposed, with all nine polls in district schools recording a majority in support.

There has been no new classroom construction in the school district for the past 3½ years and the accommodation crisis was heightened when ratepayers defeated a $554,800 supplementary building referendum last December, voting only 56.41 per cent in favor.

Mrs. Lindsay said today she found "very rewarding" the support given the school board by a variety of community groups.

As much of the building in the program will be done in the first year as is possible, she said. Additions at Keating and Saanichton elementary schools and Claremont Secondary School she put at the top of the piority list.

OVERCROWDING

Overcrowding has forced classes into school libraries, lunchrooms and in one case, a paint shop alongside a school.

Three-quarters of the $4 million will come from government grants with ratepayers paying the balance over 25 years.

The program includes money for buying future school sites and one or two of these are top priority too "because if we don't get them soon they just won't be there," said the board chairman.

HEAD-ON COLLISION KILLS MAN

Christian Mark Poulsen, 23, a native Victorian and father of four, died Saturday in a head-on collision on the rain-slick Cedar highway six miles north of Ladysmith.

A longshoreman, Mr. Poulsen lived in Ladysmith for the last year.

He was passenger in a car driven by Alexander MacMillan, 38, of the Cedar area that was in collision with a truck driven by Joseph Drixler, 40, of Ladysmith.

Drivers of both vehicles are reported in fair condition today in Ladysmith General Hospital.

Mr. Poulsen leaves a wife, Joyce Mary-Lou, and children Rena, Mark, Theresa and Christopher. He was the son of Mrs. Violet Sinclair and Reno Poulsen, both of Victoria.

FUNERAL SET

Ladysmith RCMP said they believe Mr. Poulsen died immediately.

Funeral will be Thursday at Sands Memorial Chapel of Chimes at 3 p.m. An inquest has been ordered.

In good condition in Victoria's Royal Jubilee Hospital today is 15-year-old George Gow of Cedar seriously injured in a single-car crash late Friday night on Yellow Point Road near Nanaimo.

He was passenger in a car driven by Harold Floram Besse, 17, of Nanaimo who was treated in hospital there and released Saturday.

Mr. Poulsen was the only Islander among at least six B.C. residents who died accidentally during the weekend. Across Canada 56 persons were killed.

Five Refugees Arrive in City

Five refugees from the Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia were to arrive in Victoria this afternoon.

The group — two couples and a child — were sent here from Vancouver by the Canadian immigration service.

John Albrecht, a spokesman for the 20-person Czech community in Victoria, said this morning he has been asked to meet the five when they arrived by bus.

Neither he nor government officials in the city knew the names or gackground of any of the refugees.

They are part of the nearly 2,000 refugees taken into Canada since the invasion and among the first to come to Victoria.

EARLIER ARRIVAL

Mr. Albrecht said one other family from Czechoslovakia has settled in the city since the Russians moved into their homeland by force.

A group of about 225 Czechs recently arrived in Vancouver, and government officials are trying to help them settle in areas where they can find work, Mr. Albrecht said.

A Canada Manpower official said no information on the group to come here had been sent in advance but the office will interview them for employment.

"They come through in a hurry," he said. "We will discuss their problems with them when they arrive."

The group has accommodation already arranged in the city and Mr. Albrecht will act as a guide and interpreter for them.

Ask The Times

Q. Please publish the names of the six largest cities (by population) in the U.S. I have a friend who claims Los Angeles is larger than Chicago, but I disagree.—L.S.

A. According to a 1960 census published in the 1968 edition of the World Almanac the six largest cities by population are: New York, N.Y., with 7,781,984; Chicago, Ill., 3,550,404; Los Angeles, Calif., 2,479,015; Philadelphia, Pa., 2,002,512; Detroit, Mich., 1,670,144, and Baltimore, Md., 939,024. These figures are subject to eight years' change, so no really accurate answer is possible at this time.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

UBC Biologist To Speak Here

Dr. Bruce Tregunna, a botanist with the University of British Columbia, will discuss the biology of photorespiration Oct. 28 at Uvic.

The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. in the Elliott Building, Room 167, as part of a series of talks on biological research.

Photorespiration is the process by which plants and animals take in oxygen.

'Working on Local Ills' UN Official Tells Critic

The Victoria United Nations Association began its annual commemorative week missing a strip torn off by the angry head of Victoria's low-income group.

Mrs. Pat Hilbourn, president of the low-income group, said "I just got my hands" on a copy of the UN's Declaration of the Rights of Children and it "made me mad."

She said in an interview "it's kind of ridiculous to go after your neighbor" when there are children suffering and going hungry in "bountiful British Columbia."

UN Association president, D. M. Falconer today agreed there are problems close to home but said, the association, within its context, is working on local ills.

He said the association's primary task is educational. Last December it sponsored a public meeting to discuss the rights of Indians, women and the poor on Vancouver Island.

Its year-long program is concentrated on human rights in an effort "to see what amount of injustice is discernible at the local level."

He said the association's aim and Mrs. Hilbourn's are "not incompatible." Both are working to bring public attention to a continuing problem.

A second public meeting on human rights is being organized for next December, he said.

DO THEY KNOW?

Mrs. Hilbourn, saying her organization had more than 80 members, asked whether the general public realized what poor children in the province are experiencing.

She described a recent instance of a local mother and two small children who lived on porridge for two weeks.

She said that sort of situation is "pretty raw."

"And there's some way somebody out there is going to hear this."

Island Chef Shares Awards for Cooking

A Canadian team of chefs has cooked its way to victory in the International Culinary Exhibition in Frankfurt, Germany.

In a telegram sent to Karl Breitschmid, president of the Vancouver Island branch of the Canadian Federation of Chefs de Cuisine, a team official said they had won five gold medals, two silver medals and a Gold Chief of Culinary Arts of Excellence silver tray.

The 14-man team included one Vancouver Island representative, John Bateman, chief instructor at the Nanaimo Vocational School.

Early Resident Of Saanich Dies at 86

Retired dairy farmer Alfred Clatworthy, 86, of 971 Ambassador Ave., a 55-year resident of Saanich, died Sunday.

Mr. Clatworthy came to Saanich from Exeter, England, aboard the Royal Edward in 1913. He retired in 1954.

Clatworthy Avenue is named after him.

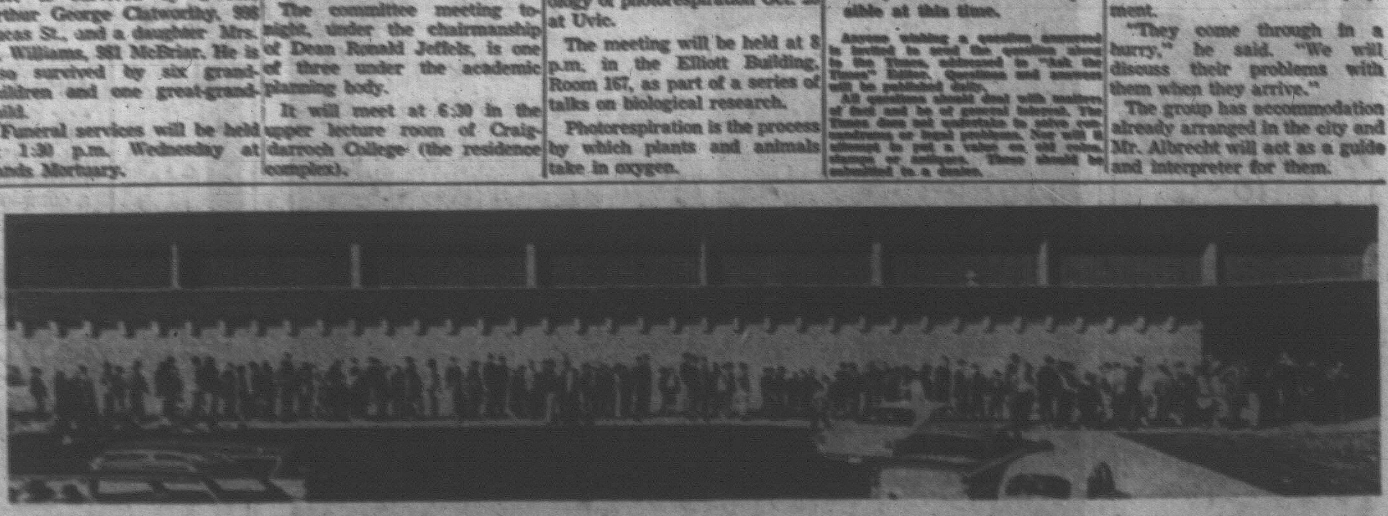
He is survived by a son, Arthur George Clatworthy, 996 Lucas St., and a daughter Mrs. A. Williams, 981 McBriar. He is also survived by six grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday at Sands Mortuary.

Trail Riders Plan Sunday Competition

Colwood Trail Riders will hold a two-hour trail ride Sunday, starting at 11 a.m. at 4537 Rocky Point Road.

About 30 riders are expected to enter the competition, which will have junior and senior classes. Fifteen judges, headed by Dave Metzger of Calgary, will decide the winners.



WAITING FOR THE FIRST public skating at the new Saanich arena produced this queue Sunday. There were two well-attended two-hour skating periods Sunday and then continue Tuesday. The arena, which cost just over $500,000, is off Tillicum Road, near the outdoor drive-in movie theatre. Heavy attendance saw 725 persons turn out in the afternoon and 250 in the evening.

NEW SPANISH COLONIAL UNIQUE SPANISH DESIGN

Unsurpassed in quality and planning to give the utmost comfort and convenience in this modern yet traditional Spanish home of 2,450 sq. ft. A personification of prestige royalty by natural waterfalls on property of 200x170, plus overlooking miles of the blue Pacific, enhances the architectural beauty of the sparkling exterior design while the equally attractive interior provides an unusual functionality.

A renowned Toronto firm of interior decorators has given a unique ensemble of walls, light fixtures, plus luxurious carpeting, has kept this Spanish welcome, yet modern in every way. Main floor consists of an impressive foyer entrance, with closet for wraps, mammoth entertaining room of 16x28 with red brick floor-to-ceiling fireplace with raised hearth. Two king-sized bedrooms with louvred closet doors. More than ample space bathroom, utility room. Up the wrought iron stairway to the upper level, again an extra-large living room, again with elegant fireplace, and a view that makes you want to rest forever, another bedroom at its best, bathroom of exquisite design with colored glass, infra lights and vanity. Formal dining room one step from impressive kitchen with eating area for a family.

Let's step out on the wrap-around promenade to the large sundeck over the double garage. Viewpoint, yes—the Spanish courtyard with curved stairway, the waterfalls blending themselves with the distant waters of the ocean. There is just too much in this home for us to adequately describe. All we can say is . . . if you seek the superlative in location, the quiet dignity of yesterday, livability and quality, we urge your inspection of this home.

10-MILE POINT UNUSUAL — ATTRACTIVE

This attractive home, built with a high regard for Japanese architecture also uses the best functional form of Western architecture to produce better living because — it is located in the 2nd best area (Uplands is first) — the lot is large 76x200 — it's treed, offering you a natural park of your own. The privacy extends also to the home. The living room is peninsular with a separate entrance (how many times have you crossed through a living room or dining room to get to another room — A living area should not serve as a passageway), between the living room and the large dining room is a free standing stone fireplace — serving both rooms and its soars to the full height of the open beamed roof. The wall between the dining room and kitchen is translucent and has a Japanese design. The lighting from either room through the panelling adds a most interesting texture to these rooms. The kitchen has black walnut cabinets that only Tech Designed Homes would produce. This is a room that most wives will not be able to resist. The bedrooms are large, have feature walls and special lighting and there are two full bathrooms. In addition there is a large rumpus room finished in yellow cedar with a floor to ceiling fireplace. There are many more features. The price is $39,500 and there is a 6¾ per cent mortgage available. H. Price, 385-2458.

Fishery Commission To Hold Annual Meet

TOKYO (AP) — The 15th annual meeting of the Canada-Japan-United States-North Pacific Fishery Commission will meet in Seattle Nov. 4 for a week's session, a joint announcement by the foreign ministry and Japanese fishery agency said today.

The announcement said discussion would centre on whether Japan is still bound by an agreement limiting Japanese fishing activities in certain areas in the north Pacific.

The limitations include fishing for halibut in waters other than the Bering Sea, for herring in parts of coastal waters of British Columbia.

Brenda Group Buying Mascot

Vancouver mining men headed by Brenda Mines president B. O. Brynelsen, of Noranda Mines, are offering $1.90 per share for 1 million Giant Mascot Mines Ltd. shares.

Giant Mascot is a nickel-copper producer near Hope and in the last six years it has exported to Japan more than $21 million worth of concentrates. It is preparing another property in B.C. formerly owned by Canam Copper.

Alcan and Massey-Ferguson ⅛, Hudson Bay Mining was down ⅜, International Nickel and McIntyre Porcupine ½, Granby Mining ⅛.

Prices were generally higher on the American Stock Exchange.

Among Canadian stocks, Scurry Rainbow Oil was up 1⅛, Jupiter Corp. ⅜. Preston was down ¼, Brazilian L. and P and Canadian Javelin ⅛.

AT MONTREAL, small gains in utilities, banks and industrials pushed the over-all price trend narrowly higher in brisk trading.

Imperial Oil picked up ⅞ to 81, Husky ¾ to 27, Consolidated Bathurst ¼ to 18⅛ and Calgary Power ⅛ to 26¾. Burns lost 1½ to 22 and Noranda 1 to 58¾.

North American Rare Metals climbed 9 cents to 86 cents on 308,700 shares in speculative mines and oils on the Canadian Stock Exchange.

AT VANCOUVER in the mines, Silver Arrow and Galaxy were the heaviest traders. Silver Arrow turned over 401,100 and gained .09 at .48, while Galaxy traded 341,000 shares to post a .17 gain at $1.05.

Largo traded 130,000 shares but lost .13 at .43 while Consolidated Gem gained .13 to .58 on 122,500 trades. Consolidated Skeena was another gainer putting on .12 at $1.95.

AT LONDON the stock market drifted aimlessly in idle conditions today, with leading issues often slipping back.

News of the World fell 2s 9d to 48s 3d on profit-taking, after its recent good rise following the Pergamon Press bid.

British funds were narrowly better in quiet business. A combination of the Wall Street gain Friday, and continuing Vietnam peace hopes, sent dollar stocks ahead again.

Chrysler added $8 to $208 on its nine-month report, while General Motors and Ford also moved ahead.

Among Canadian issues, Alcan rose $3 to $75, Dome Mines added $4 to $200.

In oils, Hudson's Bay Oil and Imperial Oil were better. Brazilian Ltd., and Power also advanced.

Shop Centres Facing Tough Opportunism

MONTREAL (CP) — Albert Sussman, executive vice-president of the International Council of Shopping Centres, says the shopping centre business was "never tougher" than it is today — but it never faced greater opportunities.

The New York executive told Friday's session of the council's Canadian regional conference that retailers are "pushing in every direction in their drive for expansion."

At the same time, he said, the mechanics of working out a deal between the shopping centres and the retailers "are increasingly harder to consummate."

Across the entire United States suitable land is harder to find and the cost of acquisition is higher, Mr. Sussman told the 190 developers, chain retailers, lenders and builders who gathered for the two-day meeting.

Key tenant deals keep narrowing the margin of profit and the cost of borrowing money was never higher. Apart from the high cost, the money may be available only by giving up a substantial share of the equity in the centres being developed.
